University of Victoria Names New President

NEW PRESIDENT of the University of Victoria, Dr. Bruce Partridge, 42, right, looks over bulletin with Chancellor Richard B. Wilson after selection by board of governors Monday. Dr. Partridge, of Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, will take office July 1, replacing acting president Dean Robert Wallace. Choice was culmination of eight-month search.

Takes Post In July

A leading young academic administrator from Johns Hopkins University in Maryland has been appointed president of the University of Victoria.

Dr. Bruce Partridge, 42, of Baltimore, was selected by the university's board of governors Monday night, effective July 1, 1969.

His appointment was announced by Chancellor Richard B. Wilson, chairman of the Uvic board. Dean Robert Wallace, named acting president last March, will continue in the post until the summer.

Dr. Partridge was selected from a number of applicants for the position, vacated by the resignation of Dr. Malcolm Taylor last year.

OUTSTANDING QUALITIES

"His qualifications are so outstanding that the final choice was relatively easy," Chancellor Wilson said. "He has an ideal blend of ability, youth, and wide experience in university governance.

"We are delighted that he has agreed to accept the presidency here."

Dr. Partridge's areas of study include nuclear physics and international and business law. He holds his doctorate in jurisprudence from Blackstone College of Law, in Chicago.

He has had 20 years of experience in university administration and was appointed administrative vice-president of Johns Hopkins in 1964. He has held senior posts at institutions in Ohio, New York state and Delaware.

INTERVIEWED HERE

An advisory committee interviewed Dr. Partridge here and several members travelled to Baltimore for further interviews. The 18-member committee represented all segments of the university, including students, faculty, alumni, the senate and the board of governors.

Chancellor Wilson said he was pleased at the number of "distinguished academics who let their names come forward for the presidency.

"As chairman of the presidential selection advisory committee, I was impressed by the interest that was shown from many parts of the world, and by the committee's approach to its task.

"All of its interviews led to an overwhelming recommendation that Dr. Partridge be appointed."

Here for the board meeting Monday and a news conference this morning, Dr. Partridge said:

"In my judgment, the University of Victoria has an unusual opportunity for creative growth and leadership in Canadian higher education. It can fulfill a unique role in the exciting future of British Columbia.

"Working with the faculty, the students, the senate and the board of governors to help bring these goals to fruition will be

Mali Army Takes Over After Coup

KEITA
. . . . brought down

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AFP) — The army ousted President Modibo Keita of Mali today and immediately clamped a night-time curfew on Bamako, the Mali capital.

The whereabouts of the 53-year-old Keita, who has been president of the West African country of 3,600,000 since it became independent from France eight years ago, were not immediately known.

News of the coup came through a Mali radio broadcast monitored in this Ivory Coast capital.

It announced that the "hour of liberation has come, and the regime of Modibo Keita and his valets has fallen."

The army imposed a dusk-to-dawn curfew and banned all meetings of more than three people, the radio said.

There was no indication of whether any fighting had preceded or followed the take over.

The communique said that a military national liberation committee had been set up and had taken power this morning.

This committee had taken over all political and administrative powers.

"Democratic institutions will follow from free elections," the communique said.

It was being broadcast at regular intervals, with Mali a folk music being interspersed.

Keita, 53, a former teacher and deputy of the French National Assembly, became president of Mali on Sept. 22, 1960, the day that Mali became an independent state. The country later took a marxist line, but recently came back into the French sphere after its economy had broken down.

Canada Studies Option To Pull Out of NORAD

Times News Services

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Trudeau said today that possible Canadian withdrawal from North American Air Defence Command is "indirectly" under review by the government.

NORAD is a joint Canada-U.S. command. The present agreement expires in May, 1973, but can be reviewed at any time at the request of either country. The command was formally established in 1958.

"Indirectly, yes," Mr. Trudeau replied.

He said Canada could technically stay in NORAD even though it reduced its commitment. The crucial point was the amount of arms at the disposition of NORAD.

If the weapons commitment was reduced to near zero, the command would be "defunct."

Mr. Trudeau said the amount of equipment put into NORAD by either Canada or the U.S. can be decided from time to time.

The government was dealing with what kind of policy Canada should have "in or out of NATO."

Former prime minister Diefenbaker said Mr. Trudeau is presenting a "fantasy and make-believe world" and evading the issues. Canadians needed more information.

Mr. Trudeau said the government cannot present a policy before reviewing it. Otherwise, there was little purpose in the review.

The prime minister informed J. Angust MacLean, Conservative defence spokesman, that Canada has not asked the U.S. for a review of NORAD.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) asked whether additional Amer-

S. Viets Shifting Paris Talk Stand

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government appeared today to be moving slowly toward a decision to send a delegation to the Paris peace talks.

Some South Vietnamese sources close to the government indicated that the principle of sending a delegation had been decided. There was a "50-50 chance" it would be led by Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky, the sources said.

Lending support to suggestions there has been a softening in Saigon's boycott of the Paris talks was a statement Monday by Premier Tran Van Huong in the resort city of Vung Tau.

Huong said South Vietnam "does not yet plan to send any delegation to attend peace talks in Paris," the official Vietnam Press said. This was clearly milder than the previous flat refusal to join the talks unless the National Liberation Front attended only as part of North Vietnam's delegation and not as a separate entity.

Some officials said they expect a Saigon delegation to go to Paris after a firm-sounding government statement reiterating non-recognition of the NLF and declaring that any remarks it makes at the Paris talks would be addressed only to Hanoi's bargaining team.

Red Viet Toll High

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese troops have killed 181 more Viet Cong and North Vietnamese and taken more than 200 prisoners in two operations 450 miles apart, military spokesmen reported today.

One battleground was south of Da Nang, the other was 115 miles southwest of Saigon near the Cambodian border.

South Vietnamese headquarters also reported three provincial capitals and six district towns shelled during the night. A spokesman said these attacks killed 29 civilians and 12 South Vietnamese soldiers.

Italian Political Crisis As Minority Gov't Quits

LEONE

ROME (AP) — Premier Giovanni Leone resigned today, ending the five-month life of his Christian Democrat minority government and plunging Italy into a full-scale government crisis in the midst of nation-wide labor unrest.

Leone quit to clear the way for a new attempt to form a center-left majority coalition of his own party with socialists and republicans.

President Giuseppe Saragat accepted the resignation and asked Leone, 60, to remain in a caretaker capacity until a premier-designate is selected.

The resignation signalled the end of a caretaker government that marked time while Italy's bitterly-divided Socialist party sought to unify its ranks to rejoin the centre-left it bolted after suffering a setback in the national election last May.

Leone's decision to quit came in the midst of spreading nationwide labor unrest.

The nation was in the grip of a 24-hour strike of government employees from the Alps to Sicily which paralysed trains and communications and closed government offices and schools.

The strikers demanded better fringe benefits and reform of the government's career advancement system.

Last Thursday, more than 10,000,000 employees in private business and industry went on strike for 24 hours, seeking higher state pensions.

Bank of France Fights Against Devaluation

PARIS (CP) — The French franc was hemmed against its absolute dollar floor again today at the close of the currency market, while the West German mark advanced against the franc to a record high.

Dealers said the Bank of France was the only buyer of francs in the market against the dollar and the mark.

Meanwhile, President Charles de Gaulle conferred today here with Couve de Murville and Finance Minister Francoise-Xavier Ortoli on measures to shore up the ailing French currency.

In a nationwide teleision interview Monday night, Couve de Murville partly blamed France's unbalanced budget for France's economic problems and announced austerity measures including a credit squeeze and cuts in subsidies to railroads and other public utilities.

Couve de Murville said he would urge the National Assembly today to prepare for cuts in public expediture — particularly for nationalized industries — to "display our willingness to re-establish economic equilibrium as quickly as possible."

Observers said France would also have to slash defence and foreign aid spending to unplug the inflated economy.

German Marks Held in Check

BONN (Reuters) — West Germany announced today it will not revalue the West German mark and that legislation is being prepared to introduce tax measures designed to maintain price stability.

Chief government spokesman Guenter Diehl called in correspondents to disclose the decisions reached by Chancellor Kurt George Kiesinger at a meeting of key ministers and the parliamentary leaders of the two government parties—the Christian Democrats and Social Democrats.

His statement said:

"The federal government will not revalue the mark. The government will, through immediate tax measures in the import and export sectors, ensure internal price stability.

"This will at the same time be an effective German contribution to the improvement of international payments balances."

Authoritative sources said the main aim of the planned tax measures is to reduce a massive West German export surplus which they believed could reach as much as 17,000,000,000 marks (about $4,250,000,000).

Diehl said the two government parties would introduce emergency legislation exacting the tax measures as soon as possible.

Government sources said Parliament may meet to vote on the legislation next week.

Diehl said the tax measures were prepared in close consultation with the federal bank, and interested governments have either been informed or were being informed.

SPECULATION CONTINUES

FRANKFURT (AP) — The U.S. dollar remained at its lower mandatory intervention point of 3.97 Deutsche marks today as speculation on a revaluation of the mark continued, dealers reported.

The Deutsche Bundesbank, West Germany's central bank, said it would continue buying dollars at the lowest intervention point.

The pound sterling dropped to 9.459 Deutsche marks from Monday's closing at 9.462. This drop was also laid to revaluation speculation.

PM Gets Boot Out of Job

He is practising kicking a football in preparation for the official opening kickoff at the Grey Cup game, Nov. 30.

He has been getting some pointers on how to boot the ball and get distance from Vic Chapman, who is on the prime minister's staff as a press officer.

Vic was an offensive end and punter for the Vancouver Lions. He played for that club from 1954 to 1958 and later joined the Edmonton Eskimos. He was also a member of the Calgary Stampeders during his football career.

He has given the prime minister some pointers on how to get that ball into the air and down the field for long yardage. Mr. Trudeau taking the advice has tried a few practice kicks.

Viscount Alexander, when he was governor-general, got the best yardage when he lofted the ball for 40 yards. The prime minister is out to beat that record.

Burnaby-Seymour, Who the H...?

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau wondered out loud in the Commons Monday "who the hell" is the MP for Burnaby-Seymour.

The member is Ray Perrault, a Liberal.

Louis Comeau (PC—South Western Nova) had asked whether Solicitor-General George McIlraith would investigate how the report of a consultant to the Company of Young Canadians fell into the hands of the member for Burnaby-Seymour.

In a stage whisper clearly audible over the Commons sound system, Mr. Trudeau said: "Who the hell is the member for Burnaby-Seymour?"

In the general laughter he did not get around to replying to Mr. Comeau's question.

Students, Press Flout Soviets In Freedom Fight

PRAGUE (AP) — Conflict mounted today between Czechoslovakia's Communist rulers and students, journalists and some workers determined to uphold freedom of the press and self-expression.

An estimated 100,000 university students in Bohemia and Moravia occupied classrooms, laboratories and corridors for the second day of a scheduled three-day sit-in strike. It supports a 10-point demand emphasizing freedom of assembly and foreign travel and a six-month limit on press censorship.

Czechoslovak journalists, targets of Soviet attacks before and after the August invasion of their country, adopted resolutions in Prague warning that liquidation of free expression and information would mean the end of the highly popular reform course launched last January.

At a meeting Monday 1,060 Prague reporters said they objected to being made scapegoats in occupied Czechoslovakia, and demanded an early meeting with government representatives to discuss "how to face together the efforts to liquidate socialist freedom of the press."

The journalists were reported ready to go on strike as a last resort.

BAN LEAFLETS

A policy resolution published today from the Nov. 14-17 session of the Communist party central committee announced the issuance of leaflets and sending of mass resolutions will be banned, and said Czechoslovakia will carry out an Ocober agreement with the Soviet Union to put press and radio "at the service of socialism."

The party resolution said Czechoslovak mass media had not been used effectively against "anti-Socialist forces." Press, radio and TV "are primarily an instrument for implementation of party and state policy" and henceforth will be used as such, it said.

The Soviet invasion is not mentioned in the resolution, but it calls on all Communists to implement the post-invasion Moscow agreement of Aug. 26 and the Oct. 18 treaty legalizing the stay of 70,000 Soviet troops.

The resolution came closer, but still fell short, of admitting Soviet charges that "counter-revolutionaries" endangered the Communist system in Czechoslovakia. It placed equal blame on the Stalinists who preceded reformist party chief Alexander Dubcek, and on right-wing, "anti-Socialist" forces it said came into prominence in the last year.

In foreign policy, the central committee proclaimed "the inviolability of our ties" to the Soviet bloc and asserted that "no other alternative ever existed for us than to belong to the Socialist system, the Warsaw treaty and actively participate in Comecon," the East European equivalent of the Common Market.

Church Observer Sees New Arab-Israeli War

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. A. C. Forrest, editor of the United Church Observer, says there is a growing fear in the Middle East that a new Arab-Israeli war is inevitable.

Mr. Forrest, writing from Syria in the December issue of the Observer, said hope is declining that Israel will come to a peaceful settlement with the Arab countries.

The minister, who is on a 10-month leave from the Observer, wrote that there is a growing suspicion that Israel plans to hold all the territory she took during the six-day war in June, 1967.

He said that a year ago after visiting Arab refugee camps and talking with Israeli spokesmen, "I was convinced that Israel would try to do a good job with the refugees she inherited. I was wrong."

"Conditions in occupied territory are worse than I expected and Arab anger is greater and a sense of hopelessness, frustration and fear that war is inevitable is general among all the churchmen and international workers I meet."

Mr. Forrest said that although many separated families in Jordan and Egypt were reunited, none of the 739 Syrians who applied through the Red Cross to return to look for lost children or parents has been permitted to go back.

In the city of Qunaytirah, which had a population of more than 15,000 before the 1967 war only 14 persons remain, he said.

Guilty of Rape

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—David John Dyck, 27, of North Vancouver, was found guilty Monday in New Westminster magistrate's court of the rape of a Burnaby woman May 31. He was remanded to Friday for sentencing.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

A strong flow of mild Pacific air has forced all the cold Arctic air northward and eastward to the continental divide. A few isolated pockets of below freezing temperatures remained in the interior but elsewhere the warm air streamed in and kept temperatures well above freezing.

Cloudy mild weather was forecast for most areas today with rain on the outer coast. A Pacific weather system moving inland on Wednesday will be accompanied by rain and followed by partial clearing and slightly colder temperatures.

THE ODD JOB SQUAD may boost the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal over the top. More than 100 students from local high schools, Uvic and the Institute of Adult Studies have volunteered to work at odd jobs and turn their earnings over to the Community Chest. The scheme was originated by members of the Anglican Youth Group, including Ann Waters (left), Peter Mortimer, Wendy Riach, Clive Hall and Christopher Luke. Anyone requiring the services of these willing workers may call 386-2220 between 9 a.m. and 10:30 p.m.

RUSSIAN ROCKETS 'CAN'T BE STOPPED'

MOSCOW (UPI)—The commander of the Soviet intercontinental ballistic missile system said today no American anti-aircraft system can stop Russian rockets.

Marshal Nikolai Krylov told the Communist newspaper Pravda that the Soviet missiles "are practically invulnerable" and could not be stopped by "any anti-aircraft defence system that the enemy has".

"The strategic rocket force is the background of the defence potential of our country," Krylov said. He told the interviewer Russian missiles can hit "any point of the globe in the minimal time and with high accuracy".

There would be a change from his former role at Johns Hopkins and the new post at Uvic, but that difference would not be difficult to adapt to, he said.

"I have made this kind of change before at other colleges. There can be a greater difference between institutions within the U.S.," he said.

"My family and I look forward to our move to Victoria and to joining the university."

Dr. Partridge, a native of Syracuse, N.Y., has two sons and two daughters, ranging in age from 14 to 19. He plans to visit the campus several times before taking office in July.

RESEARCH PROJECTS

He has done extensive travelling abroad in connection with research projects of Johns Hopkins. Assignments have taken him to Thailand, Formosa, Japan and India.

A current project involves consultation on management methods with two universities in Peru. He has also acted in this capacity with several U.S. universities.

WRITES ON LAW

Dr. Partridge has lectured and written on business law and management techniques, physics, communications, investment concepts and university administration and planning.

He took a bachelor of arts with honors in physics from Oberlin College in Ohio in 1946 and spent the following two years at the Case Institute of Technology, Cleveland, doing graduate work in nuclear physics and thermodynamics.

He then left to take an administrative post at Cazanovia College in up-state New York and added the degrees of bachelor of laws and doctor of jurisprudence to his record at Blackstone College.

Dr. Partridge has co-authored a book, College and University Business Administration, published by the American Council on Education this summer.

He has also served as chairman of the council's Commission on Administrative Affairs and as a member of the U.S. Commission on Efficiency and Economy in Government.

INVESTMENT DIRECTOR

He is a director of the Mercantile Safety Deposit and Trust Company of Baltimore and of Baltimore Equitable Insurance Society.

He is a past president of the National Association of Educational Buyers and of the Eastern Association of College and University Business Officers (both with Canadian as well as U.S. membership).

Other positions held by Dr. Partridge are: member of the editorial advisory board of College and University Business, regional commissioner of the Episocopal Diocese of Maryland; and member of the National Board of Advisors, National Association for Retarded Children.

His hobbies are theatre, sailing and travel.

Dr. Lincoln Gordon, president of Johns Hopkins, said today from Baltimore:

REGRETS LOSS

"Our deep regret at losing Dr. Patridge's services is tempered by pride in his new appointment as head of one of Canada's most rapidly growing universities.

"Bruce Partridge has made great contributions to the well-being of Hopkins during his four years in Baltimore, not only as a superb chief administrative and financial officer, but also as a most throughtful and constructive participant in the development of academic policies and programs."

. . . NORAD

ican troops would come to Canada if this country reduced its NORAD commitment.

Mr. Trudeau said this was possible but he would not suggest it was likely.

Thomas Bell, Conservative whip, asked whether the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia had upset all the government's plans.

The prime minister was closely questioned on the government's future plans for its roles in NATO and NORAD by Progessive Conservative opposition members. He confirmed that in the foreign policy review Canada's contributiin to NORAD would be re-examined just as this country's role in NATO was under intensive examination.

Mr. Trudeau said that the United States had not been consulted before the foreign policy review including a possible cut-back in Canada's contributions to NORAD was launched. Eldon Wooliams (P.C. — Calgary North) had enquired about the U.S. reaction to Canada's examination of a possible reduction in its participations in NORAD.

NOT CONSULTED

"At this stage we are trying to establish what the government policy will be in the years and decades to come," said Mr. Trudeau. "We are not consulting the United States on that.

"We want to advance our own decision-making processes on that ourselves before either coming to Parliament or going to the U.S." he said.

Youth Comes to Fore To Boost Sagging UA

By W. RALPH THOMAS

A germ of an idea that blossomed into feverish action overnight might give the sagging United Appeal campaign the momentum it needs to hit its $655,000 arget.

It started during the weekend when a few members of the Anglican Youth Group decided if they could find an hour's work a month they would donate their earnings to the Community Chest.

They approached their friends and by Monday more than 100 young people from local high schools, the University of Victoria and the Institute of Adult Studies had combined to put the scheme into action.

Enthusiasm swept the weekly United Appeal report meeting Monday when student representatives outlined the plan. Before the meeting ended, the students not only had the sanction of the United Appeal but $236 worth of pledged work.

B.C. Telephone Co. installed a telephone at the YM-YWCA to handle calls from people who want work done or from young people who wish to volunteer their services. The Community Chest printed special pledge sheets for students to use in keeping tabs on their jobs.

Some of the many odd jobs the students will do are painting, gardening, baby-sitting, car washing, Christmas decorating, house-cleaning, dog-walking, caddying, baking, window-washing and wood cutting.

Anyone wishing the services of these young people may call 385-2220 between 9 a.m. and 10:30 p.m.

Three-Year Term

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Bessie Tomah, 26, was sentenced today to three years for the fatal shooting Aug. 13 of May Egnell, 43. She was convicted of manslaughter Monday by a B.C. Supreme Court jury, after originally having been charged with non-capital murder.

Director Refutes Unwanted Charge

MONTREAL (CP) — Police Director Jean-Paul Gilbert Monday denied published reports that he has asked the police department to prepare a list of persons who should be barred from entering Canada to attend the Hemispheric Conference to End the War in Vietnam.

The Nov. 28-Dec. 1 conference is expected to attract about 2,000 delegates, including representatives from Latin America and the United States.

The director described as "without any foundation whatever" published and broadcast reports that he would appeal to the immigration department to keep at least three of the delegates out of Canada.

In his statement, Mr. Gilbert said no list of persons regarded as undesirable had been prepared.

. published report Monday said the Montreal police anti-subversive squad was preparing a report for Director Gilbert and that three delegates to the conference were branded as "undesirables."

The three were identified as:

Robert Seale, 31, a co-organizer of the California-based Negro nationalist movement, the Black Panthers; Rev. Blase Bonpane, a priest who is said to have been involved in guerrilla activities in Latin America; and Enrique Arrias, a leader of the National Conference of Students of Mexico, alleged to have been involved in student clashes with Mexican police last month.

DOESN'T OPPOSE IT

Mr. Gilbert said there never had been any question of opposing the holding of the conference or of preventing delegates from entering Canada.

"It is a question, and it remains a question, however, for the police director to meet with the immigration minister without delay so that federal government policy on the matter of the entry into Canada and Montreal of persons judged undesirable may be known."

A spokesman for the police department said accusations by organizers of the conference and others that Mr. Gilbert had attempted to discredit the conference and those taking part were "false."

The spokesman said Mr. Gilbert regretted that organizers who complained about his "attitude" towards the conference had not ascertained whether the remarks attributed to Mr. Gilbert had, in fact, been made by him.

Organizers of the Conference Monday night sent a delegation to protest before Immigration Minister MacEachen what it termed "viciously anti-democratic threats" made by Mr. Gilbert.

COAST TO COAST NEWSPAPERS SELL THE MOST

Drury Roasted By NDP

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons took on the appearance of a labor court Monday with three NDP members presiding and Treasury Board President C. M. Drury on the witness stand.

Before Mr. Drury's 1968-69 spending estimates were approved at the end of the day's sitting, the NDP "court" had roasted him roundly for government handling of its employees under new collective-bargaining legislation.

He said the treasury board, central control agency for government expenditures and the employer voice in collective bargaining, had handled recent negotiations in an "incredibly bad way," with last summer's three-week postal strike the most striking example.

He knew of nothing "more reprehensible on the part of an employer than the refusal for a period of months to make any monetary offer to the other side."

'UNIONS ARE UPSET'

He understood the board had adopted the same position in other negotiations and public service unions—who now represent some 175,000 of the 200,000 covered under the legislation—"are becoming terribly upset about the situation."

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) rose to tell the 100 or so new MPs the "sorry story" of the government's refusal to increase pension benefits to retired federal employees.

A joint parliamentary committee had unanimously recommended such increases in 1966. About once a week since then he had asked when the pension raises are coming and been told they are under study.

Mr. Drury interjected that he will discuss the matter with the cabinet but does not want to raise false hopes. Mr. Knowles said there is $3,000,000,000 in the pension fund and the interest alone exceeds the total now paid out annually.

Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) said recent pay increases granted to some 50,000 federal public employees and to an additional 100,000 members of the armed forces apparently will not be paid until January.

MUST PAY TAX?

His concern was that these employees would have to pay the new two-per-cent social development tax next year on money they earned this year. He asked Mr. Drury not to be a "stinker" by allowing this to happen.

The minister said the increases would be paid as soon as possible.

Mr. Lewis accused Mr. Drury and Prime Minister Trudeau of making public statements during one round of negotiations declaring that "in their view the six per cent which was recommended by one of the conciliators . . . was a proper and fair settlement."

Such statements subverted the negotiation process and destroyed meaningful collective bargaining.

Mr. Drury denied making such a statement. However, he thought it proper for the employer to say publicly how far he is prepared to go in negotiations.

Mr. Lewis had another bone to pick. The jobs of thousands of federal employees had been reclassified and as a result many had found their pay rates frozen.

MISS PAY BOOST

This was done unilaterally by the treasury board, as the legislation permits, Mr. Lewis said. What really bothered him was that those in frozen-pay categories have also not been granted pay increases they would have received had the reclassification not taken place.

He also felt employee unions should have been consulted and consultation did not mean being told what was about to be done unilaterally. Mr. Drury had protested that the unions were "consulted" about the changes.

Earlier Monday the Commons debated, and approved, estimates covering Parliament's spending watchdog, the auditor-general.

Gerald W. Baldwin, Conservative House leader, led opposition criticism of the government's failure to act on recommendations by the auditor-general and by the Commons public accounts committee to which he reports.

Recommendations were allowed to "wither on the vine." If the auditor-general was to play a more meaningful role, the recommendations from his office should be debated in the House. The government need not agree with them, but it should allow them to come to a vote if necessary.

Trading Advice

FINANCE MINISTER BENSON'S reported advice to the United States to avoid protectionism and work toward ever freer world trade is also excellent advice for Canada. There has been some concern in this country, as well as overseas, as to what might be expected when Mr. Nixon's presumably more conservative administration takes over the government of the United States. Hence Mr. Benson's plea to United States international trade executives to continue support of the Kennedy Round tariff reductions was timely, for there has been noticeable pressure from United States producers in recent months to whittle tariff reductions by one means or another.

But it was equally timely that Mr. Benson should have, by implication, revealed some of Canada's intentions in regard to trade. We will support the United States in any moves to reject protectionism. Our support will not be unquestioning or uncritical—another echo of Mr. Pearson's first warning several years ago that Canada-United States relations would not in future always be free and easy. Protectionist moves in the United States will result in similar measures in Canada—which Mr. Benson diplomatically described as "elsewhere". Canada is willing to explore "systematic, simultaneous and multilateral" reduction of trade barriers affecting our Atlantic and Pacific neighbors. We would welcome freer trade in forest products and non-ferrous metals.

It is interesting, and important, that Mr. Benson should have specified "multilateral" reduction of trade barriers. Frequently the cry for free trade with the United States has been raised in Canada—a move which would, of course, throw this country irretrievably into the United States economic system and remove the measure of trade sovereignty which we still retain. But Canada lives by trade and the more freely it is carried on the better. Therefore our best interests lie in multinational trade agreements: in Commonwealth, Atlantic community, hemispheric and other group arrangements for the exchange of goods.

Mr. Benson became more specific in his remarks, when he spoke of Canada's interest in removing trade barriers other than tariffs—and here he referred to quotas, classifications and other ways to circumvent tariff reductions. He spoke, too, of the problem of artificial valuation of imported goods, which can also be used to hinder trade; and cf increasing concern arising from the growth of multi-national business giants which exert so much power that they tend more and more to set their own rules. Much more will undoubtedly be heard on this score.

But it was Mr. Benson's reference to trade restrictions other than outright tariff rates that might have brought a smile to the faces of some of his American listeners, and certainly a blush to any Canadian present. For Canada itself is an offender in this regard. Our treatment of Japan, a country which buys far more from us than we import from it, has been legal but very questionable. Rather than impose quotas on Japanese imports—a move which would raise justifiable protests that we were infringing the spirit of GATT and the Kennedy Round—we have asked Japanese exporters to impose "voluntary" restrictions on their sales to us, thus cutting down on possible competition with Canadian producers. Perhaps Mr. Trudeau, like Mr. Nixon, will inaugurate some trade practices more to his liking.

Prevention Better Than Cure

THE CURRENT FLURRY IN the pound sterling and the French franc, with renewed danger to the dollar, comes only a year after Britain's currency devaluation; and it is less than that since the last turmoil in the money markets.

While some of the action is the result of unfavorable trade reports from Britain and the continuing repercussions of France's domestic rebellion last spring, it is clear that the operations of speculators greatly augment any normal variations in the currency markets. The recurring difficulties emphasize the fact that greater stability will have to be built into the international financial situation if world trade is not to suffer.

The decisions of the Kennedy Round are only now being implemented, the under-developed nations are still in need of vast aid in producing and selling exportable goods, the established industrial countries need a stable trade climate in a world where the domestic and foreign pictures frequently show social upheaval. With the orderly development of trade so vital a factor in world prosperity and world peace, the task of stabilizing the major currencies surely is a top priority matter.

The sudden raids on exchange which have featured the past year particularly, should not dominate a progressive world economy. Rescue action taken by the World Bank and the allies of stricken countries after disaster threatens represents effort that would be better applied to preventive moves. Earlier market support with the backing of massive funds would do much to even out the course of monetary dealings and help to deter speculative action which disturbs the medium of trade exchange and hence trade itself.

No Truncheons Swinging

AS BRITISH AUTHORITIES ANalyse the absence of violence that had been expected in October demonstrations, high credit is paid to London's police. When massed protesters marched on Grosvenor Square on October 27, the police, under the direction of Commander John Lawler, of New Scotland Yard, refused to join in brawling and so avoided creating a synthetic feeling of unity among the demonstrators.

In addition, Vietnam, while a cause of deep concern, did not inspire sufficient ardor to make martyrs of those protesting. Moreover, since the ranks of the demonstrators contained champions of so many causes, they lacked cohesion. The attitude of the police appeared to be the most effective factor in avoiding riot. No clubs were swung, no water-cannon was brought into play, no brutality touched a spark to potential violence.

There is no suggestion in the thoughtful study of last month's non-violence to suggest that heads might not be cracked in the future if some more volatile issue erupts. But outside the American Embassy in London in October, an old truism found expression: It takes two to make a fight and the police, striving to maintain order—and doing it successfully—were not belligerent. The moderation of their activities apparently encouraged moderation by the demonstrators—a point that deserves note many miles away from Grosvenor Square.

New Plans to Settle Indian Claims

THERE appeared on the House of Comomns order paper last Tuesday a resolution in the name of Mr. Chretien, which may well have been on the prime minister's mind when he offered his controversial comments at Kingston about racial strife and threats to social stability in the United States and Canada. The resolution heralds a measure to provide for the disposition of Indian claims and the establishment of an Indian claims commission. This may have a rather familiar ring because an essentially similar motion, followed by a bill was introduced in 1963, the first year of the Pearson administration. No action was taken at that time and a second bill, which appeared in May, 1965, (Mr. Nicholson being at the time the responsible minister) was also barren of results.

Western

At the outset the idea was that a draft bill would provoke discussions among the Indian people across the country leading to representations which might be helpful to Parliament in its consideration of the problem. Throughout Mr. Arthur Laing's term as minister of Indian affairs, there was however a more specific barrier to legislation. This was the fear of Indians in British Columbia that their interests might be prejudiced by such an approach.

West Coast Difference

The difficulty is that the position of the Indians, on the West Coast is quite different from that which exists, for example in the Prairie provinces. It has always been assumed that there existed everywhere an aboriginal title to the lands and that this had to be extinguished before they could be appropriated for the general use. The Canadian government, as the heir of the imperial authority, honored this theory by entering into treaties with the various tribes and bands. When British Columbia entered Confederation, however, there had been no settlement except in regard to a tract in the southern part of Vancouver Island. Apart from certain payments, which might be categorized as conscience money, there has been none since.

In these circumstances, it was the view of various Indian groups in British Columbia that adjudication was inappropriate. What was required was negotiation between the Indians and the government. In deference to this strong opinion, Mr. Laing did not proceed with the claims legislation.

Complicating the problem was the fact that the Indians, represented by about five different organizations, could not agree among themselves as to the course to be followed. No progress proved possible, despite repeated warnings by the government that delay could not be indefinite since it was plainly contrary to the interests of other, and increasingly impatient, Indian groups elsewhere in the country.

Evidently there has now been a decision in Ottawa that further postponements could not be justified. The resolution, as introduced, is in one respect a clear improvement over that of 1963 because it provides specifically for assistance to Indian bands in preparing and pursuing their claims. It thus meets an important criticism levelled against the original bill.

The commission will have to concern itself with a span of history going back to the proclamation of 1963 and to deal with treaties covering a wide variety of situations. Some of them date from a rather misty period for which records are incomplete with the result that certain claims (based, for example, on the so-called gur shot treaty) are of doubtful historical validity.

But, in general, the commission will face three categories of grievances. The first group relate to treaties and land settlements, the terms of which in the Indian view have not been honorably implemented. Then there are treaties which provide for land settlements but did not in fact result in allotments being made. (This was the case in the Mackenzie Valley.) Finally the commission will have to consider how justice can best be done in cases, such as that of the British Columbia Indians, where the aboriginal title to land has not been extinguished.

This is to be a judicial commission, with appeal possible to an Indian claims appeal court. It follows that it cannot limit its examination to the people who have been traditionally the responsibility of the Indian affairs department. For the aboriginal title must have existed in all the original inhabitants of the land including the Eskimos who in law, if not in racial extraction, have been adjudged by the highest court to be Indian people.

Another 'Measure for Measure'

Last week, you published a letter which criticized a lengthy, frightfully verbose and confused play named "Measure for Measure," for depicting Vienna as "a sinful Sodom, teeming with lechery." The writer, purportedly a native of Vienna, went on to defend his city and conjecture as to why such a play should be presented. At first I thought it was a practical joke, but your printing of a subsequent letter indicates to me that some people have taken the original letter seriously. I therefore feel compelled to make a rebuttal.

In his letter, Mr. Berger left out two important facts that your readers ought to know. Firstly, "Measure for Measure" is not set in modern Vienna, but in Vienna about 450 years ago. This presumably antedates Mr. Berger's fond memories of that fair city. Secondly, the "scribbler" who wrote this "artistically worthless" play is none other than William Shakespeare, generally acknowl[illegible] to be the greatest playwright that ever lived.

The Theatre Division of the University of Victoria was in part performing a service in presenting this play, as "Measure for Measure" is a required piece in an undergraduate English course with an enrollment of over 500 students. Apparently the English Department doesn't agree that the play is artistically worthless! The crowd that so scandalized Mr. Berger, moreover, was often criticized by the directors and by audience members alike for appearing too much like an apple-cheeked college football crowd rather than a crude, lascivious, bloodthirsty, vulgar, Elizabethan mob.

I know; I acted in the crowd!

Incidentally, your own reviewer, Mr. Editor, an experienced critic, was very enthusiastic in her praise of "Measure for Measure."—Dennis Johnston, 1358 Craigdarroch.

Victoria theatre-goers who miss seeing the light-hearted comedy "Generation", now playing at the McPherson Theatre, are certainly cheating themselves. It's real fun and good professional acting.—Gwen Cash, 350 Douglas Street.

Shortening the Tether on Mr. Thieu

PRESIDENT-elect Nixon is off to a good start in his conduct of foreign policy. He caught the ball that South Vietnamese President Thieu threw at him, and threw it back. This at least is the opinion of members of President Johnson's outgoing Democratic administration as well as of those associated with Mr. Nixon during this transition period. Both sides believe Mr. Thieu raised his objections to the U.S.-North Vietnam understanding on expansion of the Paris Peace talks as a stalling move to seek greater advantage from a suposedly more 'hawkish" Nixon administration.

Purser

Mr. Nixon did not fall for it, and he ruined Mr. Thieu's move—or so it is hoped here—with his important statement last week following his White House meeting with Mr. Johnson. In this statement he gave assurance that as far as he was concerned, Mr. Johnson could speak on foreign policy not just for this administration but for the nation, and that means for the next administration as well.

The move established continuity in foreign policy, rescuing Mr. Johnson from a dangerous "lame duck" status between now and January 20. It also enabled his administration to unburden itself of some strongly held feelings about the Vietnam situation, without fear of contradiction from the Nixon camp.

Outgoing Defence Secretary Clark Clifford was the chosen spokesman. In one of the longest answers on record to a press conference question, he delivered a tirade to the effect that Mr. Thieu had doublecrossed Mr. Johnson by going back on an agreement after Mr. Johnson had become committed to it. With Mr. Thieu later saying in diplomatic language that Mr. Clifford is a liar (his statement, Mr. Thieu said, "contains several points that are not correct"), the ill-will between Washington and Saigon is out in the open. And the impending change of administration here now holds no crumb for Saigon.

Threat

The key point of Mr. Clifford's presentation was, of course, his threat that the U.S. may go ahead and negotiate with North Vietnam whether South Vietnam joins the talks or not. U.S. officials, whose real annoyance is unmistakable, are fed up with the soft persuasion approach to Saigon and are billing Mr. Clifford's remarks as the start of a "get tough" policy. President Johnson wants to leave office with real progress made toward a Vietnam settlement and to that end will try to force South Vietnam into talks or, failing that, go ahead without it.

As of Wednesday, South Vietnam remained intransigent. The information minister told the press in Saigon that if North Vietnam and the U.S. meet, "their conclusions certainly will be of no validity at all."

Saigon in Trap

But if officials here are right, this is nonsense. They feel that the U.S. has Saigon in a trap and that the job now is to get Thieu and Co. to realize it. "The dog is wagging the tail for a change," it is being observed around here.

Mr. Clifford's remarks on this point deserve careful note. "There are a great many subjects that can be covered between the United States and Hanoi of a military nature," he said, "and that's our real function. We have not anticipated that we would get into the political settlement of South Vietnam. That is up to South Vietnam and Hanoi.

"But we can work out arrangements with Hanoi that would be very valuable. We could work out steps that could lead to a diminution in the level of the combat . . . and begin to work out programs that would call for the withdrawal both of North Vietnamese forces and of American forces."

The true U.S. purpose should surely shine through these words. It is not being stated publicly in all its baldness, but it is being admitted more and more frankly inside both the Johnson and Nixon camps. It is to "de-Americanize" the war, to use a euphemism, or to "liquidate the American involvement," to use another. In any terminology, it means to get the U.S. forces back home and leave Saigon to its own resources as regards a political settlement.

Any agreement North Vietnam and the U.S. may make with regard to the disposition of their respective forces is obviously valid, whatever South Vietnamese ministers may say about it. If the forces go, they go. While negotiations to this effect may prove exceedingly difficult, Saigon will be better situated in the event of their success if it is involved in them from the start. Intransigence by Saigon will only increase the momentum of the U.S. drive to rid itself of the whole business, further weakening the U.S. definition of the "honorable" settlement politicians have prattled about for years, and leaving the U.S. with less need to save face in withdrawing.

Commitment

It is considered here that Saigon would be wise to realize these points. Saigon might also realize that despite the supposed relative "hawkishness" of Republicans as opposed to Democrats, and of some of Mr. Nixon's past utterances, Mr. Nixon is flatly committed to ending the U.S. role in the Vietnam war. It was stated repeatedly during his campaign, with less and less qualification as time went on. Together with his reminder that the Eisenhower administration of which he was a part got the U.S. out of one war (Korea) and kept it out of others for eight years, it invariably got the biggest response from his audiences.

Some people in the team now shaping up around Mr. Nixon believe he has only about a year to get the boys home from Vietnam and so end the hated draft, which is destroying the morale of an entire generation. Otherwise, they say, the domestic malaise that destroyed one presidency will just as surely destroy the next.

Looking Back

From the Times, Nov. 19, 1908.

The school board met today in an informal way with architect Watkins of Hooper and Watkins, and considered the new school building to be located on the property bounded by Chambers Street, Princess Street and Queens Avenue.

Members of the board were pleased with the plan submitted with respect to its interior design, but most of them thought that a little more embellishment might be put on the roof. They felt it was too plain.

'Trustworthy' Definition

Toronto Daily Star

No doubt Canadians should feel flattered by the recent Gallup poll which showed that Americans regard Canada as the most trustworthy foreign country.

It is a real mark of confidence — a credit card on an international scale.

The warm glow fades a little, however, when one looks at the other countries our neighbors consider trustworthy. The list is a short one — Britain, Australia and Switzerland.

Canada, Britain and Australia are all English-speaking countries closely tied to the U.S. system of alliances. Switzerland is a small country which has maintained a policy of neutrality for centuries.

The suspicion arises that the American definition of "trustworthy" is "unlikely to act in a way contrary to the interests of the United States."

Polluted Planet Headed Toward Disaster

By JOHN DAVY

A few centuries ago, men used to plant oaks which would take 500 years to mature. They must have had a quite different relationship to time.

Today, we peer a mere 30 years ahead through a haze of unreality. The plan-span of most governments extends no farther than the next election, and more usually not beyond the next budget.

For the average citizen, long-range planning means looking at holiday brochures in January and dreaming about next August.

A few uneasy paragraphs appeared in the newspapers recently following the revelation that North Sea gas may run out in two or three decades.

First of Two Articles

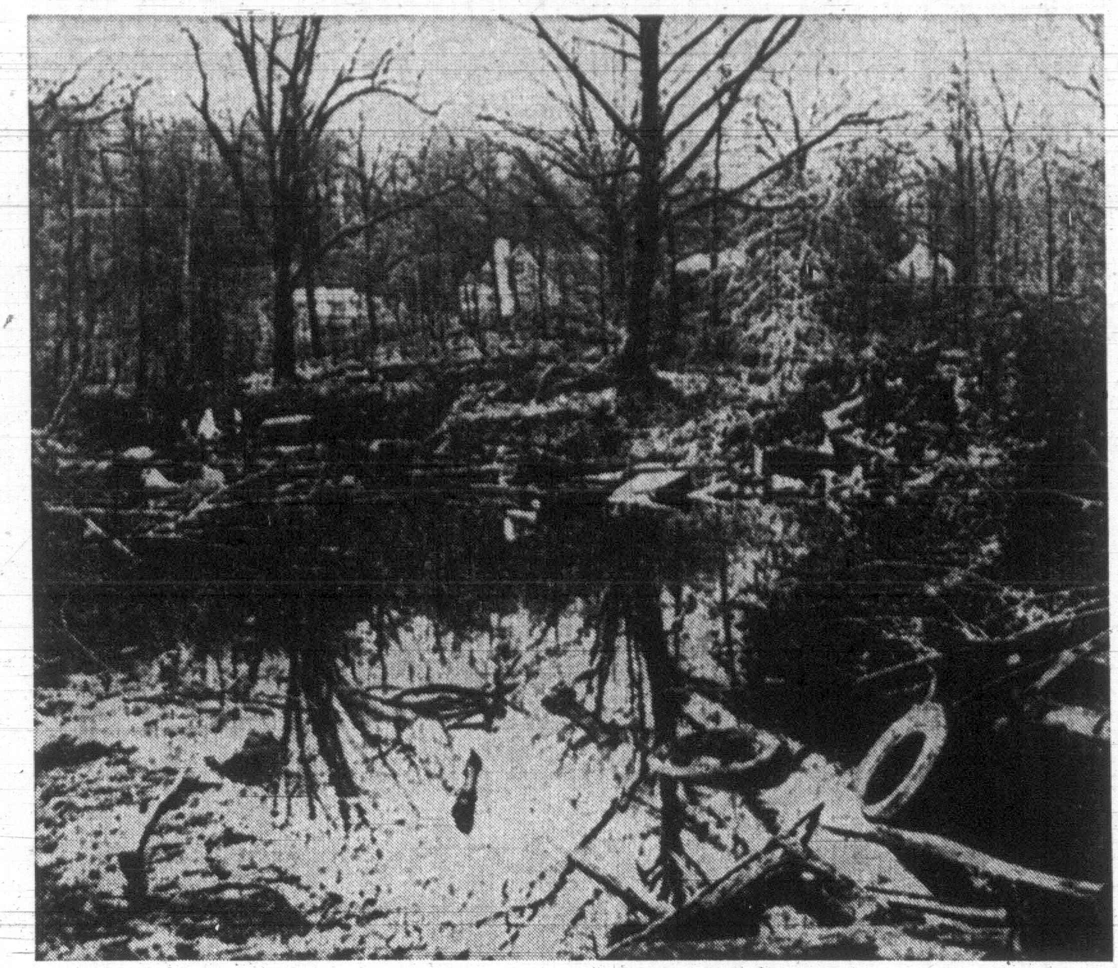
The idea of looking so far ahead — let alone four or five centuries, as the oak planters did—now preoccupies only the science-fiction writers.

Yet within the next 30 years, not only North Sea gas, but a vast variety of more easily accessible resources on which we now depend will be running low.

This assumes that we survive the more immediate problems of land, food, population and water supply which show every sign of compounding a major planetary crisis within the lifetimes of everyone under 45.

Most people perceive that we live in a most unusual period of history, that we have become quite remarkably inventive in technology, that there are a lot of cars and airplanes about, more noise and fumes, that life is crowded and somewhat tiring. But it is not easily realized, with full imaginative force, what we are doing to the planet.

Five hundred years from now, one thing is quite certain. Historians — if there are any — will look back on the twentieth century as a time when men plunged into reckless, transformation and exploitation of their global environment quite without precedent.



Junk, tons of it, dumped everywhere

Incredible Confidence

They will study with awe our incredible confidence that something would turn up — new techniques, new resources, new discoveries.

They will survey, with cold shivers running down their spines, the insouciance with which we exposed the delicate, and to us largely mysterious, balances in nature and in our own bodies to new and ingenious stresses and environmental insults each year.

They will examine, dumbfounded, how we blundered somehow into the twenty-first century, and contrived, by means which are still obscure to ourselves, to preserve a world capable of supporting further historians.

But they may also ring with a red pencil the 1960s and 70s as a period when growing numbers of men, including a swelling proportion of respected scientists, began to perceive with full clarity the need for urgent action.

In September, delegates from all over the world attended a UNESCO conference in Paris to degate 'the scientific basis for the rational use and conservation of the resources of the biosphere.'

In other words, they were wondering if we know how to keep the earth habitable. Soon there seems likely to be a monster UN conference to survey the same ground.

The immediate effect of conferences of this kind is to provide remunerative employment for typists and generate stacks of paper. But they also have two less tangible but positive effects. They help to create a climate of opinion and intention which supports campaigners trying to get their Governments to take these problems seriously.

For it is the accumulation which needs to be appreciated. The water engineer perceives that his problems of the next 10 years are difficult, but apparently soluble.

Population Explosion

The agriculturist sees a chance of stepping up production which may just fend off mass starvation for the next generation. The municipal engineers hope they can just about dispose of a rising tide of sewage.

It is when these and many other environmental problems are surveyed as a whole, in a 30- or 40-year perspective, that some sense of the effort needed to keep the earth habitable emerges.

The population explosion is the most familiar of these looming planetary stresses, and it is fundamental to the rest. For while twentieth-century man would undoubtedly have done drastic things to his environment with a static population, he is doing a lot more with an exploding one.

In 1860 the world's population was probably about 1,000 million, and it is thought to have taken 200,000 years to reach that figure. Sixty years later, it had doubled. By 1975 it will have doubled again, to reach 4,000 million.

By the end of this century 6,000 million citizens are confidently expected to be living or partly living on earth, and if there is no pause, children now being born could spend their old age among 12,000 million others.

If the earth were all covered with earth, so to speak, there would be no immediate problem. But it isn't. Three-quarters of the globe is covered by sea.

Half of the land is uninhabitable, being covered with snow, ice, deserts, rocky peaks, etc. We have to share what is left — about 25 million square miles. British citizens live in one of the most crowded corners.

Even shared out, we could each expect about one acre of the British Isles; Americans would get 12 acres each.

We are eating into this land at an alarming rate. In the United States, a baby is born every 12 seconds and a car every five seconds. The two together set up a new demand for living space and road space which eats away two acres of countryside every minute.

Urban expansion may swallow up a sixth of Britain's farmland between now and the end of the century. This is the land — a foot or so of fertile topsoil with a few more feet below — on which our terrestrial existence ultimately depends.

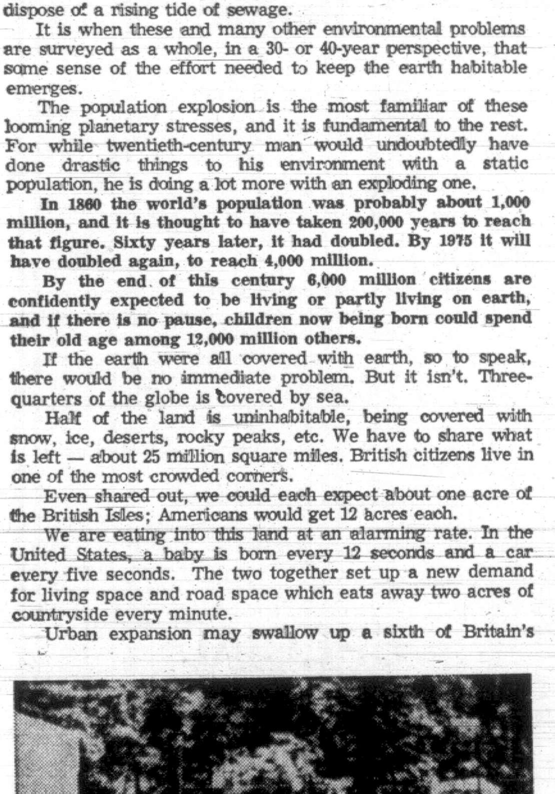
Centuries ago, goats were eating parts of the Middle East bare; Merino sheep gnawed away at the hills of Spain; iron smelters cleared Scottish hillsides of trees, and millions of tons of fertile soil were washed steadily into the sea.

However, the American dust bowls of the 1930s set new standards of environmental destructiveness. Partly as a result, the whole problem of 'conservation' of the environment has attracted more energetic attention in the U.S. than anywhere else.



A messy problem

Greedy, Ignorant Farming

Meanwhile, greedy and ignorant farming and timber felling, coupled with urban growth, are spreading to sub-tropical and tropical regions, where both the soils and the populations are far worse equipped to cope with the stresses that result.

The soils of tropical forests, accumstomed to warm semi-darkness, collapse and disintegrate when trees are cleared, and wash away in the next rains.

And urban growth often means malignant expansion of shanty towns and settlements. The advanced nations of the world are deeply preoccupied with preserving some kind of habitable conditions in their cities.

The shanty towns are growing up with none of the services which are just enabling European and American cities to hold their own.

Yet it has been estimated that urban growth in undeveloped regions is now going ahead far faster than in developed regions.

Between 1920 and the end of this century, the urban population of the developed countries is expected to quadruple; the urban population of underdeveloped countries will multiply 20 times, so that nearly twice as many people will be town dwellers in poor regions as in rich.

The rich are now discovering the enormous overheads of city living, the vast investment and maintenance involved in keeping the great conurbations functioning at all (and even then, there is horrible decay in the centres of places like Chicago).

There seems little prospect that the poor regions will be able to invest even a fraction of what will be needed to prevent the development of tropical slums which will make Chicago's ghettos seem like a Garden of Eden.

To appreciate the problems, it help to look in more detail at one or two of the urban problems of advanced countries. Take the generation of waste, an activity pioneered with special energy in the U.S. which shows the shape of things to come.

Each American citizen produces some three-quarters of a ton of solid refuse per year, and this thriving industry is growing at 4 per cent per year.

Los Angeles alone dumps 12 million cubic yards of refuse each year into tips and landfills. The wonders of the modern packaging industry mean that a growing proportion of this refuse is virtually indestructible — 48,000 million aluminium cans are discarded annually, 28,000 million long-lived jars and bottles, and uncounted plastic containers and wrappings. If they are incinerated, there is an air-pollution problem.

Giant car-dumps are a familiar feature of the landscape, and have prompted the development of colossal plants which grind up old cars into small bits. Mining companies are said to be eyeing certain American scrap-heaps as a potentially richer source of minerals than those provided by nature.

Even more formidable is the U.S. sewage industry, which by the year 2000 will be dealing with almost 37,000 million gallons of municipal sewage a day, or about 132 gallons per head per day. In Britain, the current flow is about 30 gallons per head per day, to which are added 1,300 million gallons a day of industrial effluent.

It is currently costing us some £133 million a year to treat and dispose of the country's sewage and industrial effluent, and the cost is expected to double within a few years.

5,000 River Miles Gone

In Britain we are exceptionally fortunate in that no city is very far from the sea and we have relatively abundant water to sluice away our wastes. Even so, a survey in 1958 showed that over 5,000 miles of rivers were polluted, often grossly.

The Water Pollution Laboratory is just completing a second survey, and preliminary indications are that there have been some improvements (notably in the Thames, following a gigantic £40 million treatment and disposal scheme recently completed by the GLC). But even so, rivers near cities are often dead, smelly and totally unfit for bathing.

The latest sewage problem comes from the urbanization of farming. Instead of depositing their manure as precious fertilizer on fields, animals on factory farms have the equivalent of running water and flushing toilets.

The result is vast quantities of odorous slurry, which is becoming a major disposal problem. The National Farmers' Union recently protested that if the river authorities enforced current anti-pollution regulations, British farmers might have to invest £250 million by 1972 to control their farm wastes.

Thus we have the weird spectacle of farmers buying in subsidized fertilizer from the chemical industry, and operating a subsidized farming system which may need more subsidies to dispose of the unsubsidized fertilizer produced free by the animals.

The rivers are not our only sinks. We use the air as well. It is estimated that into the air over the U.S. there are dumped annually 65 million tons of carbon monoxide, 23 million tons of sulphur compounds, 15 million tons of oil and sooty substances, 12 million tons of dust, eight million tons of gases and vapors.

Tons of Smoke and Gas

It is predicted that even with severe controls, these amounts will more than double by the end of the century.

In Britain, there is a parallel situation, with an emission of one and a half million tons of grit and ash, two million tons of smoke and five million tons of sulphur gases annually. The Ministry of Technology estimates that resulting corrosion, soiling and other damage is costing £350 million a year.

These are some of the gross features of the situation. They add up to a very expensive and messy problem. But they also add up to something more.

For despite our best efforts we are releasing into the environment substances and processes never before encountered by the living organisms of the planet, including ourselves.

Some of the effects we understand. Detergents have fouled our waterways with foam, and are still liable to block the bacterial digestive processes in sewage works.

"Soft" detergents, which can be attacked by bacteria, are solving the first problem, and a solution has also been found to the second. But many effects we do not fully understand.

People in towns get more lung cancer than people in the country, irrespective of how much they smoke. Air pollution may be involved, but the details are obscure.

Rainfall Becomes Acid

Rainfall over parts of Europe has become increasingly acid, almost certainly because of pollution by sulphur gases from oil burning. Acid rain appears to be depressing the yield of Scandinavian forests. It may be having other effects. We don't know.

Traces of pesticides are now found in virtually all animals and man, including Antarctic penguins. Some animals, particularly birds of prey, accumulate large amounts through food chains. Their eggs may be sterile.

In the U.S. 400 new chemicals come on the market each year. They are commonly tested for direct health hazards. But after use they are disposed of — and sooner or later they or their breakdown products become involved in biological processes of one kind or another, most of which we know little or nothing about.

It is no help to go round prophesying doom. The fact that we survive at all in an urban environment is a demonstration of the rugged resilience of biological systems, which have a built-in ability to resist stresses and bounce back after injury.

Nevertheless, there have recently been some unpleasant environmental surprises, and there are certainly more in store. The sheer variety and scale of the things we are doing to the planet suggest that a variety of biological balances must be near breaking-point.

A growing number of biologists and ecologists (whose speciality is the interactions between communities of living things) have begun to utter serious warnings about these trends — some of which could conceivably upset not only local but global balances.

Spying Has Become 'Gentleman's Crime'

By WALTER GORLITZ
Die Welt

The number of confirmed and suspected spy cases in and around Bonn during recent weeks raises the question of the real circumstances which prevail in the free part of Germany with its newly strengthened economy and the obvious decline in moral standards.

◆

Basically the slogan of the day is: Down with the nation—long live society! "Nation" is a historical, political concept and "society" is a sociological concept.

The fashionable educational force is not history; the educational factors of the current era are sociology, psychology and political science.

These subjects concern scientists who in the second and third instances are still arguing about their own, exact function. Today character studies are replaced by psychograms. Character no longer counts as an educational factor.

Modern society is described as an "open" or "pluralistic" form of existence. This does not make the term "society" any more precise.

At bottom the term means nothing more than the agglomeration of producers and consumers who live in an area characterized by geographical and historical circumstances; sociologists and political scientists are only too willing to ignore the latter point.

The German nation faces two major tasks: re-unification and unifying Europe. European unity can only be achieved on the basis of one German nation which, in this instance, will have to make certain concessions.

The second fact, which is similarly disputed, is that the people of divided Germany are living amidst a concealed civil war, though this country is one of the most important economic powers in Europe.

If the democratic government announces that it desires detente, that it wants to pursue its ends only by peaceful means, then it becomes doubly suspect in the eyes of the huge, totalitarian police states with their frightening need to know and control everything.

So long as the struggle as to whether Marxism should be established throughout Europe has not been settled or eliminated, then Central Europe will continue to be exceedingly "interesting" as an arena for espionage.

The people of this country will be ill-equipped to resist temptations if they are satisfied with vague talk about society and in addition try to outdo one another in their disdain for the constitution and the nation.

In the technological era, espionage involves a thousand aspects of life apart from the classic state secrets involving military, diplomatic and government affairs.

Technology has created undreamed-of possibilities as regards espionage.

The bureaucracies which exist in both democratic and totalitarian societies mean that the number of people in possession of secrets or who communicate secrets—one only needs to think of post office staff—has increased considerably and it is difficult to keep a check on them.

Conversely, Parkinson's Law has also affected spy and counter-espionage networks. Sub-division of labor and specialization, which can be observed in all bureaucracies, have become grotesque in some respects.

In the "open society" which scorns everything which has anything to do with national sentiment and perhaps for this very reason is violently hated by some young people, dividing lines are becoming fluid. Espionage is almost becoming a gentleman's crime like tax evasion.

Obviously the apparatus for state and constitional security must be tightened up, coordinated and made more effective as soon as possible — not after the next elections.

Everything else depends on an educational challenge which has not yet been mastered, teaching people to be loyal to the constitution of the democratic nation.

Toronto Declines Again

For the fourth day in succession the Toronto stock market slipped today, after reaching record levels last week.

The New York market presented a scrambled picture as profit-taking and reinvestment hit the most active stocks. Trading was active.

Mines suffered a decline in morning trade in Vancouver.

AT TORONTO, in industrials, CPR fell 2¼ to 72¾, White Pass and Yukon 1⅞ to 23½, Nabors Drilling 1⅝ to 14⅞ and Dylex Diversified 1½ to 66½. Great West Life was up 5¼ to 69 and Canadian Goldale 2 to 24.

Asamera was up ¾ to 13¾ and Canadian Superior Oil ⅜ to 52½. Charter Oil fell ½ to 16.

AT NEW YORK, Lionel, up more than two points, paced the list on volume as it made a 20-per-cent gain in a wave of speculative buying.

20th Century-Fox, Abacus, Gulf and Western, McDowell Douglas and Signal Co. rose more than a point each while Ling-Tenco-Vought sank two and Chrysler and Marcor Inc. lost about a point.

Du Pont gained 2, Control Data 3, Atlantic Richfield 3, Pfizer, Boeing, Goodrich, General Foods, International Paper, M-G-M and Westinghouse Electric a point or more.

Chrysler and Ford lost more than a point each. General Motors sank about a point.

Levy lost ⅞ to 33¼, CPR ⅝ to 74½, Bell Canada ⅝ to 46⅝, CAE ⅜ to 11½ and Royal Bank ⅜ to 23½.

Fleetwood dropped ½ to 24 despite a substantial improvement in consolidated net income for the nine month period ended Sept. 30 and 81 cents a share, compared with 24 cents in 1967.

Canadian International Paper climbed 2½ to 41 and Southam 1 to 58.

Among the most active traders, Enamel A added 1 to 7½ and Stelco ⅜ to 27⅜. Bank of Montreal slid ⅛ to 15⅞ and Trizec 10 cents to $2.75.

AT LONDON the stock market was quiet and generally dull today under the influence of unresolved currency uncertainties and fears of further economic restrictions.

Canadian stocks that did well included Trans-Canada Pipeline, Hiram Walker and Noranda. Imperial Oil and International Nickel were among the few dull spots.

Leading British industrials declined in most cases, Glaxo and Unilever NV being prominent losers. Bowater paper eased. Hudson's Bay moved up. Canadian banks made headway.

AT VANCOUVER mining issues had their worst day of the month in pre-noon trade today.

Buttle Lake, a heavy gainer recently, slipped as low as $3.20 before returning to $3.65 for a los of .10. Arlington was down .08 at .70 on 190,800 shares and Coast Silver dipped .15 to $2.55.

One of the few issues to improve was Churchill, up .25 to $6.40.

In the oils, Allied Roxana lost .20 to $1.40 and Stampede was .10 weaker at $6.90.

Sun "A" was $1 better at $30 in the industrials and Scott Paper rose .37 to $27.50.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Oats, barley and rye showed little activity to the close of trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. Most grains and oilseeds were on an easier price pattern after a moderate volume of trade.

In flaxseed, fairly liberal selling by locals and commission houses and some hedge offerings forced the December future down more than three cents. May and July features were fairly steady due to moderate absorption by commercial interests.

Lakehead prices for Class Two, IWA and domestic wheat all were down ⅛ cent.

Car Insurance At Crossroads

By CALUDE KOPROWSKI
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The auto insurance industry in America is at a crossroads. It has been criticized for soaring premium rates and for policies which, some observers allege, are discriminatory and arbitrary.

The industry also enjoys a special status amoug U.S. businesses. By congressional exemptions, it is free to fix prices. By the nature of its operation it also has access to interest-free capital—in the form of premiums.

Because Congress gave the industry its unique status and because of the criticisms levelled at it, the auto insurance business is being investigated by the Senate anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee and studied by the department of transportation.

In asking Congress to authorize a departmental study, secretary of transportation Alan S. Boyd said, "in some areas premiums have gone up more than 30 per cent in the last half-dozen years. Increases from $50 to $100 paid by the average family have been common in the period since 1961."

MAJOR ALLEGATION

He summarized major allegations against the industry as follows:

- Auto insurance policies are frequently cancelled in what appears to be an arbitrary fashion, and some groups—the young, old, military, minorities—find it hard to get coverage.
- Claims are processed too slowly.
- Small injury claims are often overcompensated while larger claims go undercompensated.
- Too often, insurance claims end in litigation.

In addition, Philip Hart, chairman of the Senate anti-trust and monopoly sub-committee, charges that some insurance company adjustment manuals discriminated against persons with yellow teeth, or dirty fingernails, or against persons who scratched a lot and cracked their knuckles.

James S. Kemper Jr., president of the Kemper Insurance Group, said very few companies to his knowledge used such discriminatory procedures.

He added, "We (the industry) have voluntarily given up all rights to cancellations. Now we do it only if people don't pay their bills or lose their drivers' licences. We will no longer not renew a policy without giving written notice of reason. Some of us have even done special things like guaranteeing renewal for older people for life."

Kemper admitted that rising insurance rates were a problem but felt, as did Allstate's vice-president, George H. Kline, these were beyond the control of insurance companies. They blame inflation and rising medical costs.

Kline pointed to the spiralling death and injury rates on highways—52,000 dead and 4.5 million injured this year, according to one insurance group.

'Negative Drilling Results'

TORONTO (CP) — Mining promoters George and Viola MacMillan spent $100,000 for property in Timmins and found themselves with negative drilling results, Crown prosecutor Rod Cormack said Monday.

The MacMillans have pleaded not guilty to charges of affecting the market price of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd., in 1964 by deceit, falsehood and other fraudulent means and of unlawfully defrauding the public.

"Public interest in Timmins property had diminished and it was necessary to pretend that a drill hole was incomplete," Mr. Cormack said at the trial.

"Good drill results are expected to move the market upward. Mrs. MacMillan had held the stock to 55 or 60 cents when drilling started.

STOCK DROPS

Mr. Cormack said the MacMillans made $1,400,000 in three days trading in Windfall stock. Once the stock was found to be virtually worthless, it dropped overnight to 80 cents from $4.28, he said.

The MacMillans, in the docket when the trial opened Monday, later were permitted to sit behind their counsel, J. J. Robinete, Joseph Sedgwick and Kelso Roberts, former attorney-general of Ontario.

Mr. Cormack said Windfall was selling at 56 cents a share when the Toronto Stock Exchange closed on Friday, July 3, 1964. He said the MacMillans were notified the next day that the drill hole on the Timmins property was worth virtually nothing, but added that they continued to act optimistically.

Mr. Cormack said that on the following Monday Windfall opened at $1.01 and rose sharply with 1,574,520 shares traded compared with 2,480,000 during the previous three months.

The trial before Judge Harry Demen continues.

Mission Opens 'New Phase'

BRASILIA (AP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Monday the Canadian ministerial trade mission he leads has opened "a new phase" in commercial relations with Brazil.

Earlier Costa e Silva had expressed hope the trip by the Canadian mission, a 35-member group on a fact-finding tour of nine Latin American countries, fould lead to "improved commercial rellations" between the two countries.

Meanwhile it was learned that Sharp had urged Brazil to sign the nuclear non-proliferation treaty. Foreign ministry sources said he had done so during private conversations with Brazilian Foreign Minister Jose de Magalhaes Pinto.

Brazil is a leader of a small group of nations who oppose the treaty because they fear they will be prevented from manufacturing nuclear explosives for peaceful uses.

Sharp said commercial relations between Brazil and Canada have "not been properly explored," noting that last year Canada only bought $34,400,000 worth of goods from Brazil, and sold only $27,500,000 to Brazil.

Asked about possible Canadian participation in the Organization of American States, Sharp said preliminary soundings with Venezuela, Colombia, Peru, Chile, Argentina, Brazil, Mexico, Guatemala and Costa Rica had shown that most are "indifferent" about the prospect of Canadian entry.

He did not say whether Canada plans to join.

AMC Reports First Profit Since 1965

DETROIT (AP) — American Motors Corp. has reported a profit of $11.7 million for its fiscal year ended September 30 last. It was the first time AMC had been in the black since it registered a profit of $5.2 million in 1965.

AMC said the 1967-68 profit was equal to 61 cents a share, but the company for the 13th consecutive quarter omitted payment of a dividend to stockholders. The last dividend was 12.5 cents paid Aug. 2, 1965.

American Motors lost $75.8 million for the year ended September 30, 1967, and its 1965 profit was equal to only 27 cents a share.

'Politics Threat on Campus' If Students Rejoin Union

Party politics on campus will result if the University of Victoria students' council votes to rejoin the Canadian Union of Students, a councillor said Monday.

Paul Watson, student activities co-ordinator for the Alma Mater Society, was reacting to a Sunday move to re-enter CUS following a visit by president-elect Martin Loney and other CUS officials.

Groups with opposed political viewpoints will begin facing each other at election time, vyin; for student support, Mr. Watson said.

He charged council was swayed by Mr. Loney, a "fantastic speaker who mesmerized the whole council."

He also charged CUS has become "overly misrepresentative of the majority of students" and has upset students across the country.

PARTY POLITICS

Any attempt by the AMS to rejoin CUS — only three weeks after withdrawal from the national union — will force "a move to political parties on campus," he said.

"A conservative slate is going to appear. And here will be a Liberal slate and a radical slate who will caucus to decide what their approach in meetings will be.

"I disagree with the over-all trend of CUS. They're becoming socialistic — almost communistic," Mr. Watson said.

"To keep universities in they will have to change their tactics. But if we go back in now, they won't change at all."

"A petition to council (three weeks ago) had 700 signatures to get out of CUS. I haven't seen a petition to stay in," he said.

"I hope the students impeach the council if they go back into CUS."

Mr. Watson was supported in his argument by several other councillors and said he expected seven members of the AMS to vote against re-entry next Sunday.

Indians Want Friendship Centre Here

A public meeting to discuss the establishment of an Indian Friendship Centre here will be held in the Institute of Adult Studies common room on Monday.

It will start at 8 p.m.

Friendship centres have been established in Port Alberni, Nanaimo and Vancouver to help Indian people moving in from reserves to adjust themselves to urban life.

In the past few years there has been a steady influx of Indian families to the city, particularly from isolated reserves on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

In addition there are about 130 Indian students taking courses at the Institute of Adult Studies and another 100 attending high school They come from all parts of the province.

Harry Dick, 422 Dallas, chairman of a steering committee, said 17 tribes on southern Vancouver Island want a centre.

"It will provide a meeting place for Indians arriving in Victoria to work or study and a place where they can work out their problems," he said.

Before Magistrate

Three more charges were placed against Gerald Harvey, 20, of Vancouver, Monday in connection with a disturbance involving weapons at a city night club early Thursday.

The charges are possession of an offensive weapon, possession of a spring knife and possession of a firearm without a permit.

Friday, he was charged with assaulting Tony Else, manager of AJ's, and causing bodily harm and pointing a revolver. He asked for the remand to have more time to consult a lawyer.

Richard Howard, 21, of Victoria, is charged with possession of an offensive weapon, assault, possession of a spring knife and an unregistered firearm. He received a remand for the same reason.

Both were remanded again without plea. Bail has been set at $1,000 for Howard and $1,500 for Harvey.

Albert Degendt, 910 McKenzie, was fined $300 for impaired driving. Court was told he drove the wrong way on Yates Street Oct. 26.

Robert Woods, CFB Esquimalt, was fined $200 for contributing to juvenile delinquency. He was also fined $35 for being a minor in possession of liquor and $35 for careless driving.

David Harvey, 18, of 427 Hillside, was committed for trial by judge for possession of a stolen automobile.

A 17-year-old juvenile told the preliminary hearing he took the car on Oct. 25 and later parked and left it in the city. He said he took Harvey and another juvenile with him for a ride in the car the next day and hit a parked car.

He said he got out of the vehicle and ran away, telling the others to do so also.

Another witness told the court he saw a collision on Mary Street Oct. 26 and then identified the juvenile and Harvey as two of three persons he saw run from the car.

The magistrate said the possession charge was a weak case and depended on the evidence of an accomplice but he committed him for trial.

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

This Special Hemorrhoid Remedy Contains a Unique Healing Substance That Relieves Pain As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles". It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief —here's good news. A renowned research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained over a period of months! Among these sufferers were a wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions—even cases of long standing.

This was accomplished by a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a world-renowned research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

CHICAGO SUED BY INJURED THEOLOGIAN

CHICAGO (AP) — A seminary student has sued the city of Chicago and several of its top officials for $1,250,000 in damages, charging he was beaten by police during Democratic national convention week disorders.

The suit was filed Monday by the American Civil Liberties Union in behalf of Roy L. Ries Jr., of Levittown, Pa., a student at McCormich Theological Seminary.

Ries suffered a fractured skull when, he said, unidentified police officers struck him twice on the head with a gun butt in Lincoln Park the night of Aug. 26.

Ceremony Tonight

First Unit In College Grid Opens

Speeches and a burst of folk-singing will officially open Uvic's first college tonight at 8.

Craigdarroch College is opening its doors to the public, and it will be the first opportunity for the college's 300 resident and 700 non-resident members to meet and mix socially.

University building plans call for the completion of a second college, Lansdowne, by September, 1969.

Each college will have the same basic design, and each will operate as a social unit within the university to which students can relate, says Greg Fraser, member of the Craigdarroch College council.

"The purpose of the college system is to cut down on depersonalization," he said.

"When the university has 10,000 people, there will be 10 colleges with 1,000 members each. Everyone will belong to a college."

Featured speaker at the opening festivities tonight will be Keith Johnstone, visiting lecturer in the theatre division, who will discuss some aspects of the upcoming Phoenix Theater production, The Wakefield Crucifixion, which he is directing.

Ronald Jeffels, dean of colleges and student affairs, will give a short talk.

Character Topic Of PTA Lecture

Lt. Col. L. C. Price, commanding officer of Venture division, Fleet School, will discuss discipline and character formation at a meeting of the Willows School Parent-Teacher Association tonight.

The meeting in the school auditorium starts at 8 p.m. and the public is welcome.

Col. Price will discuss how character can be formed, moulded and changed through the observance of set patterns of behavior.

The classic Oyster case, for example, is carved out of a solid block of Swedish stainless steel. Inside the pressure-proof walls is a self-winding movement.

Because so much of the work is done by hand, it takes a long time to build a Rolex.

The watch worn by the divers of the Royal Canadian Navy is called the Rolex Oyster Submariner. It costs $210

Hovercraft Rejection Still Plagues Council

Ald. Scott Wallace Monday night told Oak Bay council it had become "the laughing stock of local politics" and called for reconsideration of a hovercraft terminal bid.

Both suggestions were immediately rejected by council.

A motion by Ald. Wallace to reopen negotiations with Pacific Hovercraft Ltd. of Vancouver for landing rights in Oak Bay failed to find a seconder and was turned down.

The alderman was angered by council's decision two weeks ago to refuse permission for the craft to land at the Oak Bay Marina. Two weeks before that, council had tacitly agreed to hear if the machine was noisey before making a decision.

"The council of Oak Bay is the laughing stock of local government and of the people," Ald. Wallace said.

PEOPLE UPSET

"Our conduct as a council was regrettable, unfortunate . . . Many people are very upset at the way it was handled," he said of council's surprise refusal last meeting.

His remarks responded to a three-page statement read by Ald. Frances Elford in defence of her motion turning down the hovercraft bid.

She quoted council minutes dating from July, 1967, to show that council had long ago decided against any proposal from the company.

Meetings were arranged with Pacific Hovercraft officials, she said, but they failed to turn up. The only approach from the company asking for consideration by Oak Bay came Oct. 15 of this year—asking for a decision within two days, Ald. Elford said.

"I object to remarks that Oak Bay council was pressured into a decision by lynch-mob tactics," she said, referring to a statement by Ald. Wallace last week.

WARNING GIVEN

"I suggest that Pacific Hovercraft was given ample warning—a warning which it continued to ignore."

Ald. Wallace replied that he was not "the least bit interested" in a decision made by a previous council and was not held to any decision made by them.

"Neither am I impressed by a long recital of facts," he said.

Council had not had an opportunity to listen to the hovercraft—which was said by the company to be quieter than previous models—or to assess any effects the new service would have on traffic flow in the marina area, he said.

There must have been a great deal of opposition to the first aircraft to be flown, he said. Such opposition choked off any chance to learn about a new craft.

When she was chairman at a previous meeting which discussed the hovercraft "Ald. Elford dismissed it with a wave of the hand . . . with one brief sentence that 'I heard it at Expo, and that's it'," Ald. Wallace said.

Mayor Fred Hawes said that he had been on council for many years and when he lost an argument in council he "didn't cry about it."

Ald. Wallace replied to the mayor he had a different concept of democracy and did not think "an alderman has the obligation to keep his mouth shut."

OSLO TEAM ADVANCES

NORRKEOPING, Sweden (AP) — Lyn of Oslo, Norwegian league and cup soccer champions, swept through to the European cup winners quarter-finals on 4-3 aggregate Sunday. Lyn lost 3-2 against IFK of Norrkoeping, but won the first leg at home 2-0.

High Rise Fate Rests With Secret Session

A zoning bylaw introduced several months ago to allow the building on a site of 1120 Beach Drive went into the committee-of-the-whole meeting along with 16 letters to council concerning the building, dating back to July 8.

Ald. Douglas Watts suggested the study by committee-of-the-whole, rather than a vote on the bylaw during the meeting.

Mayor Fred Hawes said the municipal planning committee had been reviewing the proposal for an 11-storey building with penthouse, but that developer Gordon Lovitt had not contacted council since a Sept. 4 public hearing.

DECISION DELAYED

The zoning bylaw has been given only first reading by council.

Mayor Fred Hawes has delayed any decision on the bylaw until full council was present. Several councillors have taken holidays during the past two months.

All of council was present Monday, but preferred to go into committee-of-the-whole to consider the matter.

The vote has been put off since ratepayers put up a solid front of opposition at the hearing. The demanded that the present height limit of seven floors be maintained in Oak Bay.

Mayor Hawes, with his eye on rising costs and the levelling income from municipal assessments, has said the only way Oak Bay can continue improving is by allowing apartment buildings such as the one proposed.

If apartment buildings are not permitted, assessments of single-family home owners in the municipality will have to go up, he said.

HE WAITS PATIENTLY FOR CHINESE TO CALL

PARIS (AP) — An American offering $1,000,000 for information about Hugh Francis Redmond sits in a hotel room here and waits for the Chinese to call.

They didn't in London, the Hague or Stockholm, and it doesn't seem likely they will call here either.

The man is Sol Friedman, a Yonkers, N.Y., lawyer who is administrator of a $1,000,000 fund for Redmond, an American who has been in Shanghai jails for the last 17 years on spy charges.

The money was raised by public subscription to buy Redmond's release. But since July 4, 1967, the Chinese have cut off all news about him.

"We're now at the point where the money is for buying information," said Friedman. "Is he dead or alive? How can we find out? His 72-year-old mother is literally tortured by not knowing."

REDMOND
. . . dead or alive?

Redmond, 48, also of Yonkers, was arrested in Shanghai in 1951 and sentenced to life imprisonment in 1954 on charges of maintaining contact with U.S. intelligence agents in Hong Kong.

Advertisements placed in newspapers in the cities where China has diplomatic representatives have netted Friedman many calls from men with schemes and price tags, ranging from $10,000 to $250,000.

The lawyer said he fears for Redmond's safety because three other Americans imprisoned in Communist China have been allowed to correspond regularly with their families.

"We've gotten more and more concerned," he says. "Letters to the International Red Cross and the Chinese Red Cross have gotten nowhere. I've written to Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai. Still nothing. It's really very sad."

Trustee Membership Payment Protested

The Greater Victoria school board approved paying an $8,825 fee for next year's membership in its provincial association Monday night over the objections of trustee Ted Wood.

"I can't see what this board gets for $8,825 but a lot of paper," said Mr. Wood, taking up an argument he has voiced before.

Only trustee Dr. Victor Rogers gave him tentative support but did not vote against payment.

Most school board members spoke out strongly in support of the B.C. School Trustees' Association.

It was extraordinary how the provincial government's school construction freeze began to thaw after a trustee vote of censure during the association's October convention, said board chairman Peter Bunn.

The provincial association also has assisted in school district salary negotiations and in financing education research projects, he added.

Dr. Donald Shorting pointed out the association's research institute had granted $17,000 to finance a local project this year.

"I think the association has tremendous value and potential," said Mr. Bunn. "Divided we certainly would be ineffective."

Film Sequences Help Children With French

Elementary school pupils taking conversational French this year sometimes produce better accents than their teachers, a leader in the program told Greater Victoria school trustees Monday night.

A. I. Issacson, principal of Macaulay elementary school, used a color film strip and synchronized tape to present a demonstration lesson.

Brief sentences in French are supported by pictures in telling the story of a cat which jumped on to the breakfast table to lap up a bowl of milk meant for children's breakfast.

"They live the little phrases," he said of the students. "The accents of the children are really good. They copy just what they hear."

At Macaulay, 310 children in Grades 4 to 7 are taking the lessons. Another 410 pupils in Grades 6 and 7 at Lampson, Rock Heights and Victoria West schools are also on the program.

"I believe this is a fantastic program," said Mr. Isaacson.

Parents' reactions gathered at explanatory meetings?

Enthusiastic at most schools but not quite so enthusiastic at Victoria West, he said.

Physical Education Complex Tour Ends

Two University of Victoria officials will be full of suggestions this week for a planned physical education complex at Uvic.

Fred Martens, of the education faculty, and Arthur Webb, campus planner, will compile a report on athletic facilities required here.

They have just returned from a week-long trip to universities in Michigan, Ontario and Saskatchewan.

"The trip was to get some ideas and to confirm some ideas we had," Mr. Martens said.

"Most of the facilities we looked at had good features and we picked up something everywhere."

The pair were studying primarily the size and layout of facilities and the various features included. They were particularly interested in materials other than wood used for surfacing basketball courts and gym floors, Mr. Martens said.

In their study, they checked the size and shapes of swimming pools and laboratory setups for physical education training.

"We're going to put the best ideas into our report," Mr. Martens said.

He could not say what features are planned for the Uvic complex, which is in only the preliminary design stages.

"We want to include a number of teaching areas, and a main gym," he said. "We will make our report to the committee deciding on planning for the complex."

Vancouver architect Alan Scott, who accompanied the two on their tour, has been appointed designer of the athletic facilities.

LANSDOWNE AIR SITE GETS CAIRN

The first licensed airfield west of Calgary, on land now occupied by Lansdowne Junior Secondary School, will be marked by a cairn or inscribed stone.

The Greater Victoria school board approved the move Monday night at the request of Victoria's Pacific Wing of the Royal Canadian Air Force Association.

The field opened Jan. 1, 1928, with the hangars where the school now stands, a letter from association member T. H. Cressy recalled.

In July of that year, B.C. Airways opened a service linking Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle. Mr. Cressy was chief engineer for the line, which operated a Ford Trimotor.

The airport was on land now bordered by Lansdowne, Shelbourne, Richmond and Newton.

Recreational Instruction Under Review

The Greater Victoria school board is drafting a program of Saturday morning classes in recreational subjects.

The program will likely get under way early in the new year at local senior secondary schools and run to Easter, said Dr. Victor Rogers, chairman of the board's adulteducation committee, Monday night.

Student representatives, queried on what they favored for study, mentioned such things as badminton and judo, said Jack Dalgleish, director of adult education.

They also asked that classes be open to adults and a family fee schedule be considered.

Class fees would support the program. More detailed recommendations will be made at the next board meeting.

Three Mortgage Plans For Housing Studied

MOSCOW (Reuters) — A deserter from the Red Army has surrendered to authorities after 25 years of hiding in his attic, the Ukrainian newspaper Pravda Ukrainy reports. It says the deserter was afraid to return to his unit after he overstayed leave in 1943. His wife finally told him "Get the hell out of here before I poison you, you wretch," and he turned himself in, the paper says.

Saanich Views School Change With Disfavor

Craigdarroch school's application to move just north of the Institute of Adult Studies on Lansdowne got a poor reception from Saanich's advisory planning commission.

A progressive private school with a "free curriculum" between Grades 1 and 7, Craigdarroch has outgrown its premises at 1023 Pemberton.

Leah M. Brown, president of the school board, said Monday the intended move into a house at 1984 Waterloo was to provide more room for the 40 pupils and was not an expansion.

The commission recommended against the application to rezone the site to permit a private school, stating traffic access, play areas and location in the neighborhood were unfavorable.

Mrs. Brown, 3480 Upper Terrace, argued that only three vehicles, belonging to teachers, needed to drive right up to the proposed school building.

She added that pupils were usually taken to public playgrounds and parks for recreation.

Council moved a public hearing be called to decide the application. The date is yet to be decided.

A public hearing will also be called to decide on a request by Tideline Construction Ltd. to rezone lots at 1701 and 1705 Ruby Road to permit construction of town houses.

The plan is to construct 18 housing units in three and six-unit blocks. The planning commission said there is a need for this type of housing in the district and it "will be in keeping" with other nearby developments.

MANILA (Reuters) — The Philippines' foreign policy council Monday decided to pull out its entire diplomatic staff from Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. But Foreign Secretary Aenarciso Ramos told reporters the move did not mean a break in diplomatic relations between the Philippines and Malaysia. The two nations have been involved in a territorial dispute.

EDMONTON (CP) — The federal task force on housing may recommend three separate options for mortgage plans, one of its members told a public meeting Monday night.

W. Peter Carter, mortgage controller for the Royal Bank of Canada in Montreal, said a lender might offer a choice of a 25-year mortgage at a fixed rate, a mortgage to be renewed with adjustments every five years, or a 25-year mortgage at an interest rate to be adjusted with market conditions.

"It's quite possible that we might recommend that all three ways should be available," he said.

Mr. Carter, acting chairman of the inquiry in the absence of Transport Minister Hellyer, spoke during a meeting with homeowners.

Ninety persons came to the meeting in a school gymnasium on the city's south side. Homes in the surrounding subdivision were built four years ago for prices ranging from $15,000 to $25,000 and would have market values from about $18,000 today Half a mile northwest, prices reach $40,000 and $50,000.

PREVIEW SUGGESTIONS

The meeting had a scattered preview of possible recommendations by the task force, which is to report to the cabinet by the end of the year. Hearings are scheduled today in Calgary and the force has yet to travel to Hamilton, Ont., Nova Scotia and Newfoundland.

Sociologist Doris Boyle, of Sydney, N.S., said the task force has learned it must ask "whether home ownership is beneficial not only from the individual point of view. . . .

"The only way that I could see that we could argue for subsidizing home ownership would be if we could argue that it benefits society as a whole."

Dr. Boyle and Mr. Carter were replying to questions by Denis Goodale of the University of Alberta faculty of business.

Prof. Goodale asked why a scheme can't be devised to invest a man's pension plan contributions in his own home. He also said he opposed subsidies to housing but it seemed to be inequitable that businesses could deduct interest from taxable income while a home-buyer could not deduct the interest on his mortgage.

CRITICIZES CMHC

A business machines operator, David Radke, said persons in low-rental housing subsidized by Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. may not be permitted to better themselves.

He said the wife of a university student in an Edmonton low-rental project has been forbidden to attend university classes because wives in the project may not work and the management said people might think she was working if she left the house regularly.

A. E. Coll, executive director of CMHC and the task force liaison with the corporation, confirmed that Edmonton officials knew of the incident but said the corporation has no jurisdiction over landlord-tenant relationships in privately-operated low-rental projects.

BIGGEST PROBLEM 'TO STAY ALIVE'

EDMONTON (CP) — Former comedian Dick Gregory said Monday night Richard Nixon's biggest problem at the moment is staying alive until he becomes president.

"I hope he does. But I believe the same conspiracy that is killing all the others will kill him too."

Gregory, 36, a Negro civil rights leader, told about 2,000 university students he believes the conspirators who have killed other American leaders "decided in 1964 that the United States had elected her last president."

The U.S. today was the "most insane, morally polluted nation on the face of the earth."

It is a sad indictment against a nation that people will be upset by the assassination of John and Robert Kennedy and Dr. Martin Luther King but not by the killing of Lincoln Rockwell and Malcolm X, he said.

"We have to be a nation that is upset by all assassinations or none."

Dr. King's accused assassin, James Earl Ray, would never come to trial "because he is talking to a lot of people."

Gregory said one question Americans must soon answer was that "if democracy is as good as we say it is, why are we running all over the world trying to ram it down people's throats with a gun?"

"Anything good you don't have to force on people; they'll steal it."

TWO MAIN TROPHIES IN EAST, SIX IN WEST

SOME SMACK OF COMMERCIALISM

Canadian Football League Reviewing Awards System

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Football League is looking into the manner in which trophies are awarded for outstanding performance.

Each year about this time, a long ton of silverware—commemorating all manner of sterling endeavor—is passed around through the CFL. People are lined up to donate further trophies to deserving players and the league is moving cautiously.

"The commissioner is reviewing the awards setup," says Greg Fulton, CFL secretary-treasurer.

"Different people have offered new trophies but we thought we'd better review the present situation. Recommendations will be made at the next annual meeting in February."

One thing the commissioner will note right away is the disparity of awards in the two conferences.

The Eastern Conference has two main awards; there are six in the West.

Then there are four inter-conference awards and an untold number of individual honors dispensed in the various cities—again mostly in the West.

"In some cities, a packing plant gives a live steer to the top player on the home-town club," Fulton says.

"Then there are awards that smack of strict commercialism.

"And there are cases where people want to put up a cup in the name of a player nobody would ever have heard of if he hadn't been killed."

Greg is not against sentiment and tradition.

"You can't divorce these things from football awards. For instance, the Grey Cup itself was probably worth about $50 when it was donated. It is inscribed to the amateur champions of Canada. But we wouldn't give up that cup, or change or scratch out the inscription, for anything."

The two awards given in the EFC are the Gruen Award for the outstanding Canadian Rookie in the division and the Jeff Russel Memorial Trophy—on the books for 40 years—for the player adjudged most valuable to his team and taking into account courage, clean play and sportsmanship.

In the WFC there is the Jeff Nicklin Memorial Award, the Western counterpart of the Russel.

The Dave Dryburgh Memorial Trophy goes to the leading scorer in the WFC and the Becket-DeMarco Memorial Trophy goes to the outstanding lineman in the WFC.

There is an N. J. (Piffles) Taylor trophy for the top team in the WFC and the Annis Stukus trophy goes annually to the coach of the year as selected by his fellow coaches.

Then there are the Schenley awards, honoring the most outstanding player, top Canadian player and lineman of the year.

Groups of coaches, sports writers and braodcasters, players and former players and fans vote on the various awards.

Some day, all the cups and trophies may be gathered together in one case for display in a football hall of fame. So far, the CFL hasn't even got the case, let alone the hall.

Guidelines for Testimony Promised in Derby Probe

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky Racing Commission promised to issue a set of guidelines today concerning testimony that can be considered at its hearing on the disqualification of Dancer's Image.

At issue are a series of mysterious post-Derby incidents during which an attempt was made "to salt" the feed and catbags of Peter Fuller's colt.

The issue was raised by one of Fuller's attorneys, Arthur Grafton, who said that if such testimony were submitted "it would open up a wide field of speculation."

The commission, which opened its hearing Monday, is considering Fuller's appeal of a May 15 ruling by Churchill Downs stewards. They stripped Dancer's Image of his Derby victory on grounds of a urinalysis taken after the Derby that showed traces of Phenylbutazol.

The medication is used to counter inflammation of joints and is not prohibited in Kentucky if it is discontinued long enough before a race so that its presence cannot be detected chemically.

BELIEVES HORSE WON

Fuller, a wealthy Boston auto dealer, told the commission that his horse won the Derby on his own, that he believed an error had been made somewhere.

He further testified that the drug had been administered twice to Dancer's Image—on the Sunday before the Derby and again in June when the colt was shipped to his farm in New Hampshire.

Fuller said on both occasions the horse reacted violently, indicating that he was allergic to the medicine.

"There was no reaction after the Derby," he said.

Fuller said he was pressing his appeal because "I know I didn't do anything wrong, I believe the members of my organization didn't do anything wrong. For that reason I want to know what did go wrong."

Earlier, George Rabe, an assistant attorney general for the state, contended that Dancer's Image had a history of ankle trouble and that on Thursday before the Derby he was regarded as a doubtful starter.

HORSE RECOVERED

On Derby Day, Rabe continued, the horse made a "miraculous recovery which remains unexplained to date without the administration of Phenylbutazol."

In his opening remarks, Grafton challenged the validity of the test run by Kenneth Smith, the chemist for Churchill Downs.

Grafton contended that the tests used by Smith were insufficient and were conducted improperly.

It was on the basis of these tests that the stewards placed Dancer's Image last and awarded first prize of $122,600 to Forward Pass which had run second.

However, the purse is being held in escrow until a final decision is made in the controversy.

SAFETY DISCS PROVE VALUE

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The U.S. Trotting Association board of directors has adopted a resolution making use of safety wheel discs mandatory in harness racing through the nation.

The board said it passed the resolution because use of the discs had proved to be a major factor in reducing harness racing accidents at raceways where they had been used.

'Big Perfecta' Dwarfs Healthy Daily Double

MIAMI (AP) — The daily double at Tropical Park paid $625.60 Monday but that payoff was dwarfed by the "big perfecta", in which one bettor won the whole pool—$26,055.80.

In the "big perfecta", a new betting gimmick inaugurated at Tropical this season, one must pick the 1-2 finish of the fifth race, in order, and then exchange winning tickets and pick the seventh race 1-2.

The winning bettor asked that he not be identified but did say he invested $470 in the "big perfecta" and had 10 winning tickets to exchange after the fifth race.

Main Grid Award Will Go To Either Reed or Symons

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's outstanding football player of 1968 will be either fullback George Reed of Saskatchewan Roughriders or Bill Symons, the scrambly halfback from Toronto Argonauts.

The Canadian player of the year is a contest between Ken Nielsen of Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Whit Tucker of Ottawa Rough Riders.

The six finalists were announced today, the result of a cross-Canada poll of football writers and broadcasters conducted annually by a distillery.

The winners will be chosen after a further ballot and announced in Toronto Nov. 28.

The outstanding player will receive a $2,000 savings bond with $1,500 in bonds going to the winners in the other two categories. All will receive Schenley trophies.

Each runner-up will be awarded a $500 bond and a plaque.

Symons, a second-year Argonaut from the University of Colorado, went to Toronto in a trade with British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference. He was a sixth draft choice of Green Bay Packers of the National Football League.

Symons led the Eastern Football Conference in rushing with 1,107 yards, the first Argo ever to hit 1,000. If he wins on November 28, he will be the first Toronto player to make it in the 16-year history of the awards.

Reed was the leading rusher in the West, piling up 1,222 yards. He was Canada's outstanding player in 1965, the year he led his conference with 274 carries for 1,768 yards, the second highest in Canadian football history.

VOTERS SELECT EAGLE AS BEST OF COACHES

EDMONTON (CP)—Eagle Keys, who guided the Western Conference Saskatchewan Roughriders to first place this season and the Grey Cup in 1966, Monday was named 1968 winner of the Annis Stukus Trophy as coach of the year in the Canadian Football League.

The announcement was made by CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur at Edmonton Eskimos' fifth annual $100-a-plate dinner.

Keys, 48, who joined the Roughriders as an assistant in 1964 and became head coach in 1965, was selected by his fellow coaches from both the Eastern and Western Conferences.

The native of Turkey Neck Bend, Ky., was unable to attend as his team is preparing for the second game Wednesday of the WFC best-of-three final series with Calgary Stampeders. Calgary won the opener 32-0 Saturday.

Stamps May Go Without Terry

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Stampeders, suffering from injuries received during their first encounter with Saskatchewan in the Western Football Conference final, may go against the Roughriders Wednesday without flanker Terry Evanshen.

Evanshen, who scored one touchdown in the 32-0 Calgary win Saturday, was trying for another on a pass from Peter Liske when he crashed into a fence at the back corner of the end zone.

An x-ray showed no fracture in the ankle, but his right leg is swollen and coach Jerry Williams said it is doubtful Evanshen will play.

Also injured in the first game of the best-of-three series were defensive end Ron Payne and linebacker Granville Liggins.

Payne suffered a shoulder injury but likely will start. Liggins, whose knee was injured, is a definite starter.

Also not in first-rate playing condition is defensive halfback Frank Andruski. He was in hospital Monday recovering from the flu.

SKID ON FIELD

Several players on both sides came out of the game minus patches of skin, scraped off when they skidded on frozen Taylor Field.

To prevent a recurrence and improve playing conditions groundskeepers at McMahon Stadium are using blowers and sheets of plastic to dry the field covered in snow and frozen in a storm Friday. The field does not have a tarpaulin.

Roughrider coach Eagle Keys, whose team will be at full strength for the 7 p.m. PST kickoff before the CTV national network, may have encountered an unexpected jinx Monday night. He was voted the Canadian Football League coach of the year.

In five of the last seven years the coach selected by his peers on the other eight CFL teams has lost in the Grey Cup and the other two times failed to make it to the conference finals.

But Williams, who didn't think his team was sure to win Saturday until they were ahead 24-0 late in the game, isn't overconfident.

"We had a hot hand, but it might be too much to expect the same Wednesday night. They'll come back like the good football club they are. We've got to keep working."

Bill Saunders Ties Fielder

SEATTLE (AP) — Portland wingman Bill Saunders has moved into a tie with Seattle captain Guyle Fielder for the Western Hockey League scoring lead.

Each has 26 points, Saunders on 13 goals and 13 assists and Fielder on five goals and 21 assists. Saunders picked up seven points in the week ending Sunday while Fielder was held to one assist.

Toronto Is Planning Champagne Welcome

TORONTO (CP) — A champagne and flowers welcome will be held for Toronto golfers George Knudson and Al Balding when they arrive at International Airport here tonight.

Balding and Knudson won the World Cup, emblematic of the world team golf championship, at Rome Sunday and Balding captured low individual honors.

The Royal Canadian Golf Association has arranged the warm welcome for the two golfers. Officials of the Canadian and Ontario branches of the Professional Golfers' Association also will be on hand.

The World Cup victory was the first for Canada since the country donated the cup 16 years ago. The tournament was called the Canada Cup until last year.

Balding, 44, won $1,000 for low individual honors and one-half the $2,000 team prize.

Balding had a score of 68-72-67-67—274. He was 14 under par for the tournament and his 67s Saturday and Sunday were only a stroke off the record for the Olgiata course.

Knudson finished 21st in individual scoring with 74-77-70-74—295.

Game at Nanaimo For Czech Squad

Czechoslovakia's national women's volleyball team will open a three-game series in British Columbia at the University of B.C. Thursday night.

Other games against the Canadian championship team from Vancouver will be played Friday night at Nanaimo and Saturday at Kelowna.

Bobby Pads Lead In Scoring Chase

MONTREAL (CP) — There's bad news today for National Hockey League goaltenders. Bobby Hull has regained his scoring eye.

Statistics released by the NHL show Hull well out in front in the individual scoring race, but not only has the Chicago Black Hawks left winger lengthened his points spread — he has regained the goal-scoring lead.

He earned the 22nd three-goal game of his career against Pittsburgh Penguins last week to put him within four of the record 26 held by Rocket Richard, the former Montreal Canadiens great.

Hull boosted his goal total to 14 in 15 games and increased his point total to 32, eight more than Red Berenson of St. Louis Blues and six-time scoring champion Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings. Howe and Hull are tied for the lead in assists, each with 18.

MIKITA KEEPS UP

One point behind Berenson and Howe with 23 points each are Jean Beliveau of Montreal and Stan Mikita of Chicago. Mikita missed a pair of games last week with an injury.

Danny Grant of Minnesota is the West Division's leading goal-scorer with 11.

Davis Boosts Pin Earnings To $44,462

DURHAM, NO.C. (AP) — Dave Davis of Phoenix, Ariz., won the Durham open professional bowling tournament Sunday, rolling an 8,740 total during the three days and picking up $3,000 in prize money.

Jack Minor of Vancouver was cut from the field after 18 games with a score of 3,368.

Whitworth Tops List Of Distaff Golf Cash

CINCINNATI (AP) — With only two tournaments to go, Kathy Whitworth has a $2,308 lead in official money winnings on the 1968 Ladies' Professional Golf Association tour.

Miss Whitworth's ninth victory of the year—at Pensacola, Fla., Sunday—brought her $1,875 and boosted her winnings to $45,279.

Miss Mann, who has won 10 times, finished well back in the field at Pensacola and now has a total of $42,971.

Other top money winners, with the number of tournament victories in brackets, include: Marilynn Smith (1) $19,320, Sandra Spuzich (0) $18,351, Clifford Ann Creed (0) $17,619, Mickey Wright (4) $17,147, Shirley Englehorn (1) $15,579, Sandra Palmer (0) $15,370, Betsy Rawls (1) $13,543.

IRON CURTAIN COUNTRIES . . .

. . . MAY RECEIVE GOLF AID

Czech Amateurs Finished 80 Over Par

By ROM REEDY

ROME (AP) — The 16th annual World Cup, won Sunday for the first time by Canada, may produce golf aid for some Iron Curtain countries.

Juan Trippe, president of the International Golf Association and head of Pan-American Airways, said Monday he would be going back to the United States dedicated to building a fund for golf courses in Eastern Europe.

"I am going to try to get some funds together, maybe $50,000, to build another course in Czechoslovakia," Trippe said in an interview.

"We might even be able to help Romania."

The Czechs sent two amateurs to the 1968 World Cup and they bravely shot 656 for 72 holes as a combined total, 80 above par.

They have only two courses in the country and the 500 Czechoslovaks who play are mostly from Prague.

Romania is in worse shape. There is only one course. The two players nominated had a horrible time getting to Rome. One was hurt, slipping and injuring his leg. The other, Paul Tomita, came a day after the 72-hole medal play started.

Asked if the World Cup would invite the Soviet Union to join the collection of nations, tournament director Fred Corcoran hedged.

"That is a subject to be taken up later," he said.

There are no golf courses in Russia.

Al Balding of Toronto with 274, which was 14 under par, and George Knudson, also of Toronto, with 295, turned up a total of 569, seven under par for the 6,850-yard par-72 Olgiata course.

Pro Track-Field Loop Planned With $4 Million Prize Money

NEW YORK (AP) — Track and field might be the latest sport to go professional with some 300 athletes, including Olympic medal winners, competing for $4,000,000 in prize money as early as 1969, organizers disclosed Monday.

The National Track and Field Association, the new organization, said it plans to establish a 10-week, 30-meet season starting next June in 10 cities with 14 events in each meet.

U.S. Olympic stars and top foreign talent will be recruited, drafted and signed to one-year, $10,000 contracts with the opportunity of winning as much as $90,000 in prize money.

No cities have been selected, league organizers said, but many were mentioned, including New York, Boston, Philadelphia, St. Louis, and Cleveland in an Eastern Division, and Los Angeles, San Francisco-Oakland, Portland, Dallas-Fort Worth and Houston in a Western Division.

They said franchises would be made final by late January.

"We already have option agreements from about 50 athletes," said Jerry Sherman of Sherman Oaks, Calif., one of the organizers. "And that includes about 15 members of the U.S. Olympic team."

He said Wade Bell and Tom Farrell, half milers; Ed Carruthers, high jumper; Bob Beamon and Charlie Mays, long jumpers, and Mel Pender, sprinter, are among those athletes who have agreed to sign pro contracts once the league begins formal operations.

Plans call for a player draft similar to the college draft conducted by pro football and basketball teams.

Next Time Little Heidi Will Remain in the Alps

NEW YORK (AP)—In anything but a storybook ending, it has been decided by a bunch of grown men that the next time television has to choose between football and Heidi, the little orphan girl from the Swiss Alps is going to be left standing out in the cold.

That was the decision reached Monday following the storm of protest that erupted Sunday night when NBC pushed a button that cut off the New York Jets—Oakland Raiders American Football League game with one minute to go and started a two-hour adaptation of Johanna Spyri's classic for tots.

REVERSES FIELD

The network apparently reversed its field Monday after angry fans went so far as to call the New York police department, tying up the most elaborate emergency-called system in the world.

What happened was simple: At 7 p.m., EST a button was pushed at NBC in New York that knocked down the lines carrying the Jet-Raiders game and started Heidi flowing from East to West.

And so, while little children all over the country watched Heidi, irate fathers grabbed for phones to protest wherever they could.

FLOOD OF CALLS

NBC was flooded with calls. Newspapers were flooded with calls. Radio and television stations were flooded with calls.

As soon as Heidi began, a counter-order was issued at NBC to try to put the game back on, but by the time the lines were restored the game was over, and the protests were reaching proportions that blew the NBC switchboard.

"It was," said NBC President Julian Goodman, "a forgiveable error committed by human beings who were concerned about the children expecting to see Heidi."

RAPID-FIRE SCORING

Just before, Daryle Lamonica threw a touchdown pass to Fred Biletnikoff which tied the game at 29-29 with three minutes and 15 seconds left and Jim Turner followed in short order with his fourth field goal of the game—his 14th in the last three games—to regain the lead for the Jets.

Seconds after game action was denied television watchers, Lamonica threw a 43-yard scoring pass to Charley Smith which won the game and Raiders made it more certain by scoring another touchdown just nine seconds later.

It came after the Jets had fumbled the kickoff. Raiders recovered four yards out and a fellow naced Preston Ridlehuber went over on the first play.

Feather Champ Slugfest Winner

TOKYO (UPI) — World featherweight champion Shozo Saijo thrilled a packed house at the Korakuen Sports Arena Monday night by turning a losing fight into a dramatic eight-round technical knockout victory over Filipino Flash Besande in a scheduled 10-round non-title bout.

The KO came after he sent the short but aggressive Filipino down three times in the eighth round with a series of fast lefts and rights to the body and face.

Until then it was Besande who was on top in an action-packed slugfest that produced eight knockdowns.

Story of Irish Jumper Made Best-Seller List

LONDON (CP) — Ireland's leaper Arkle, which loves Irish beer as much as the fences, has retired and steeplechase fans will go on debating whether he was only the greatest jumper of this century or the greatest ever.

After a two-year layoff following an injury, the 11-year-old bay jumper has been put out to pasture by his owner, Anne, Duchess of Westminster, on her County Kildare estate.

The news was greeted with a mixture of regret and relief by the racing fraternity which feared a projected comeback next January might prove a flop.

BRITISH RECORD

During his five-year career, Arkle won 27 out of 35 races, mostly in Britain, collecting a British record of £75,000 ($195,000) in prize money.

He won most of the major steeplechase classics, including the King George VI Cup, the Hennessy Gold Cup and a hat-trick in the Cheltenham Gold Cup.

The only major steeplechase he was never entered for was the Grand National, considered too dangerous for such a valuable animal.

Newspapers headlined the event and eagerly-awaited medical bulletins reflected public interest and concern that could hardly have been greater if the patient had been a human sports star.

An Arkle fan club was formed, a biography of his life made the best-seller list and a record company cut a pop disc dedicated to the Irish champion.

FLOOD OF GIFTS

After the accident, Arkle's stables were flooded with get-well cards and gifts of his favorite Irish beer, reputed to be the secret of his racing success.

Trainer Tom Dreaper and the duchess hoped to get him back on the track, but postponed his return until they were absolutely certain there was no chance of a recurrence. But after nearly two years, although he was completely fit, they decided it would be unfair to expect Arkle to regain his old glory.

WRITERS PAY TRIBUTE

"Not even Arkle with his immense courage could be expected to reproduce all his old brilliance," said the duchess.

Wordy tributes filled the sports pages following the decision.

"The most fulsome statistics will never convey the complex chemistry that captured public imagination and adoration, or ever define the grace, courage and the arrogant awareness of his own supremacy that aroused strange emotions in even the unhorsiest," wrote Durmot Purgavie in The Sketch.

And Clement Freud, slightly tongue-in-cheek, wrote in The Sun:

EQUINE KNIGHT

"For this equine knight in shining brown coat, the competitive life is over and while we shall miss his prowess and humor, I'm glad his most humane of owners has taken this decision and saved him from possible humiliation.

"Perhaps one day Arkle will write something nice about me: no telling what that horse might do in retirement."

Ranjit Only Rock On All-Star List

As befitting league champions, New Westminister Salmonbellies dominated all-star team selections in the National Lacrosse Association's Western Division, released Monday by commissioner Tom English.

'Bellies placed three men—centre Wayne Goss, forward Paul Parnell and defenceman Wayne Shuttleworth—on the first team and forward Larry Henry on the second team. Selections were made following voting by the four club coaches.

Ranjit Dillon was the only Victoria Shamrock member to be named, sharing a defence position on the second team with Bill Bradley of Portland Adanacs and Peter Black of Vancouver Carlings.

Goalie Skip Chapman of Vancouver, defenceman Mike Gates and forward John Allen of Portland completed the first string all-star lineup.

Portland's Merv Schweitzer filled netminding duties on the second tram which was completed by centre Gord Fredericksoñ and forward Bob Salt of Carlings.

Baseball Body Making Pitch

The Victoria and District Baseball Association is continuing negotiations to stage a B.C. senior tournament here next July, president Gar Taylor has announced.

The tournament, between four zone champions, will decide the provincial baseball representative to the Canadian Summer Games at Halifax.

Also in baseball, Don Jessop was elected president of the city Senior Amateur Baseball League. Also elected were Keith Todd, vice-president; Audrey Brice, secretary; Nora Maybee, treasurer; Kirbey Moysey, Reid Hannan, George Lanchick, Felix Pascuzzi, Bill Saranak and Roy Fletcher, directors.

Mantle Is Expecting To Play Next Season

DALLAS (UPI) — Mickey Mantle, the New York Yankees' $100,000-a-year injury-plagued slugger, has announced here that he will go to spring training in 1969 "with the expectation of playing" at least one more season.

Mantle made the statement when asked to comment on a report by Dick Young of the New York Sunday News that Mickey would not be back next season.

Mantle was quoted in the story as saying, "I just can't hit any more."

"I am not going to retire as of now," said Mantle when contacted at his home by United Press International. "I am going to spring training with the expectation of playing.

"I don't know what Young wrote. I spoke to him in Atlanta a while ago but I didn't tell him I was quitting. I just don't know what I'm going to do. It just might turn out that Dick has the wrong story."

Mantle, who celebrated his 37th birthday on Oct. 20, played in 144 games this past season, batting .237, hitting 18 home runs and driving in 54 runs.

Golf War Won't Wreck Next Year's PGA Event

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The two warring factions representing professional golfers guaranteed Monday that they will not let their differences threaten the success of next summer's Professional Golfers Association championship tournament.

A spokesman for the American Professional Golfers in New York dismissed the possibility of a boycot of the tourney by APG members.

"We never had that intention in mind," he said.

"The PGA championship will be played in 1969," said PGA president Leo Fraser following a meeting here with officials of the Dayton Area Chamber of Commerce, which is sponsor of the tournament, and the tournament committee.

In the Dayton meeting, Fraser said, the PGA "reiterated to the Chamber of Commerce that we have publicly invited the dissident tournament players to compete in our championship and it is not our intention to alter that position."

HONOR COMMITMENTS

In New York the spokesman for the APG said:

"We said before we would honor our commitments. Normally a week before a tournament each player decides individually if he will play in it, and the PGA always has a good field because it is a great event."

Fraser said the players have indicated publicly that they would be in the tournament because the contract for the event was effected before formation of the APG.

Virtually all the well-known touring pros are included in the APG membership.

The Dayton Chamber of Commerce had threatened to cancel the championship tourney—one of the big three on the U.S. tour—unless the APG and PGA would guarantee a top field of players here for the Aug. 14-17 event at the National Cash Register Country Club.

Gabrielle II Wins Race

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

Thirty-four Turkey Head yachts raced off Willows Beach Sunday, sailing in good winds up to 20 m.p.h. with an ebbing tide.

In the afternoon race, Ralph Higgins' Gabrielle II crossed first, followed by Leigh Holland's Invicta, Ted Bowers' Hakai and John Booth's Umpka.

Marks of the course to starboard were Jemmy Jones, Fiddle Reef, Mary Todd flag, Beach mark, Fiddle Reef to finish off the beach. The morning race was disallowed.

Over-all placings will be determined later by handicap.

Whisky "experts" are startled by B.C. Double Distilled

People who have been around a lot, and claim to really know whisky value, often do a "double take" when they taste B.C. Double Distilled for the first time. What startles them is that a locally-produced whisky can taste so good. Mellow, rich and satisfying, with a flavor that has pleased British Columbians since 1908. That's Double Distilled. Don't make your final judgement on whisky until you've tried it. B.C. DOUBLE DISTILLED

White House's Cheery Ghetto Report 'Spurious'

By JEAN M. WHITE
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Four months ago, the White House issued astonishing statistics on the racial balance in America's central cities:

The black population of the ghettoes, the statistics suggested, was declining significantly, thus brightening the prospects for a truly integrated society.

Today, the accuracy of that optimistic White House document is being seriously questioned within the government itself.

Census bureau officials report that the statistics used by the White House were "misleading" and possibly "spurious."

"Believe me, we were really very, very worried about those figures. We were quite uncertain what they meant. We feel now the numbers published may have been misleading."

'MATTER OF DEGREE'

Indeed, said his chief assistant, Meyer Zitter, it is more likely that black ghetto population has increased by 100,000 over the past two years, rather than declining by 300,000 as the White House report suggested.

"There still is a slackening of the Negro migration to the central cities," he said. "But that covers a lot of territory. It's a matter of degree."

While whites continue to flee from the central cities, said Miller, "there is no evidence of any significant increase of Negroes moving to the suburbs. I guess the only ray of hope is that Negroes are not piling up in the central cities as much as before."

The date available to Miller, Zitter and other census officials not only contradicts the White House report of last July, but also lends support to the apocalyptic thesis of the Kerner Commission that America is rapidly taking on the shape of an apartheid society.

PRESSURE DENIED

Cynics inside and outside the government suggested in July that the White House report on the ghetto population was an effort to minimize or disprove the Kerner Commission findings.

These findings included a projection that the Negro population of the central cities would grow from 12.1 million to 20.3 million by 1985 if the present trends continue. That projection was based on 1960 census data.

To collect fresher data, the census bureau in March conducted a sampling of central city population. The White House report this summer was based on that sampling.

Miller denies there was any pressure from the White House to collect or interpret the data hastily.

"We had new data," he said, "that seemed fairly significant. Census, labor and the White House all decided let's get them (the new figures) out and look at them."

That was done, but in the process, said Zitter, there was a risk that people might jump at interpretations and "say things before all the pieces" became available.

Apparently that is what happened in the case of the White House report.

Within a month or two, the census bureau plans to issue a new study of population distribution that is expected to point up the segregated nature of American residential life.

As for the ghettoes, it has been estimated that merely to hold them to their present size would require the out-migration of 500,000 Negroes a year. That is because, said Paul Ylvisaker, a former Ford Foundation official, the natural population increase in the ghettoes is a half-million a year without any in-migration from the south or other areas.

In the last few years, figures have shown a clear tapering-off in the migration of Negroes from south to north.

PUPILS DENIED SMOKE ROOM

MISSION (CP)—Trustees of Mission school district have turned down a request from students at Mission senior secondary school that a smoking room be provided for use during lunch hour.

However, the school board agreed to provide smoking areas at school dances.

Sentence Given To Mother, 53, Who Annulled Son

TORONTO (CP) — Audrey Walker, 53, was given a one-year suspended sentence last week on a charge of perjury arising out of 1964 Ontario Supreme Court proceedings when she sought annulment of her bigamous marriage to her adopted son.

Court was told she married Roger Percival Heritage, one of six children she adopted, in 1962, two months before her first husband, Lewis John Walker, died and while she was still living with her husband.

She was 47, Heritage 19.

Defence lawyer W. E. MacLatchy said Mrs. Walker had sought the annulment because the youth was blackmailing her.

$875 Stolen In Break-In

Thieves who forced three doors and smashed a window took more than $800 from a city service station overnight Saturday.

Police said $875.25 in cash and cheques is missing from Bomarc Fuels and Gorge Royalite, 510 Gorge.

The money was in a locked portion of a filing cabinet which was forced open with a crowbar.

Disputed Hospital Favored for Oliver

A 45-bed hospital for the south Okanagan which has been the subject of controversy for 2½ years will be built in Oliver, according to Health Minister Ralph Loffmark.

Oliver and Osoyoos, 12 miles apart and about 160 miles east of Vancouver, were asked in 1966 to agree on a site to replace St. Martin's Hospital at Oliver.

"As far as I am concerned, Oliver is going to get the hospital," said Mr. Loffmark.

He said the Okanagan - Similkameen Regional Hospital District has been given permission to draw up plans for the hospital, to be built on a 12.77-acre site purchased in August for $63,000.

The site was selected by the Oliver-Osoyoos Hospital Society and approved by the regional district.

"It is up to the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service and the regional board to concur with or disagree with the suggestion," Mr. Loffmark said. "But it is very unusual for a regional board to demur if permission has been granted."

Mr. Loffmark has sent a telegram to the regional board outlining his stand on the dispute.

The message is expected to be presented to a meeting of the board tentatively set for Thursday in Penticton.

CITY HALL CAROLLERS SET DATES

It's getting close to carol singing time again at Victoria City Hall where youngsters traditionally take over the council chamber reception area for a week before Christmas.

This year the young voices will lift—with a welcome boost from city hall staff and any other visitors caring to drop in—each morning at 9 a.m. on Dec. 11-12-13-16-17.

doesn't know a thing about NHA

But then—the National Housing Act has inspired a lot of vital projects that many Canadians are unaware of. Some follow logically under the word 'housing'. Like low-rent apartments for elderly men and women, and public housing projects for low-income families. Some are the natural result of the Federal Government's interest in the living conditions of Canadians. Like community planning . . . improved house design . . . land assembly . . . and urban renewal. But a number of NHA activities also reach beyond the home and its immediate neighbourhood —for the good of all. As in the mounting fight against water and soil pollution.

In short, NHA is vitally concerned not only with the home you live in, but the kind of environment your home lives in.

Cover Your Thighs, Arab Girls Warned

CAIRO (AP)—Amid all their other current problems, Egypt's security police are expected to chase down and arrest girls clad in miniskirts.

Maj.-Gen. Zaki Elag, director-general of the security police force, has ordered the arrest of any girl found wearing a mini-skirt on the streets. He said such a "flagrant and immoral act" is banned by the government.

The police order was echoed at Cairo University where the dean issued an order to co-eds to cover their thighs.

Police and university authorities face an arduous task. Short skirts, well above the knee, continue to be a common sight on the city's shopping districts, in its fashionable restaurants and tourist hotels. They also continue common among the 2,000 co-eds at the university.

Elag acted following an incident involving two young girls in extremely short skirts. Strolling and window-shopping, they passed a movie house just as crowds of young men were emerging.

The youths massed around the two girls, frightening them into a nearby shop for shelter. The horde of shouting youths blocked traffic on one of the main streets. It took police an hour to rescue the girls, disperse the youths and clear the traffic.

Red Youths Lack Sex Education

MOSCOW (Reuters) — A top Communist education specialist has complained that many young Russians are ignorant about sex and called for the introduction of the once-taboo subject in Soviet schools.

Dr. E. Kostyashkin told readers of the Communist party newspaper Pravda that it has become a fashion in the Soviet press to discuss the need for early sex instruction—but nothing was really done.

Meanwhile, many marriages were ending on the rocks and others were endangered because of sexual problems, he says. The majority of young parents in a recent survey said their first child had come before they wanted it.

One way to improve the situation, Kostyashkin said, would be for teachers and doctors to work out a sex education course for secondary schoolchildren.

Kitty Finds Way Home —300 Miles

HALIFAX (CP) — Kitty didn't want to stay at grandpa's so she went home.

Home for the family cat of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fitzherbert happens to be in a western Halifax suburb. Grandpa John Corston, Mrs. Fitzherbert's father, lives in Saint John, N.B., 300 miles away.

Kitty came home Saturday, four months after the Fitzherberts had left her with Mr. Corston while they took a vacation trip. When they returned to, pick up Kitty after the July vacation, the cat wasn't there.

Mrs. Fitzherbert said she glanced out the window Saturday and saw Kitty, somewhat thinner, in the back yard.

Train Crews 'State Matter'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court has ruled that states can force railways to carry more workers on trains than the railways say are necessary.

Disputes over the size of train crews must be worked out in legislatures and in collective bargaining and not by the courts, Justice Hugo L. Black declared.

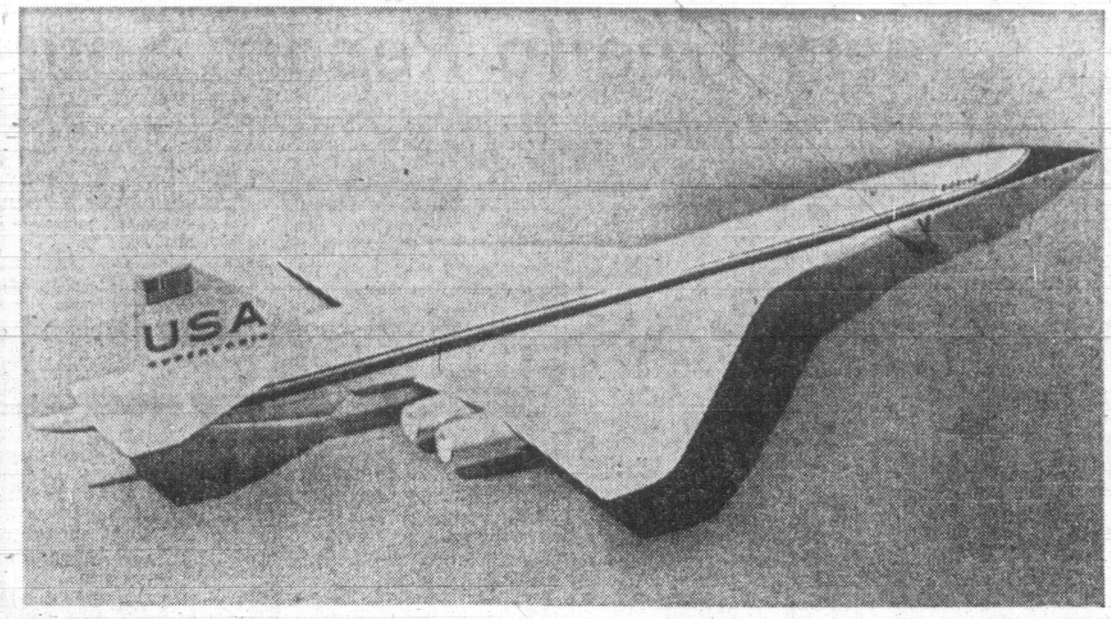
They require an engineer, a fireman, a conductor and three brakemen on freight trains. Switch trains have to carry at least one engineer, one fireman, one foreman and three helpers.

Several railways contended these laws promoted "featherbedding," increased costs and no longer were needed for the safety reasons of 50 years ago. A federal court in Hot Springs agreed and rail unions and the state appealed jointly to the Supreme Court.

Black said there still is considerable dispute over the function of crew members and that both the state and the brotherhoods have claimed firemen, freed by diesel engines from having to tend furnaces, now serve as lookouts, relieve the engineer in emergencies, make repairs while the train is moving and serve other functions. He said these disputes will continue to be worked out in legislatures and in management-union bargaining. Noting that Arkansas voters in 1958 decisively defeated a proposal to repeal the full-crew laws, he "indulged in a legislative judgment wholly behond its limited said the court in Hot Springs authority."



TRAVELLING at 1,800 miles per hour the new Boeing plane shown above will cut travel times on key overwater air routes by more than one half, and no two major cities will be more than one half day apart. Boeing is expected to recommend to the United States government early next year that it build two prototypes of this supersonic transport capable of carrying 280 passengers. Two prototypes of the fixed wing aircraft are being developed by Boeing at its Seattle, Wash., plant under contracts administered by the Federal Aviation Administration. (AP Wirephoto.)

Most Italians Favor Birth Control

By LEO J. WOLLEMBORG

ROME (WP) — Three out of four Italians favor birth control and two out of three say that their stand and behaviour on the subject have not been affected by the recent pronouncement by Pope Paul VI reaffirming the Catholic church's rigid ban on contraception.

Those are the main results of the first public opinion poll conducted here on the issue after publication of the encyclical "humane vitae" (on human life) on July 29 of this year. They appear the more significant since Italy is nominally a 99 per cent Catholic

The survey was carried out by CIRM (Italian Centre for Market Research) and involved interviews with 975 Italians. The sample group included 469 men and women between the ages of 25 and 34 and 506 between the ages of 35 and 45, repesenting a social and econimic cross-section of the population.

Of the group, 210 members had no children, 310 had one child, 299 had two children and the rest had from three to eight children. Just about one-third of the total (exactly 320) professed to be practising Catholics, 266 called themselves "sufficiently practicing," 316 said they were nominal rather than practicing Catholics and 28 were non-Catholics.

As many as 76 per cent of the people interviewed were favorable to birth regulation, 16 per cent came out against it and the rest had no opinion. Men were in favor of birth control by a somewhat larger margin than women (82 and 70 per cent, respectively). Minor differences were found between the opinions of people living in the industrial north and in still relatively backward southern Italy as well as between those living in the rural areas and those in the major urban centres.

Opinions were much more evenly divided on the encyclical itself. Some 43 per cent were critical of Pope Paul's pronouncement, 31.5 per cent were favorable and the rest did not take a stand although only 2 per cent said that they had never heard of it. Opposition was much more widespread in northern Italy and among men generally, while a plurality of the women interiewed endorsed the encyclical.

Victoria Entry Wins B.C. Title

A local horse has won the champion Anglo-Arab of B.C. award of the B.C. Half-Arabian Association.

Britishers Shocked By 'Keep White' Plan

EASTBOURNE, England (Reuters) — Politicians, priests and press have joined in angry condemnation of Enoch Powell, controversial right-winger of British politics, for his proposal Saturday that colored immigrants be sent home from Britain.

Heath told a Young Conservatives conference:

"It is a tragedy that people should have their emotions inflamed. I absolutely condemn the character assassination of any racial group by branding all the people in that group with the misdemeanors of particular individuals in it.

"That way lies tyranny and it must be fought wherever it raises its ugly presence."

Observers saw Powell's latest foray into the sensitive arena of race relations and his claim to public support as a bid for political power with an emotional appeal to "keep Britain white."

He was dismissed by the Opposition Conservative party from his post as defence spokesman after a similar speech last April which caused a country-wide storm.

He returned to the fray Saturday with a call for large-scale repatriation of immigrants, the establishment of a ministry of repatriation and a ban on wives and children joining their husbands here.

Hikers Plan To Tour City

The Victoria branch of the Canadian Youth Hostels Association will hold a walkathon Sunday at 1 p.m.

The walk—the first event ever held by the youth hostels in Victoria—will begin at mile "O" on the Trans-Canada Highway in Beacon Hill Park.

It will proceed along Dallas Road to Estevan to Oak Bay Ave. and along to the YMCA via Fort and Quadra.

The event is classed as an exercise. It is not a fund-raising event.

TEACHERS SETTLE PAY, FIRST TIME IN 6 YEARS

DUNCAN—A 5.7 per cent increase in teacher salaries bringing them in line with contracts at Ladysmith and Saanich was announced Monday night by school board chairman Joseph Frumento.

The total increase will amount to between $109,000 and $110,000 on the basis of present staff, Mr. Frumento said.

It is the first time in six years the district has reached a settlement without going to arbitration.

Mr. Frumento, who announced he will not run for a new two-year term at the December elections, said the teachers and the board committees both should be complimented for reaching such an amicable settlement.

Mr. Frumento has been on the school board for nine years, of which has been chairman for three years—in 1964, 1965 and 1968.

Trustees David Evans and Bruce Devitt also announced they would not be seeking office again.

Court Orders Youth To Write Long Essay

NANAIMO — Murray James Woodley, 19, of Nanaimo, was ordered Monday by Magistrate Stan Wardell to write a 1,000-word essay on Why You Should Respect Law Enforcement Agencies as part of his sentence for causing a disturbance by using obscene language and resisting arrest.

Woodley, who pleaded guilty to the charge, was also fined $200 and given a one-year suspended sentence.

In addition, Woodley must contribute 50 hours of work to a community project, spend four Saturday nights in a police station and surrender his driver's licence and plates to a probation officer for an indefinite period.

Similar sentences were meted out by the magistrate to other youths who took part in Halloween night disturbances.

Meanwhile, the trial of David Willis, 20, charged with two counts arising from a Halloween night disturbance in Nanaimo was adjourned to Dec. 20 following conclusion of the prosecution's case Monday. He pleaded guilty to charges of obstructing a police officer and causing a disturbance.

DUNCAN — The fourth annual concert of the United Church AOTS Club will be held at the church hall Wednesday at 8 p.m.

The 20-member male choir under the direction of Norman Duckworth have arranged a program ranging from sacred numbers to barber-shop selections.

Carl Walker, Scottish monologist, will entertain, and Miss Sylvia Furneaux, musical festival and centennial talent show winner, will again join the choir as a featured soprano soloist.

Saanich Joins House Guide

Saanich council agreed Monday to participate in a housing registry with the other peninsula municipalities.

The six-month pilot project, to provide information on needed and available accommodation, will cost $600, to be shared by the participants.

Ald. Edith Gunning explained that the registry will list, with the Greater Victoria real estate board's co-operation, all available housing.

Another list will show names of housing applicants.

The service, operated out of Spencerhouse by volunteers, will provide transportation for applicants who want to see what accommodation is available.

Buying and renting advice will be provided by the real estate board, she said.

The municipalities are to make no commitement beyond the first six-months' operation but, said Mrs. Gunning, "in a time of emergency such as we have today in the housing field, I don't think it's very much to ask that we give it a try."

Disputed Zoning Plan Modified by Council

DUNCAN — A modified zoning bylaw to change certain areas to conform with a planning study undertaken three years ago and bring them into a general plan for the city was adopted at a special meeting of city council Monday night.

The bylaw first was presented Nov. 4 but Mayor Jim Quaife said it had so "many valid objections against it" it would have to be altered and presented again.

One of the objections was in connection with the so-called green belt or "public open space" areas. Residents objected that their privacy would be invaded if green belts touched their property or public footpaths were allowed across them.

The amendment now removes all private land from that zoning description.

A resolution was passed recommending that the city clerk be directed to do the necessary advertising for the bylaw to be amended to enable Ritchie Developments of Vancouver to construct a $600,000 hotel, motel and trailer park on the Trans-Canada Highway south of the city.

The present zoning will not permit trailers and that is a major requirement for the complex to go ahead.

City clerk Gordon Berry said the hotel developers have a long way to go to clear all the hurdles yet and they still must approach the Indians about the use of their land.

Road Victim's Funeral Set

DUNCAN — Funeral services will be held here Saturday at 1:30 p.m. for Friedline Vool, 58, who was killed when struck Sunday by an automobile while crossing the Trans-Canada Highway at Koksilah Road.

An inquest was ordered by Coroner Thomas Lines but no date was set.

Samuel Davies, 40, of Nanaimo, was the driver of the automobile.

Mrs. Vool, a well-known beekeeper, had lived here for about seven years, having come to Canada from Estonia in 1949.

She is survived by her husband Voldemar, four daughters, Mrs. Lillie Patenaude, Burnaby; Mrs. May Henderson, Los Angeles; Mrs. Kadri Riddell, Idaho, and Mrs. Tiiv Jurisoo, Estonia; and a brother, Ruben Tomberg, Vancouver.

Rev. Alan Kerr will officiate at Hirst Funeral Chapel and cremation will follow.

Chretien to Visit Marine Park Site

Described as a first step towards a national park in the Tofino-Ucluelet area, Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien will visit there on Nov. 25.

Richard Durante, MP for Comox-Alberni, said he would tour the area with Mr. Chretien.

"I am convinced this is a first step toward fulfilment of our dream of a national marine park in the area," he said.

He said there is no doubt Mr. Chretien will be impressed with the area and that he will seek to complete neogitations with the provincial government to make the proposed park a reality.

Higher Assessment Feared For Regional College Plan

DUNCAN — If Campbell River does not approve a second referendum for Malaspina College in December, making the area five instead of six districts, an increase in tax assessment will be necessary, the Cowichan district school board was told Monday night.

Finance committee chairman Dick Christmas said the actual cost to district ratepayers on the basis of six districts would be .775 mills, according to the provisional budget for 1969.

However, school board chairman Joseph Frumento said if Campbell River drops out of the regional college scheme "we will have to look for an increase in assessment."

VICTORIA, B.C., TUESDAY, NOV. 19, 1968—PAGE 17

Arthur Mayse

You may find this a cheerless reflection, but in some distant future, the anthropologists are going to knock themselves out trying to reconstruct our civilization from what we have left behind. And that, by the way we're going, may not be much.

By an act of projection, let us look in on an inter-galactic dig which has struck paydirt.

The site is on the southern tip of what was Vancouver Island before solar bombing tumbled the coast range into the sea. Its top layers have been peeled off, and there is exciting evidence that humanoids once inhabited the area.

The leader of the expedition, a Venusian whom we may as well call Dr. Kronk, is listening with what patience he can muster to Prof. Twizzle, an archeologist from Proxima Centauri.

Twizzle was in on the big dig at Rome, and he can't get over it.

"Whoever they were," he says, "it's obvious that here is another of those cultures that flash and are gone. Their habitations were of the most temporary sort. Look at this."

He crumbles a fragment of stucco. "Ticky-tacky. Is this the work of a people who built for the ages? Why in Rome, at a depth of a mere 30 metres —"

"Quite so," Kronk interrupts. Let Twizzle get going on that subject, and they could lose half of this dead planet's all-too-short day. "But come along. I've something to show you."

★

Both have large heads in which are set enormous, browless eyes. Their hands are also big, but their legs are no more than stumpy appendages. Their de-gravitation packs waft them along a broad cut from the walls of which protrude minor artifacts.

There are bottle-tops, shards of shattered records, flattened cans, here and there a bleach jug.

Twizzle eyes these relics of dwellers long gone contemptuously.

"You see? No stonework, no statuary, no temples. And this, I suppose, passed for a street. Take the Romans now, Imperishible records, and roads built for eternity."

Kronk sighs. He has taken a liking to these distant ancestors who were overcome by a cataclysm frightful beyond imagination.

"You're too hard on them," he says. "Admittedly, they were barbarians, and if there's truth in our folk-tales, their race destroyed itself." Inwardly, he curses headquarters for sending Twizzle to inspect this new dig.

"But given time, they might have sorted themselves out. They'd achieved a primitive sewerage system and one quite creditable public bath, apparently roofed with glass. I wonder why they were dismantling it?"

"Overtaken by madness, I suppose," snaps Twizzle. "How much farther?"

★

"We'll soon be there," Kronk replies. They levitate down other cuts. Where each joins its neighbor, metal hexagons have been exhumed and set aside.

"They baffle us," Kronk observes. "Our language people believe they convey an order to the populace. Perhaps 'Stop'."

"Undoubtedly a negative society," his companion observes. "But I do recall that we came upon something of the sort in our earlier exploratory work at Rome."

"Wayside shrines, perhaps," says Kronk absently. He is gazing ahead where workmen stand by the mouth of a cavern, their earth-vacuums idle in their hands.

"Take care, Doc," one of them calls. "This place could have a curse on it."

A fluke of earth pressure has preserved the showroom as a cave. In it crouch dimseen cars, longer and lower than today's models, though not very much.

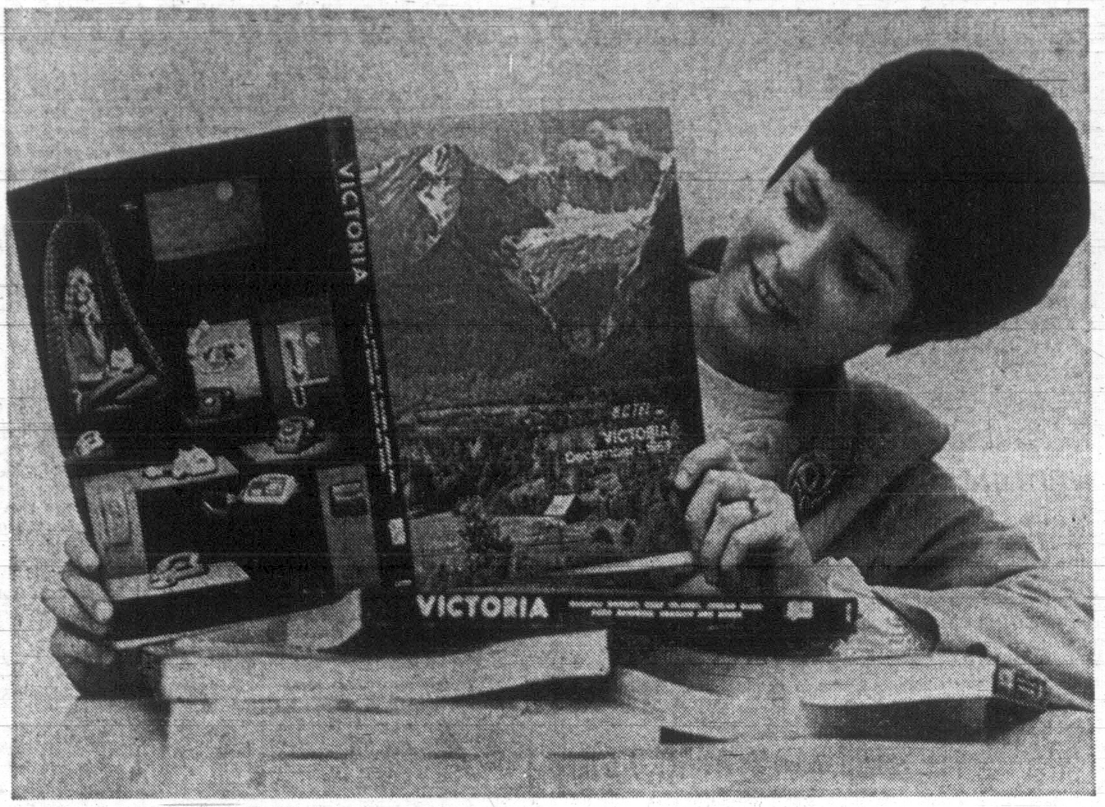
"Perhaps." Dr. Kronk advances toward a sporty job that sits alone on a central dias. "The language team is convinced that they are. But that's the hell of our profession, Twizzle—we may never learn the answer!"



EVERYBODY'S LIBRARY gets a boost as delivery of the new Victoria district telephone directory starts today. About 97,000 copies will go to subscribers in the Greater Victoria area, Central Saanich, Sidney, Sooke, Jordan River, Port Renfrew and the Gulf Islands over the next 10 days. B.C. Telephone employee Sandra Christie admires cover photo of Hudson Bay Mountain near Smithers. New issue will contain 80,000 listings, up 5,000 from last year. Saanich Group Ready to Fight Overpass Link

A citizens' committee is mounting a battle against Saanich's present plans to reconstruct its trunk road system to accommodate the widened Patricia Bay Highway.

They were unhappy because their street will be the new overpass link between Royal Oak Avenue and West Saanich Road when the present Royal Oak-Pat Bay intersection is eliminated.

Association president Bill Stewart said in an interview their presence was a gesture "to show what action we are prepared to take to oppose the plan."

Mr. Stewart, 891 Falaise, named at least three properties he believed will be displaced by the change.

The road system plan was officially unveiled at the meeting which approved the Falaise Road proposal in principle.

1970 COMPLETION

It deals with the first-contract section of the highway from Rogers Avenue to the entrance to Beaver Lake Park. Tenders will be called next month, council was told, and the section completed in early 1970.

The Falaise Crescent group will meet Friday night to decide on a course of attack.

It was outlined in a letter to council from municipal engineer Neville Life.

New details include an overpass linking Quadra Street and Glanford Avenue and a connection between Glanford and Royal Oak to serve the present shopping centre.

FRONTAGE ROAD

Quadra will continue to intersect the highway as it now does and a frontage road will be built to link Quadra and Royal Oak on the east side.

Further north, a frontage road will be constructed to link Falaise and Royal Oak cemetery.

This road will be extended south to Broadmead Farms when a proposed shopping centre is constructed in the subdivision.

Mayor Hugh Curtis told a representative of the Glanford Home and School Association he would speak directly with Highways Minister Wesley Black to urge a pedestrain overpass on the Pat Bay Highway opposite Chesterlea subdivision.

Mrs. Fraser McAlpine told council the association had received a letter from Mr. Black saying he would discuss a possible overpass with the Greater Victoria school board.

They had received similar assurance from Saanich and The Islands MLA John Tisdalle and "we feel we have gone as far as we can, now," he said.

GAS FIRE LEAVES 11 HOMELESS

No one was injured in the blaze which caused $8,000 damage to the home of Oliver Thibault, 82 San Jose.

The fire started in the basement of the three-storey 60-year old structure which is insured.

A fire department official said Thomas Thibault, 19, was cleaning engine parts in an open pan of gasoline at about 8 p.m. Some of the gas had spilled on the floor and fumes were ignited by the open flame of a nearby gas hot water heater.

The fire badly charred the basement and blistered paint upstairs. A number of personal possessions were destroyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Thibault and two sons lived in the upstairs portion of the house.

Service Corridors Sought by Farmers

Routing of all public services — power lines, gas lines, railways and highways through specially designated corridors is proposed by Vancouver Island and mainland farmers.

This would reduce the wastage of arable lands and protect the aesthetic qualities of public lands and residential districts, they claim.

The subject is expected to be one of the main items discussed at the three-day annual convention of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture opening at the Empress Hotel on Nov. 27.

The proposal will be closely watched by recreation groups and town planners concerned over the frequent practice of running public services through parklands.

RAPID EXPANSION

Federation secretary Jack Wessel said the rapid expansion of industry in B.C. is entailing considerable use of farm land for services such as power and gas pipe lines.

"There doesn't appear to be enough planning or control of the location of rights-of-way to minimize the wastage of agricultural land for such services," he said.

He said an example is the decision to run the rail route to the Robert's Bank superport through Delta municipality. Thirty-five farms will be broken up when the railway is constructed, he said.

Farmers feel it should be feasible to "corridor" such rights-of-way.

REGIONAL ZONING

Mr. Wessel said the only practical way this could be accomplished would be for regional districts to take over the planning and zoning of the corridors.

Thus it would ensure that a corridor in one district would join up with another in an adjoining district.

Tony Roberts, director of the Capital Region Planning Board, agreed that as many utilities as possible should use one route or corridor.

STUDY FIRST

"But a wide-range study should be made first before a route is chosen," he said. "The study should be related to the technical needs of other utilities."

Mr. Roberts said the present practice of running utilities through different routes interferes with the environment of certain areas.

He cited the Gulf Islands as an example where a swath is being cut through for a transmission power line — only a half-mile from an existing power line right-of-way.

SPEAKING at the Bank Street School auditorium Thursday at 8 p.m. is Ross Smith, president of the World Federalists of Canada. He will discuss "World Federalism, The Best Hope for World Peace." He is an Air Canada official in Montreal.

Study Set On Merger Of Schools

The Greater Victoria school board named an architect's firm Monday night to study the feasibility of merging James Bay elementary school facilities.

Wade, Stockdill, Armour & Blewett will examine problems involved in adding about 10 classrooms and an activity room to James Bay elementary school alongside Macdonald Park.

The school board has opened talks with the city on the proposed expansion because it would like to see joint school-community use of Macdonald Park as part of the deal.

Two Saanich Aldermen Plan To Run Again

Two incumbent aldermen, one a 27-year veteran, the other the youngest member of Saanich council, have filed nomination papers for re-election Dec. 7.

Ald. Leslie Passmore, 2873 Austin, said today he will "continue to work for the people of Saanich" as he has for the last 27 years.

Now retired, Ald. Passmore said: "I am most pleased with the recreation program which has developed" in the municipality. "My prime interest will be to continue to expand" the program.

Ald. Alan Newberry, 4274 Parkside, is making his second re-election bid.

Ald. Newberry, 31, said "I feel that being a young person I can offer stable involvement in local government for this region."

Supervisor of intermediate instruction for Sooke school district, Mr. Newberry said "I still feel that the young people of the community should become concerned in a responsible way."

He continues "to be alarmed by the irresponsible involvement of some of our young people, not only in our city, but across the country."

Third nomination filed to date for the four vacancies on the eight-member council was by Frank Waring, a member of the Saanich planning commission and an unsuccessful aldermanic contestant in 1967.

CHARGE DUE AGAINST INJURED YOUTH

A 17-year-old found bleeding from deep cuts to the neck, scalp and face at Cook and Oscar streets late Friday will be charged with wilful damage, city police said today.

The juvenile was found on the boulevard on Oscar in an apparently intoxicated condition and taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Police said he suffered a one and one-half inch cut to the neck requiring eight stitches and two smaller cuts taking four stitches.

Shortly after police found him two other juveniles, a male and female, were questioned. All appeared to be intoxicated.

Investigation revealed the wounds had been self-inflicted with a piece of glass, police said.

THIS SANTA NEEDS TOYS

Nelly Pelkey is collecting toys so children on the East Saanich Indian Reserve will have a happy Christmas.

She's looking for old toys, new toys, clothing, used or new, candy—anything that can be distributed to the 200 children on the reserve this Christmas.

"We are a poor organization," said Mrs. Pelkey. "We have no money, but we want these children to have a good Christmas.

"Last year when we had our first Christmas party, it was the first time some of the children had ever seen a Santa Claus," she said.

BIG FAMILIES

She hopes this year Santa will have some toys to distribute.

"Many of the families on the reserve have 12 to 16 children," she said. "Naturally all of them don't get presents at Christmas."

This year Mrs. Pelkey hopes they are starting soon enough to have a party ready by Dec. 15.

Ask The Times

Q.—Is the Canadian Wildlife Association a part of the national parks system?—N. S.

A. The Canadian Wildlife Service is a separate branch of the federal government, created in 1966. It administers migratory bird sanctuary regulations, discharges federal responsibilities in regard to wildlife and co-operates with the provinces on wildlife research and management. The minister reports to Parliament on behalf of the Historic Sites and Monuments Board, the Northern Canada Power Commission and the Northern Transportation Co. Ltd.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Shirras Funeral Thursday Morning

Funeral services will be held at McCall Brothers funeral home at 10:15 a.m. Thursday for former B.C. provincial police commissioner John Shirras who died Friday at the age of 85.

Mr. Shirras, 890 Heywood, became head of the provincial police in 1947 after serving as a policeman in Scotland and in Canada since 1912.

He retired as commissioner in 1950 when the RCMP took over the B.C. police force and has lived in Victoria since.

'No One Seems to Care' As Tattered Club Closes

By SUSAN RILEY

The death knell sounded over the weekend for the Broad Street Youth Centre at a teach-in held by hard-core supporters.

About 50 young people huddled in the chilly, unheated centre on Broad Street and discussed reasons it had failed.

●

But in the dimly-lit upper floor of the centre they talked about the more subtle reasons and the alternatives.

"People just got bored," said one long-haired youth. "There weren't any activities."

On the other hand some said that dances, introduced recently to raise money, were the final nail in the coffin.

"Bands were a drag," said one 17-year-old girl. "No one could talk any more or hear what was being said."

A boy with shoulder-length blond hair said the centre "strangled itself" because "nobody was interested in anything."

●

He pointed to broken chairs, the dirty floor and paint-smeared walls.

"How do you give people that pride?" he asked.

The young people expressed concern that no one seemed to care any more about the centre which has been opened since May.

Mr. Barber said the destruction which had occurred or the apathy of the habituees shouldn't be blamed on parents or outsiders.

"Haven't we been doing everything we think is reprehensible (by blaming others)" he asked.

"Haven't we been guilty of the same intolerance we criticize others for?"

Half-way through the hour-long teach-in many of the young people drifted out of the room.

"Some have stayed anyway," said Mr. Barber. "I assume some of us want to start a new centre."

●

Suggestions of charging for membership or asking the city for a subsidy were made, as means of financing the next youth centre.

"No matter what happens though we will open a new centre," said Mr. Barber.

Although no location has yet been decided upon, the youth council hopes to have a place ready for occupancy by Feb. 2, he said.

DUNCAN LORIMER
... seeks approval

First United to Hear Rebellious Clergyman

A controversial ex-clergyman who conducted psychedelic services in a Vancouver church a year ago will speak at the First United Church Sunday night at 8:30.

Jim McKibbon, 37, is now a producer of the CBC's Hourglass Show in Vancouver and a free-lance broadcaster. He left the Anglican church in May after being a minister for 17 years.

★ ★ ★

He was criticized by his superiors for his conduct as minister of St. Anselm's Church near the UBC campus. He spoke out against U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war, stringent marijuana laws and the "Victorian" attitude.

He will speak with Rev. Walter Donald of Christ Church Cathedral and some University of Victoria personalities on Freedom in the University.

Mr. McKibbon is co-chairman of the UBC alumni commission on student unrest.

School Libraries May Open to Public

Two senior secondary school libraries in Greater Victoria may open to the public in the evenings.

Victoria high school principal Duncan Lorimer said today he has asked for school board approval to broaden evening library service initiated for students a year ago.

John Wallace, principal at Oak Bay Senior Secondary, said library evening hours for students were started two weeks ago. If experience by Christmas suggests students wouldn't be crowded out, he favors inviting the public in too.

NO LENDING

Both envisage the libraries being available to anyone of high school age, not for the loan of books but for reading and use of reference works.

"We don't have enough books for the students themselves so we couldn't operate as a lending library," said Mr. Wallace.

For the past year, the Vic High library has been open for students from 7 to 9 p.m. Mondays to Thursdays under the supervision of a school board part-time employee. The Oak Bay senior school library is operating on the same basis.

Mr. Lorimer said the policy has worked out well for student study and researching.

ONLY HANDFUL

Esquimalt Junior Secondary School also tried evening hours for students for about three months this spring but only a handful made use of the library.

Principal Donald Smith said today that school board has not approached him on re-instituting evening hours again this fall.

School board chairman Peter Bunn said this morning any move which "gives the schools back to the people" will get a favorable hearing from trustees.

Trustees are on record as for community use of school facilities where practical. A new low rental fee schedule had led to heavy public use of school gyms and activity rooms during evenings.

SHOPPING GUIDE

A Love of Books Begins at Home

By PENNY SAVER

Students of culture such as Marshall McLuhan insist that we are headed toward a visual culture where literacy will be unimportant. This may be true, but the post-literate age is still in the future as far as schools are concerned. Parents who want their children to do well in school must encourage them to love reading. Threats and promises won't do this, nor will the child suddenly grow to love books as soon as he reaches the age of six. A respect for reading should be developed from a very early age if it is to have any effect at all. This is why I am a great believer in parents who read to their children. After all, if mother and father never touch a book, why should their sons and daughters?

It is because I believe this that many of the youngsters on my Christmas list will receive books. I only hope their parents will be encouraged to read them to their tots. One set of books that I am particularly fond of giving to very young children are those by Brian Wildsmith. These are large colorful books printed in large, easy-to-read type. The illustrations are fantastic, bright and impressionistic. The first I saw of this illustrator's work was an ABC which costs $3.50. I felt that the way he handled the pictures was just right for a child. Others must have felt so as well because the list of his books has been growing in leaps and bounds. He has illustrated Fontaine's fable of the "Lion and the Rat" ($3.25) and a collection of Mother Goose rhymes ($4.95). This last book includes rhymes I have never heard before as well as many old favorites. It is interestingly set out and fun to read even for adults. He also has a series of three books on creatures, each costing $3.25: "Wild Animals," "Fishes" and "Birds," that I would not hesitate to recommend for a preschool naturalist.

Poems From Canada

Poetry is often a stumbling block for today's children. They can't see the use of it and learning it under forced schoolroom conditions often leaves the most tolerant child hating the sound of a rhyme. That is why I am so excited about a new book of poetry for children I found for $5.95. It is called "The New Anthology of Canadian Poetry for Children" and is aimed at the eight to 12 age group. It includes 71 poems of Canadian origin, some written by children, others translations of French-Canadian poems or Eskimo chants. It is beautifully illustrated in color. While it is not guaranteed to make a child love poetry it is certainly a wonderful introduction that cannot do any harm. All sorts of poetry are included from free verse to conventional forms. Since some of the poems are by children, it may even encourage the youngster to try his hand at a poem of his own and learn by doing.

Adults can learn a lot from books as well, especially books such as the "Bluffer's Guide." There are several of these little 75-cent books that promise "instant erudition." Each gives a vocabulary on a specific topic that will enable you to hold your own in any conversation — without actual knowledge — provided you have the courage to keep on bluffing of course. Among the topics are Art, Finance, Music, Theatre and Literature. If these books work, it will prove a theory I have held a long time: it isn't what you know that counts but how you out-talk your opponent.

If you would like to know where to find these books, please call 382-3131.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Goddard, 444 Vincent Avenue, will mark 50 years of marriage on Wednesday. They were wed in St. Faith's Anglican Church, Edmonton, by the late Canon Ingram-Johnston. To celebrate the anniversary a tea will be held at Centennial Church, on Saturday, from 2:30 to 5 p.m., hosted by their daughter, Mrs. Edward (Florence) Parham. The couple has seven sons: Wesley, Abbotsford; Donald, Norman and Conrad, all of Edmonton; Neil, Coal Lake; Wilbert, Montreal, and Ralph, Portage La Prairie. There are 31 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren. Mrs. Goddard was born in Michigan and her husband in England. Mr. Goddard served with the Seventh Battalion of the Canadian Expeditionary Force in France, was wounded at Vimy Ridge in 1917 and was awarded the Military Medal.

KNIT AND CHAT

By MAY MAC LEAN

Double-Knit Wool Used For Emergency Measure

Mac Lean

Living as I do, in a large apartment complex on the back river in Montreal, I am often asked out to coffee with my neighbors. Over the months, I have become known as the "lady with the knitting column", and with my coaxing and help, many of my friends have begun to knit again, and have been pleasantly surprised at what they can accomplish.

While I do not make a regular practice of these coffee clatches, I do enjoy them once in a while. And there is always someone with a knitting problem.

Mrs. D., like me, is from England, and she had almost finished a bulky-knit cardigan for her son, when she ran out of wool. She was on the second sleeve with half the raglan shaping yet to do, plus the button and buttonhole band which went up either front and around the back neck.

For some reason she didn't get the extra wool right away, and when she did try, was told that that particular color, in the bulky weight, had been withdrawn.

By consulting the shade cards that I have on file, I was able to find the same shade as she wanted, was still available in the double knitting weight.

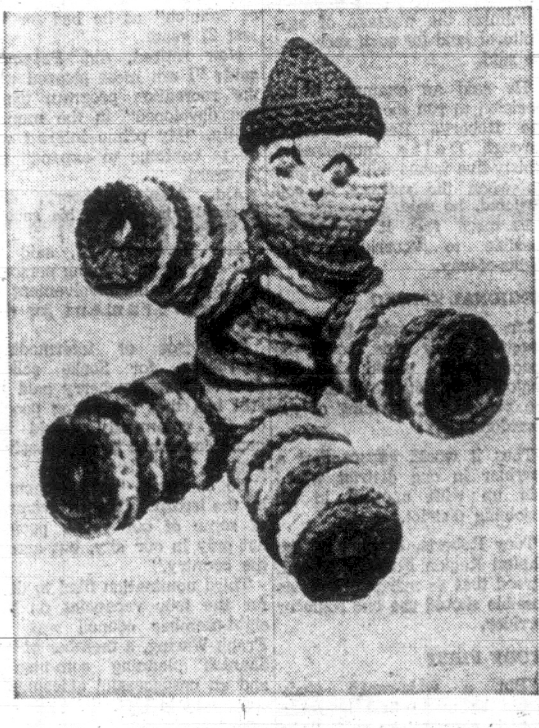
On my suggestion, she cut a strand at the top of each sleeve ribbing, carefully unpicked the row, placing the stitches on a needle as she went along. Then with the double knitting yarn used double, she re-knit the sleeve ribbing, casting off loosely at the wrist edge.

After unripping the wool that was in the sleeve ribbings, and rinsing to remove the crinkles, she had sufficient wool to finish the raglan shapings of the second sleeve. The button band was also knit with the two strands of the double knitting.

Unless you knew, it was impossible to detect the difference between the two weights of wool! I feel just as pleased as the knitter when they have been able to lick a problem. If you have had a similar experience, why not share it with our other readers?

Pierrot the Clown, another great Christmas gift idea! Body, arms and legs are made from crochet circles strung together! What a great way of using up all the odds and ends of double knitting or knitting worsted yarn! What a gay colorful clown you could make! Sure to appeal to girl's of all ages — it would make a wonderful bazaar item too!

To order leaflet No. 6823, send 35c in coin or money order (no stamps or personal cheques please) together with five cent stamped self-addressed envelope to: May E. Mac Lean, "Knit & Chat," c-o The Victoria Daily Times. Please be sure to state pattern number when ordering.



Crochet circles, strung together, form perky Pierrot the Clown. You'll find him an exciting way in which to use up your scraps of wool and a popular member of Santa's toy bag.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Worried About Her Handyman Hubby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: There is a woman in this neighborhood who is getting on all our nerves. She's a widow in her late fifties, and she is all the time asking our husbands to do things for her. She is well off enough to hire things done, but she seems to prefer calling husbands. It can be anything from starting her car to getting her cat off the roof.

My husband is 62, but he still has a roving eye, so yesterday when this widow called him to get her cat off her roof, he just about split himself getting his ladder and going down there. He must have been gone an hour.

When he came back, I asked him what took him so long and he said, "She invited me in for coffee." Abby, do you think they were drinking coffee all that time?

SUSPICIOUS

DEAR SUSPICIOUS: He's your husband, Lady. Could he get a cat off the roof, drink a cup of coffee, and justify your suspicions in one hour?

DEAR ABBY: Is there any such thing as a haunted house? My father left this house to me, and its been standing empty for nearly 10 years because people say it's haunted and nobody wants to live in it.

Maybe if you say in your column that it's just a lot of talk it will do some good. It's a good house and it's not falling down or anything.

HAVING TROUBLE

DEAR HAVING: There is no such thing as a haunted house, but my merely making that statement won't help. Fix the place up, and give it a new look, otherwise you won't stand a ghost of a chance of selling it.

DEAR ABBY: I would be very grateful for any advice you or any of your readers could give me.

I have a wonderful husband and two lovely children. My problem is with my daughter, age eight.

She is now in the second grade and has always liked school, until the last month or so. Since then she has said that her friends didn't "like" her any more.

Every day it's the same story: She gets up complaining that she's "sick" and wants to stay home. Then when I make her ready for school she cries and says she doesn't want to go because nobody "likes" her.

Abby, it breaks my heart to send a child to school crying, but what can I do? I try to reassure her, but it does no good. By the time she's out of sight I'm in tears, too.

Is there something I should do? Or should I let it go?

UPSET MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: When a child suddenly feels friendless, disliked, and unwanted at school, there is a reason. Make it your business to find out why. Spend as much time with your daughter as possible in order to make her feel comfortable with you, and without prying, give her every opportunity to confide in you. If she doesn't reveal her problem, consult with her teacher. Perhaps she will have a clue. If that fails, and your daughter continues to dread school, seek professional help. But don't let it go.

CONFIDENTIAL TO L.L. OF PHILLY: Yes, sex is "natural." But so is eating. And civilized people control their appetites. They don't walk into a bakery and grab everything that looks good to them.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Lost Angeles, Calif., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Girls Wearing Glasses Still Receive Passes

Lowman

Today a girl who wears glasses is likely to get passes. This is literally true. Haven't you known women who were prettier with eyeglasses than without them? I have. Of course, they were the right kind of glasses!

The shape and color of your frames are important. You should not wear round frames if you have a round face, or narrow straight-across ones if you have a wide face, or those with an upsweep if you have a long thin face. The color of the frame can be very flattering.

There are also other things to remember if you wear glasses. Try to avoid either an extremely severe or a very "busy" appearance in your hairdo and your clothes. In the first instance, glasses will tend to make you appear prim. In the second instance, too much jewelry and too many furbelows and ruffles, along with the glasses, are just too much.

By all means, use eye makeup. Your false eyelashes cannot be too long but they are more natural looking, anyway, if they are just a little longer than your own. Make your brows a bit darker. Use eyeshadow in a color which is becoming to you. The frames and makeup can actually highlight your eyes.

Be careful about the application of rouge. Do not apply it so it outlines the lower rims of your glasses. Either blend it upward a bit or fade it out before it reaches the rims. Since rouge is usually applied at the centre cheek, over the cheekbones, the effect of outlining the rims could easily occur unless you take care to prevent it.

Roll-back hats and those with soft ripply brims are flattering to the eyeglass wearer. Those with a one-sided sloping effect are also flattering. These detract from the horizontal effect of the glasses. Veils are taboo.

Most of all, wear glasses if you need them. Nothing is more aging than fumbling about and squinting. Besides that, you may cause eyestrain, you make enemies of your friends when you fail to speak to them on the street, and you also miss much of the detailed beauty of the world about you.

Josephine Lowman gives further suggestions to girls who wear glasses in her free leaflet, "Looking Straight and Pretty." For your copy, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

CLUBWOMEN'S NEWS

Install Officers — Mrs. Elizabeth Clement was elected and installed as president when the Nursing Sisters' Association (Victoria Unit) held their annual meeting and tea in the Duke of Kent Room of the Empress Hotel recently. Mrs. Blanche Smith was installation officer. Also installed were Mrs. Bettie Drean, first vice-president; Miss Zoe Harman, second vice-president; Mrs. Janet Newstead, social convener; Miss Olive Wilson, secretary; Mrs. Lois Clarkson, treasurer; Miss Jessie Sangster, welfare. Miss Wilson was conagratulated on being one of seven nursing sisters of Canada to receive the Centennial Medal. A wreath was placed at the Cenotaph by Miss Clement. Mrs. G. Stewart will hold an afternoon tea for members Wednesday, Feb. 9, at 201—1060 Craigdarroch Road.

Prepare Hampers — It was decided at a recent meeting of the Esquimalt Chapter IODE that Mrs. J. A. Brown, secretary for services at home and aborad, and Mrs. A. L. Oakley will purchase two Christmas hampers. These hampers, to which members will contribute the amount they usually spend on gifts for each other, will be sent to two needy families in Esquimalt. Mrs. Brown displayed two complete 35-piece layettes worth $37.50 each and 41 used items of infants' clothing. The layettes and the clothing will be sent to hospitals in the Yukon and North West Territories. Twenty-seven hospital gowns made from men's white shirts, will be sent to Korea for patients and workers in the hospitals. Forty-seven books valued at $11.25 will be sent to armed services personnel in Germany. Mrs. B. P. Pritchett was authorized to send a donation of cod liver oil and dressings to the Victorian Order of Nurses. A blue afghan made by Mrs. T. G. Clarke will be sent to Rose Manor. Educational secretary Mrs. Lance Hall reported that a $100 bursary was presented on behalf of the chapter to Ronald Graham by the regent Mrs. W. R. Jeffs in an awards ceremony at Esquimalt Secondary School. Mrs. L. E. Collard, world affairs convener, read from "The Canadian Family Tree" on the contribution Indians have made to Canada's national life.

English Twins Make a Million With Needle and a Yard of Cloth

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — What has four legs, dances divinely and has parlayed a yard of cloth into a million-dolllar business?

None other than Jackie and Gill Hamilton, bouncy, blonde, identical twins from England who are in the process of putting American girls into itsy-bitsy, teeny-weenie bikinis.

But a shortage of bikinis in Puerto Rico several years ago started their fingers dancing with a needle. They began designing and making their own mini-swim suits.

They did such a good job that they were showered with requests from hotel guests who wanted a Jackie-Gill bikini.

Between acts, they began to build a clientele that soon would push them farther and farther away from the stage and closer to the sewing table.

In 1965 they hired a few girls and began making bikinis in earnest. Business was so good that they moved into a factory in north Miami 18 months ago.

Today they have 68 employees who turn out hundreds of bikinis a week for shipment across North America.

Business is so good that the girls hardly ever accept dancing engagements any more, and when they do it's only for one night.

The girls are incorporated under the name The Twins, Inc. The company will gross about a million dollars this year, they say. And they can see no end in sight.

"Bikinis are here to stay," declared Jackie. "As long as you have women you'll have bikinis."

JACKIE RETURNS TO UNITED STATES

NEW YORK (AP) — Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis has returned to the United States for the first time since her wedding a month ago.

Friday is the fifth anniversary of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, and next Monday the late president's son and namesake will be eight years old. Caroline Kennedy's 11th birthday is two days later.

The children attended the wedding, October 20, of their 39-year-old mother and the 62-year-old Onassis on the Greek shipping magnate's privately-owned island of Skorpios. The children then returned to their private schools here.

This Actress Moved Up When She Left Broadway

By SUSAN RILEY

Holly Turner, a gamine 26-year-old actress, has made that trip and she did it to live a fuller life.

Holly is starring now in Generation, playing at the McPherson Playhouse. She knows the part well because she did it on Broadway for nine months opposite Henry Fonda.

"I was overwhelmed when I got the part in Generation in New York," she said. And you can tell by the way her eyes light up that she means it.

It happened in 1964. She came straight from drama school, a middle-class Pittsburg suburb, and a part in a high school play to the centre of theatre in North America.

SAT TALKING

"I was sitting in a waiting room, too timid to approach the casting man," she recalled. "All these other girls kept sailing up to him and I just sat there, terrified."

She finally mustered up her courage, auditioned and signed a contract the next day.

"Pow!" she said, "just like that.

"And I'm not the sort of person who always wanted to be an actress since I was five," she laughed.

"And I sure didn't have a stage momma. There aren't many stage mommas in Pittsburg."

She became interested in acting as a teenager, though, and toured with Marat Sade in the U.S., did TV interview shows and tried for a part in a TV series . . . "Tess Truehart was the role, if you can believe it."

Now she is more or less retired. She retired to Edmonton last year when she married a doctor, Dr. Gerd Weih, and inherited his family of four.

Holly didn't starve in a garret while she waited for parts. But she said actors still do that. Some friends of hers lived on liver for a year while trying for parts.

She took a few jobs after drama school in New York and soon found herself with the female lead opposite Henry Fonda.

"Fonda!" she said. "I was overwhelmed. Look at him and he is the President of the United States. I mean he just is," she joked.

"Before I got the part I was working for an optometrist called Doctor Doctor — really — and I got a call from a casting director asking me to try out for Generation. I thought it was some kind of TV series."

It didn't take her long to discover that Generation is William Goodhart's rollicking comedy about married life.

TWILIGHT ZONE

"Comedy is more of a strain than drama as far as an actess is concerned," she said.

"In drama, you sort of just go with the play. In comedy," she said, "the audience's reactions mean more."

Right now, Holly is in the twilight zone for actors, between one big part and their next role. It can, she admits, be frustrating.

LIFE FULLER

"My life is fuller now than when I was acting," she said. "I have done a lot of exciting things."

She accepted the role with the RPA company in Victoria because it was a "short run" and it sounded "exciting."

"Although I find this," gesturing to her hotel room, "empty, it is nice to be able to sleep in in the mornings," she smiled.

Is her career finished at 26? She admits that she has closed several doors on job possibilities, but she still has a great deal of talent to offer.

Where are you going now, Holly Turner?

"Probably nowhere," she said. But she was laughing.

Peacemaker Will Move

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (WP)—Middle East peacemaker Gunnar Jarring has definitely decided to move his headquarters to Geneva but is awaiting agreement of the parties on timing, an informed diplomat said Monday.

When replies have been received from Egypt, Jordan and Israel, Jarring is expected to propose a specific date for resuming the exchanges at the new site.

There's a Place for Us, Diana Tells Royal Family

LONDON (AP) — American pop star Diana Ross injected a plea for tolerance into the annual royal performance at the Palladium Monday night and got a big hand from the Royal Family. Several critics were less enthusiastic.

Diana, the Detroit girl who leads the Supremes, paused in an emotional performance of There's a Place for Us from West Side Story and spoke to the audience:

"A place for all of us—black and white, Jew and gentile, Catholic and Protestant.

"Such was the world of Martin Luther King and his ideal.

"If we keep this in mind, then we can carry on his work."

Then she finished the song and applause rang through the theatre, led by Princess Margaret and her husband, Lord Snowdon. In the royal box with them were Queen Mother Elizabeth, Prince Charles and 18-year-old Princess Anne.

Diana had earlier told impresario Bernard Delfont of her plan to interrupt the song. He approved after determining it was not a Black Power demonstration.

Don Short of the Daily Mirror comments: "The colored Supremes had obviously planned it as a moment of high drama. But the impact was lost. They got the coolest reception of the night."

The Guardian's Derek Malcolm says it was "a rather mawkish tribute which seemed inappropriate for the occasion." He adds the Supremes "never gave of their very considerable best."

Hunter Safe

SMITHERS (CP)—Al Stratton, 26, of Smithers, walked to safety Monday after being lost in bush country for two days while on a hunting trip in the Driftwood area, 60 miles northeast of here. He suffered no ill effects.

Prince Arrested

CAIRO (Reuters) — Prince Idriss, son of the late Riff leader Abdel Karim Khattabi, was arrested here Monday for attempting to smuggle $70,000 worth of narcotics into Egypt, the Cairo newspaper Al Ahram says. Authorities seized 168 packets of narcotics packed in France and smuggled from Beirut the paper says.

Gabor Grounded in Palma

PALMA, Majroca (Reuters) — Zsa Zsa Gabor was ordered today to surrender her passport and await trial on this Spanish vacation island for refusing to pay a $1,140 hotel bill and belting a policeman.

Miss Gabor, 45, who refused to pay the bill because she said it was exorbitant, was taken off an Air France flight for Paris on Monday night minutes before it was scheduled to leave.

N.Y. Teachers Return to Work

Children Resume Classes After Seven-Week 'Holiday'

NEW YORK (AP) — The city's 1,100,000 public school children return to their studies today after a prolonged and bitter teachers' strike that cost most youngsters seven weeks of classes.

Members of the United Federation of Teachers approved settlement terms Monday.

It was the third time since the strike began Sept. 9 that the predominantly white, 55,000-member teacher's union had gone back to the classroom. Two earlier settlements broke down and the walkout was renewed.

Upon word of the union's ratification, a state trustee officially took over operation of the controversial Ocean Hill-Brownsville experimentally decentralized school district in Brooklyn.

It was the transfer of 79 white teachers out of the predominantly Negro and Puerto Rican Ocean Hill district that led to the strike. A state committee has now been set up to oversee their return.

The Ocean Hill trustee, Herbert F. Johnson, associate state education commissioner, said he was putting off their return until Wednesday to allow time to work out class assignments.

WILL CO-OPERATE

State Education Commissioner James E. Allen Jr., who helped engineer the broad outlines of the peace pact, said Rhody A. McCoy, Ocean Hill administrator, had agreed to work with the trustee to implement the settlement.

McCoy warned teachers who had sided with the district's local governing board not to create trouble when the union teachers return to classes.

Albert Shanker, president of the UFT, still faces a charge of contempt under the state's Taylor Law which forbids strikes by public employees. He could receive up to 30 days in jail with the union fined $10,000 for each day it was on strike. The court hearing is not yet completed.

The strike, the longest teachers' walkout in the city's history, closed most of the city's 900 public schools for 36 school days and provoked racial and religious animosity between the Negro slums and the largely-Jewish UFT.

John J. O'Neill, a UFT vice-president relieved of his union duties for opposing the strike, accused Shanker of "racist leadership" that "fortunately producing nothing in terms of meeting his demands for the destruction of decentralization and the Ocean Hill-Brownsville project."

Ocean Hill is one of three experimental school districts set up to test the concept of community control of local schools as a means of improving the quality of education for youngsters in the slums.

Ocean Hill-Brownsville is one of the city's worst slums. Its population of 125,000 is 71 per cent Negro, 24 per cent Puerto Rican, four per cent white and one per cent Oriental.

Mental Hospitals Suffer by Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Thousands of mental patients were being sent home or transferred today because of a strike by a New York City hospital workers' union.

Creedmore State Hospital in Queens, which normally houses 6,300 patients, was half empty, and only half of its staff of 1,500 was on duty.

Other hospitals, including Bronx State Hospital and Manhattan State Hospital, were being partially evacuated.

The Creedmore strike began Monday. Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller denounced it as a "union power play" that made sick people "the pawns."

The strike was called by Council 50 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes to protest Rockefeller's decision to negotiate wages and working conditions with a rival union, the Civil Service Employees Association.

Council 50 wants to be recognized as the sole bargaining agent for non-professional workers at all of the state's 24 mental hospitals and 12 schools for the mentally retarded.

Dr. Alan D. Miller, state commissioner of mental hygiene, said after touring Creedmoor that the remaining patients were "fairing remarkably well." He said the strike had had "substantial impact, but it's not devastating."

LORDS REFORM PLAN SATISFIES NOBODY

LONDON (AP) — The British are proud of their tradition of political compromise but the Labor government has produced one on the House of Lords that appears to satisfy nobody.

Both the House of Commons and the Lords themselves begin debate on the reform plan today.

The proposal has already come in for criticism from the rank and file of both the Conservative and Labor parties. And some sources say unless the scheme picks up support, the whole idea may be shelved by Prime Minister Wilson's government despite Labor's election pledges to reform the 600-year-old Lords and end its hereditary basis.

Under the scheme worked out after consulting the opposition leadership, hereditary peers would no longer be guaranteed a right to vote.

Political leaders of both sides would pick a total of about 230 life peers—some of them from the politically-active hereditary Lords on the Conservative side—and their power to delay legislation passed by the Commons would be cut from one year to six months.

Once the Lords get rid of their hereditary albatross, they may feel they can spread their wings and challenge elected governments without any fear of being clipped again. The government of the day would always have a majority, but independent peers—judges, bishops, retired civil servants—could hold the balance of power.

When Labor members discussed the proposals last week, the best Home Secretary James Callaghan could say was that they represented "a pretty good bargain." The government had wanted to end the Lords' delaying powers entirely but Conservatives refused to agree.

WILL VOTE NO

Emanual Shinwell, Labor party elder statesman, said he would vote against the plan as a "cockeyed hotch-potch." William Hamilton, a vice-chairman of the party and veteran campaigner for total abolition of the Lords, said he was frightened by the new power of Labor's own prime minister to appoint life peers from his party.

Others complained that proposals to raise the Lords' salaries by an undisclosed amount could make it more profitable and secure for a member of the Commons to move up to the Lords—possibly in exchange for a much-needed Commons vote in favor of some government proposal.

Richard Crossman, the cabinet minister who negotiated the reform with the Tories, said it probably wouldn't last anyway because of Labor's plans to appoint a constitutional commission for another look at the whole structure of Parliament. Crossman argued that at least the reform would guarantee that a Labor government could push through its pet projects during the last, pre-election year of a Commons term without suffering a one-year block in the Lords.

But Conservatives do not want even that. The Conservative leadership says the reform should not go into effect until after the next election, expected in 1970.

More than 100 members of the upper house have put down their names to speak during the three-day debate, including Lord Milford, the only communist in either house. Some of the hereditary peers who would be deprived of their vote in the Lords—but not their right to speak—may put up a last-ditch fight against the proposal.

Arms Curb Talks Start Urged at UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — A growing number of countries have called in the United Nations for early talks between the Soviet Union and the United States on limitation of strategic weapons—nuclear inter-continental ballistic missiles and anti-ballistic missiles.

Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, Canada's disarmament expert, started the appeals in the first day of the debate. Since then there have been others, including two Monday—by a Swede and a Briton.

Burns mentioned in his speech that both superpowers have expressed willingness to open the talks.

Mrs. Alva Myrdal of Sweden said the Washington-Moscow talks are the next logical step toward disarmament.

DISPUTE FLARES UP

In other UN matters, there was a brief flareup of the Middle East dispute in the special political committee discussion of the UN agency in charge of assisting more than 1,000,000 Palestinian refugees and the China debate continued in the General Assembly.

The vote on a resolution on whether to admit Communist China and expel the Nationalists of Formosa is expected to come Wednesday.

The Nationalists, who have been sounding delegations, estimate the resolution will be defeated with a vote of 60 against, 44 for and 21 abstentions, including Canada.

Israel and Yemen exchanged charges during a debate on a report of the UN Relief and Works Agency. Yosef Tekoah of Israel said the Palestine refugee problem is the result of Arab aggression since 1949.

Adnan Tarcici of Yemen said the refugees had suffered from three successive aggressions by the "Zionists" who wanted to remove both the people of Palestine and their homeland.

VIEWING a portrait of himself is Robert Stanfield, leader of the Progressive Conservative party. The portrait, painted by Mrs. Sally Horsnell, of Aylesford, N.S., was presented to Mr. Stanfield in Halifax Saturday when he attended the annual meeting of the Nova Scotia Progressive Conservative Association. The presentation was sponsored by the Kings West Progressive Conservative Association. (CP Wirephoto.)

SFU Still Faces Difficult Problems

BURNABY, B.C. (CP)—Simon Fraser University still has many difficult problems to be dealt with internally, the Canadian Association of University Teachers said in a statement that lifted its censure of SFU imposed last May.

The report which lifted the censure was released Monday by Dr. Milton McClaren, president of the SFU Faculty Association, after his return from a CAUT executive meeting in Montreal.

"We are fully conscious of the multitude of difficult problems that remain to be dealt with at SFU," the statement said.

"We are convinced that these problems are now essentially internal and can only be resolved through the efforts of faculty, students and administrators within the university.

"We take the view that the resolution of censure has served its purpose, that it induced an energetic attack on the problems of university government and ensured that the role of the board (of governors) was reduced to its appropriate limits or something near them."

The censure of the board of this suburban Vancouver university said it interfered in academic matters and improperly administered the university.

"The unconditional lifting is one more important hurdle crossed in sorting out our administrative problems," said Dr. Strand.

"The censure was never meant to be a reflection on our academic programs. It was felt it might interfere with university recruiting of good faculty, but the indications are this has not happened and our teaching and research programs are as strong as ever."

Indian Act Termed 'Racist Legislation'

CHILLIWACK (CP) — The Indian Act is "an unqualified piece of racist legislation that would be a disgrace to any country," said a brief tabled Monday at the Indian Act revision conference here.

"The present Act, along with all its previous forms, is premised on the abominable and wholly eroneous assumption that the Indian people are in some way inherently incompetent," said the brief presented by the chiefs and councils of the two Lillooet bands.

The five-day conference, 13th of its kind held in Canada this year, was attended by more than 40 delegates from Vancouver-area bands on its opening day.

Present legislation has "demeaned the Indians' dignity in the eyes of their fellow Canadians and, inevitably, to a considerable extent in their own," the brief said.

The present Indian Act gives far too much power to the minister of Indian affairs, the brief said, and more authority must be given to band councils.

Invalid View Rejected On New Languages Bill

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Justice Minister John Turner Monday rejected the view of J. T. Thorson, former president of the Exchequer Court of Canada, that the federal government's official languages bill is constitutionally invalid.

The bill would make French and English the official languages of Canada for all federal government purposes and set up machinery for putting this principle into effect. It does not impose any obligation on the provinces.

Asked during the Commons question period if he intended to refer the bill to the Supreme Court of Canada for an opinion on whether it violated the constitution, Mr. Turner said he had consulted his legal advisers in the justice department and was assured that the legislation did not in any way go beyond the bounds of the Canadian constitution.

There was no need to seek the opinion of the Supreme Court, he added.

Mr. Thorson, one of Canada's most outspoken opponents of official bilingualism, wrote to Prime Minister Trudeau Nov. 12 to oppose the bill and ask the prime minister to refer it to the Supreme Court.

THOUSANDS DISTURBED

In his letter Mr. Thorson said thousands of Canadians not of French origin were "profoundly disturbed over the attempts to impose a dual French and English nationality on the people of Canada that are being pressed with such intensity."

He said that under Section 91 of the British North America Act Parliament did not have the power to amend the constitution as regards the "use of the English or the French languages" and said a strong argument could be made that the official languages bill falls under this section.

He said the bill was an attempt to give French the status of an official language in areas where it does not have such status now.

SEEKS UPPORT

The prime minister is also seeking the support of the 10 provincial governments for a constitutional amendment that would provide a bill of rights, including a guarantee of equality for the English and French languages, binding on both federal and provincial governments.

This aim is expected to be a major subject of discussion at a federal-provincial constitutional conference in Ottawa Dec. 16-18.

In the Commons Monday George Hees, (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) asked Mr. Trudeau if he intended to have the coming conference open to observers appointed by the provincial and federal opposition parties.

Mr. Trudeau said that the makeup of the provincial delegations would be up to the provincial governments but that if the provinces approved the federal government intended to reserve space at the conference representatives to attend as observers.

Mr. Trudeau also said that his government expected to have representatives of the Yukon and Northwest Territories participate in the federal delegation.

Paper Suspended

SAIGON (Reuters) — The information ministry has suspended the Saigon daily newspaper Tia Sang for three days, a ministry spokesman said Monday. He said the paper had printed a distorted version of the reception given to a Vietnamese cultural group performing abroad. This brought to 13 the number of newspapers suspended or closed indefinitely by the ministry in three weeks.

8 CARD OF THANKS

We are more grateful than mere words can express to all who did so much to help us through this time of sorrow on the loss of our beloved son, Robert Edward, who died accidentally Nov. 12, 1968. We are deeply grateful to Rev. Dr. Smiley for her loving message, the members of the band, pallbearers, members of the swim club, school classmates, members of the Shop Easy staff, and all our loving friends. These are memories that will last forever in our hearts.

The pearly gates were opened,
a gentle voice said "come,"
And with farewells unspoken,
he gently entered home.
—Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Aubrey and Ronald.

We desire to thank our friends for their kindness, words of sympathy, cards and floral offerings in the loss of a dear husband and father.—Mrs. Molly Cameron and family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

COWARD. — In loving memory of Robert Coward, passed away Nov. 19, 1964.

"Nothing but memories as we journey on,
Longing for a smile from a loved one gone;
None knows the depth of our deep regret;
But we remember when others forget.
—Loving wife, Helen, and son, Rod.

COWARD — In loving memory of father, Robert Coward, passed away Nov. 19, 1964.

"The depths of sorrow we cannot tell,
Of the loss of one we loved so well.
And while he sleeps a peaceful sleep
His memory we shall always keep."
—Eleanor, Ken and family.

His thoughts unknown
And his mysteries one day to unfold
But left me memories I am proud to own.
To love and to be parted is the greatest sorrow to one's heart.
Your name is whispered in all my prayers.
A smile and tears though sincere.
How often I have wished you were here.

BRIDGE LESSON

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

South's 22 high card point game contract is not a good one. He might well have dropped the bidding at two diamonds and North really should have bid three diamonds instead of three no-trump but South finds himself at three no-trump and it is up to him to try to make it.

Pass	3 N.T.	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead—♥ 3

He starts by playing dummy's jack of hearts at trick one. This does no good since East produces the queen. He lets the queen hold. Sometimes an opponent is nice enough to try a second suit. As a matter of fact, East does lead his king of spades but this doesn't help South one bit because East's next play is a heart.

South is in with the ace of hearts and if he goes after the diamonds right away, South will wind up with only eight tricks since the best he can do will be to make six diamonds and two aces.

South must take the club finesse before attacking diamonds. He leads the queen of clubs. If West covers, South comes back to his hand with the jack; if West ducks, south is still in his hand. Now he can try the diamond finesse and, since that works also, he will have his nine tricks.

South's play was a desperate one. He needed two successful finesses and if either went wrong he would be down several tricks at three no-trump but it is mighty good policy to take almost any risk at all in order to make an undoubted contract. Certainly a one-in-four chance is worth taking, and the chance that two finesses will work is one in four.

WANT TO BUY

SHORT ON THE DOWN PAYMENT?

We specialize in helping young families get started in their first home by supplying the extra cash needed for today's high down payments.

The loan will be considered a 2nd Mortgage, at low real estate rates, and handled in the same businesslike manner as your 1st Mortgage.

Also important, only normal legal appraisal and inspection fees will be deducted from the proceeds of the loan. And, the loan may be repaid at any time without notice or bonus.

To get complete information (in confidence) on our 2nd Mortgage Loan Service for home buyers, write, phone or stop by today.

CHANCE OF A LIFETIME

A grocery business for nothing. Yes, almost. My tenant didn't mind his business, and had to give up. The former owner made very good money. All you do is put in about $3,000 to $4,000 worth of stock, pay rent of $200 for store and nice living quarters, and $35 per month on my fixtures. This store has been abandoned and I must get it opened quickly. Fixtures include large walk-in cooler Fish and chip compartment, meat slicer, scales, stands, etc. You can do about $50,000 a year gross, easily. Living quarters to be all redecorated. In busy community just 8 miles from City Centre. Customers are waiting for this store to reopen. 477-5081

Exiled Russians Lose Appeal Bid

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The supreme court of the Russian federation of the U.S.S.R. today rejected appeals by five Russian dissidents sentenced to exile or prison terms for demonstrating against the Soviet-led occupation of Czechoslovakia.

The five are Dr. Pavel Litvinov, grandson of Stalin's former foreign minister Maxim Litvinov; Larissa Daniel, wife of imprisoned writer Yuil Daniel; linguist Konstantin Bobitsky, student Vadim Delowe and worker Vladimir Dremlyuga. They were not in the courtroom to hear lawyers argue their case during the four-hour hearing.

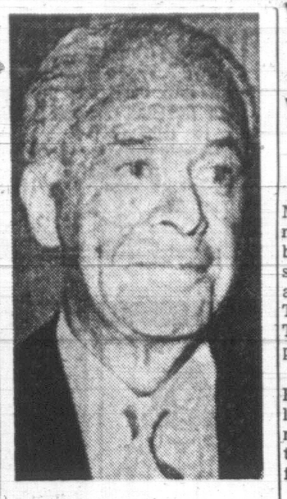
Only a small audience, including close relatives of the five but not their friends, were allowed into the courtroom near Red Square, the scene of their demonstration on Aug. 25.

The five were convicted at the end of a three-day trial last month for disrupting public order and disseminating anti-Soviet propaganda.

Litvinov and Mrs. Daniel were sentenced, respectively, to five and four years of exile in remote regions of the Soviet Union. Babitsky is to be exiled for three years, Delone was imprisoned for two years and 10 months and Dremlyuga for three years.

Pending the appeal, all five had been held in prison here despite a provision of the Russian Federation's criminal code providing for the release of people sentenced to exile terms between sentencing and appeal hearings.

Relatives said no further appeals were expected and they believed Litvinov, Mrs. Daniel and Babitsky would be taken to their places of exile, as yet undecided, within the next few days. Because of the time they have spent in prison, nine months will be deducted from the period of exile.



FILM PRODUCER Walter Wanger, 74, died Monday in New York. He helped elevate to stardom movie greats such as Rudolf Valentino, Greta Garbo and Ingrid Bergman, and supervised the making of Cleopatra, a $40 million production.

Better Garbage Disposal Would Jump Cost to $19

New regulations to improve garbage disposal could cost Saanich householders one-third more than they now are paying.

Cost estimates presented to council Monday by garbage collector L. S. MacNutt quoted a cost of $15 to compact and compress garbage as required by proposed Metropolitan Health Board regulations.

Mr. MacNutt, who has the municipal contract, now charges $11 dollars to collect weekly in summer and every two weeks in winter.

In a Dec. 7 plebiscite, Saanich ratepayers will be asked to express their opinions on weekly collection year-round.

This, says Mr. MacNutt, will cost $19.

FLURRY OF DEBATE

His cost estimates prompted a flurry of debate and motions that illustrated Mayor Hugh Curtis' comment:

"This council seems to be squirrelly over garbage."

Council moved a recommendation to the health board that the new regulations for garbage disposal be delayed one year in the hope that a less costly solution could be found. It carried 4 to 3.

Ald. Alan Newberry said a vote for the motion represented a vote "for continued air pollution over a large portion of this municipality."

Mayor Curtis suggested it represented a "challenge" to Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer, to find a compromise between "this year's bad situation" and the new method which would eliminate burning of garbage.

Ald. Edith Gunning countered the first motion with one calling for the municipality to take over garbage collection "as soon as possible."

Ald. William Noel argued that the question "was far too complex to settle in five minutes."

Mrs. Gunning disagreed, saying the municipality has been collecting reports on taking over collection for the last four years.

"I can't think why it would be suggested that we are making a hasty decision."

Ald. Foster Isherwood said the quoted increase in contract collection costs show "the fat is in the fire." He said a decision must be made soon. He voted against the motion and it went down 5 to 2.

Ald. Leslie Passmore brought a third garbage motion. Council voted unanimously to call a special meeting to discuss garbage collection to which Mr. MacNutt will be invited. A date was not set.

An engineer's recommendation that sub-standard plastic garbage cans be labelled by the collector to show homeowners that they weren't up to standard was defeated.

Mayor Curtis commented that he is, and has been for some time, the happy owner of two satisfactory plastic cans. "I am very fond of them," he said amid laughter.

Sweden Sends Black Brant Into Orbit

KURNA (AP) — A Canadian-built Black Brant III rocket was successfully launched at the Esrange rocket range near this northern Swedish town early today.

The rocket, the first in a series of three, was launched by West German scientists investigating magnetic disturbances and storms in the North Pole area. The program is running parallel with an investigation of the Polar lights conducted by the European Space Research Organization.

Black Brant III is the first rocket of its kind to be launched from a European rocket station.

Jury Verdict Places Blame

A woman killed in an accident at Rockland and Linden Oct. 6 died due to the dangerous driving of Christopher Albertson, 1190 May, a coroner's jury ruled Monday.

The victim, Mrs. Dorothy Schofield, 404 Superior, was a passenger in a car driven by her husband which was in collision with Albertson's vehicle. The jury attached no fault to Schofield.

The acting jury foreman said the verdict was based on the jury's belief the Albertson car did not stop at a Linden Avenue stop sign.

Huge Barge To Be Built At Yarrows

Yarrows Ltd. shipyard in Victoria is going ahead on a huge, $2.5 million barge, although the contract has not been signed as yet.

John Wallace Yarrows manager, said Monday the project scheduled for completion late in May will employ a peak of about 150 additional men.

The barge — at 400 feet the largest ever built on the coast—is for Rivtow Ltd. in Vancouver and will be used to haul logs from Kitimat to Island points.

"I expect the first section to be down in about in about six weeks, although it will be two months before we're in full production," Mr. Wallace said.

Cecil Cosulich, president of Rivtown, said the contract will be signed later this week.

Poster Prizes Won by School Contestants

Susan Jackson, 15, of Central junior secondary school has been named winner of the senior division in a poster contest sponsored by Outdoors Unlittered.

Bruce Lum of Hillcrest elementary school topped the 11 to 13 division and Mark Curry of Doncster elementary headed contestants up to age 10.

Nearly 200 entries were received with Saanich schools producing the best showing. Prizes of $15, $10 and $5 were awarded in each age division.

Winning entries will be on display in the lounge of the Provincial Museum over the next two weeks. There will be a larger exhibition of the posters in local department stores after Christmas.

Enrolment Swells In Adult Classes

Enrolment in adult evening classes conducted by the Saanich Peninsula school board has more than doubled.

A total of 755 are taking part in 40 courses this fall, contrasted to 375 in 25 courses a year ago, reported Frank Baxter, director of adult education.

Twenty short courses will start in January, including new ones on golf, practical sailing and speed reading. Information is available from the board's office at 656-1111.

Liquor Probe Ordered

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand today announced the formation of a royal commission to inquire into liquor sales in Quebec since Jan. 1, 1964.

Mr. Bertrand's announcement at a news conference came amid Opposition allegations that the Quebec Liquor Board has been involved in illegal liquor commerce since board employees walked out for higher pay June 26.

Bonn Gets Sharp Note From U.S. on Tariffs

By NORMAN CROSSLAND The Manchester Guardian

BONN The West German government has received a sharply-worded note from Washington expressing American concern about proposals for preferential trading arrangements between the Common Market and Britain and possibly other European countries.

The U.S. government has pointed out that it was prepared to make sacrifices in respect of its own trading position so long as such arrangements led to an extension of the Common Market and, in the long term, to the political union of Europe. But tariff reductions by themselves, without the prospect of British membership of the EEC, were Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

Britain is skeptial of the arrangement proposal, which has become known as the Paris-Bonn plan, because it is likely to become the alternative to full membership and not a preliminary stage. The other EEC countries have agreed to examine the proposal, but are also not impressed by it.

It is believed that the American Secretary of State, Dean Rusk, told West German Foreign Minister Willy Brandt in Brussels last week that European discrimination against American trade could stimulate latent protectionism in the United States.

'He Kept Playing With Detonator'

MEXICO CITY (CP) — A Mexican airliner, hijacked by a middle-aged Cuban holding a bomb in shaky hands, landed safely here Monday night after a forced diversion to Cuba. Three Canadians, all from Toronto, were among the 18 passengers aboard.

The hijacker, identified as Hugo Torres on the passenger list, pulled out a homemade dynamite bomb 10 minutes after the DC-6 took off from Merida for Mexico City.

The Mercers said the hijacker placed the bomb on a seat next to them.

"He seemed very nervous and kept playing with the detonator," Mercer said. "After a few minutes, he walked into the cockpit with the bomb placed in a traveller's bag under his arm."

Jose Ruiz Hernandez, the pilot of the plane, said stewardess Ana Maria Gallesgos handed him a note containing a threat "to blow up the plane with a bomb if I refused to change my course and head for Havana."

CHANGED COURSE

The pilot said a steward tried to take the package away from the man but failed, and Ruiz changed course for Havana.

Another passenger, Onoeto Diaz, said the hijacker became nervous as the plane flew over the ocean and suddenly shouted:

"They're not going to Cuba. I am going to let it (the bomb) off. I don't care if you all die."

The hijacker calmed down when the pilot invited him to the cockpit and showed him instruments indicating the plane was headed for Havana. The hijacker had been keeping a check on the course with a wrist compass, passengers said.

When the airliner landed at Havana, the hijacker placed the bomb back in the bag, walked into the cockpit and shook hands with the pilot.

"He said: 'Thanks very much. I am sorry I got a bit nervous you did a fine job,'" the pilot said.

Ruiz said the crew and passengers were treated with great courtesy by Cuban officials and given steak for lunch at the airport. After less than five hours at the Havana airport, they took off for Mexico City, without the hijacker.

Mexico's ambassador to Cuba, Miguel Covian, said he was bewildered by the hijacking, the second from Mexico to Cuba in less than two months, because Cuban National Airlines has regular flights from Mexico City to Havana twice a week.

Rhodesian Settlement Long Way Off

By JOHN WORRALL
The Manchester Guardian

SALISBURY, Rhodesia — Given almost any reading of the Rhodesian situation after the weekend collapse of the talks with Britain, it seems reasonable to suppose there will be no agreed settlement for a long time.

Those intimately concerned commercially, politically and diplomatically with Rhodesia must now adjust their plans accordingly. Some of those who seem certain that settlement was in the bag last week and banked on it were making hurried readjustments Monday.

Some observers here believe there will never be a settlement. But it is surprising how many businessmen here still believe an agreement can be reached.

But their assessment is made on businessmen's logic. They failed to appreciate political trends in Rhodesia, which are toward the right in favor of separate development and steeply away from a multiracial country.

WIDE DIFFERENCES

The differences between Britain and the Rhodesian regime are almost irreconcilable. Although Prime Minister Harold Wilson, at great risk to himself, made the terms for settlement last month as palatable as possible to the Rhodesian whites—and they are acknowledged here to be the best terms offered since the white minority declared independence three years ago—Prime Minister Ian Smith couldn't face giving cast-iron guarantees against impediments to majority rule or against retrogression after independence, even though African majority rule could not occur for decades.

Smith has been under severe criticism from his Rhodesian Front Party for negotiating at all on a multi-racial constitution. The pressures against him would have been enormous if he had agreed to a system of external checks to facilitate the free flow of African political advancement.

Whatever might have been his private views—and those Rhodesians are never permitted to glimpse—he faced a serious party rebellion.

But business pressure on Smith must now be considerable. The green light now is on for a powerful campaign by a new multi-racial centre party which is building up considerable white support. The centre party view is that there can never be a settlement with the Rhodesian Front, therefore the ruling party has to be removed. It will be a gigantic task, but as sanctions are likely to be toughened up, the task might be easier as time goes on.

Milk Board To Include Duncan Man

Duncan dairy farmer J. Hulbert was appointed to an interim five-man committee to set up a dairy products promotional fund, B.C. Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford announced today.

The fund was established after approval by a mail plebiscite among the province's milk producers who are concerned about market inroads by burgeoning artificial milk products.

The first directors of the fund were appointed to serve until the end of 1969 when the next board will be elected by the farmers. Besides Mr. Hulbert, the appointees are G. W. Park of Pitt Meadows, W. C. Blair of Langley, R. Saunders of Lumby and W. Martens of Vanderhoof.

B.C. Milk Board chairman E. C. Carr and dairy commissioner R. L. Wilkinson will be ex-officio members of the first board.

HOME GARDEN

Use Outdoor Planters

By HILDA BEASTALL

Too many outdoor planters remain empty when summer flowers are finally removed from them. With our usually moderate winters we should do better than this, for a great many attractive small plants can be used either as more or less permanent residents, or for winter only.

Hilda

Quite often the idea of semi-permanent inhabitants for outdoor planters are not given serious thought until a few winter heathers are used for a season.

These are so pleasant to look at with their pink, red or white little bells on dull days, that additions are often made in spring to furnish the planter with permanent color.

When we say permanent, it must be realized that most plants will outgrow the planter by the fifth year, some after three years.

The overall plan, however, can cost far less labor and less money than filling the planter annually with bulbs in fall and bedding plants in late spring.

These may stay in as long as the heathers, increasing in number each year. When finally removed, they will doubtless find a spot in the open garden to naturalize.

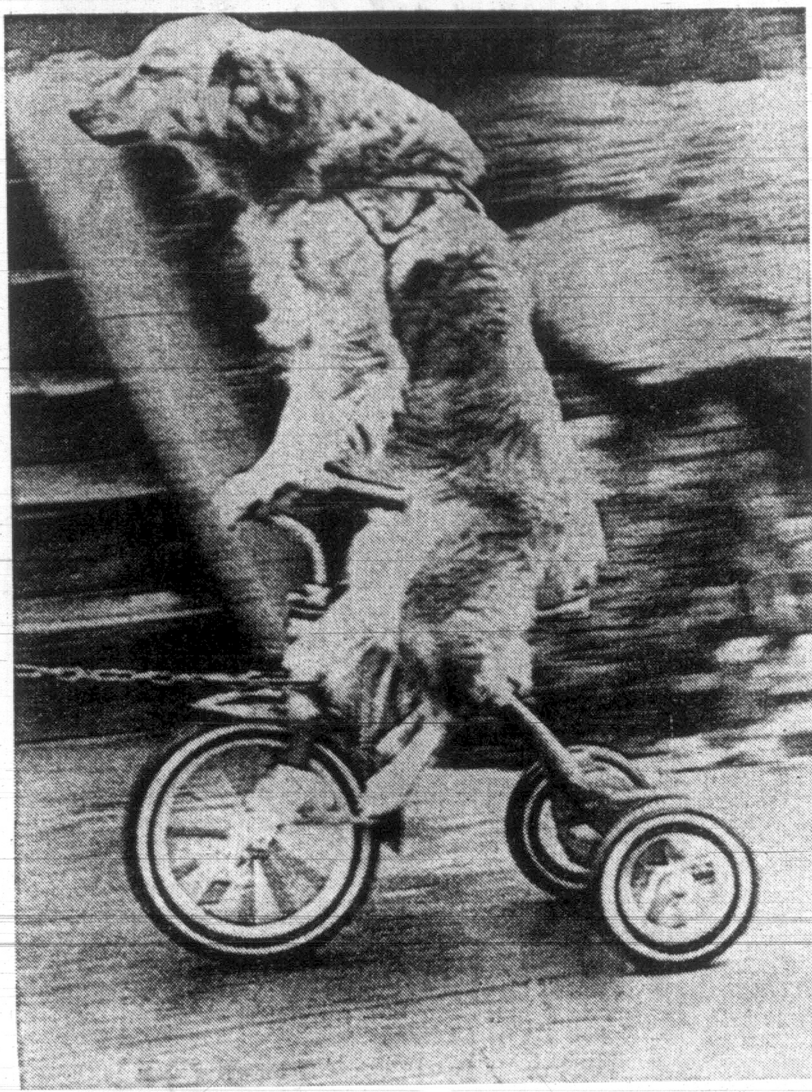
A very simple treatment for a partly shaded planter would be a mixture of variegated and green leaved perwinkle, known as vinca minor, and v.m. variegata. Both have lovely lavender colored flowers for weeks in spring and summer.



COYDOG ON WHEELS? It's a rarity to come across a coydog but to see one hotrodding down a sidewalk on a tricycle is straining credulity. Mitzi, part miniature collie, part coyote, also rides a skateboard with ease, boosts her owner, John Benzie, of Seattle. (AP Wirephoto.)

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

When N. Caledonia Became B.C.

By BOB BOWMAN

Here's a quiz question to try on your friends. What parts of Canada were originally known as New Galloway, New Ireland, Ile Saint Jean, Assiniboia, and New Caledonia? A map of Canada would look very different today if those names had been retained.

Bowman

New Galloway became Cape Breton; New Ireland is New Brunswick; Ile Saint Jean is Prince Edward Island; New Caledonia is British Columbia.

The federal government intended to use Assiniboia as the name of Canada's fifth province, but Louis Riel insisted on Manitoba and the change was one of the concessions made to him in 1870.

Nov. 19 is an important date in the history of British Columbia. It was on that date in 1858 that the mainland, known as New Caledonia, became the separate colony of British Columbia, and James Douglas became the first governor at a ceremony at Fort Langley. Matthew Baillie Begbie was sworn as the first judge of the new colony. The name was changed from New Caledonia to avoid confusion with the French colony in the South Pacific.

SENTIMENTAL REASONS

It was on Nov. 19, 1866 that British Columbia and Vancouver Island were united as one colony. Historian Margaret Ormsby believes that the date was chosen for sentimental reasons rather than by coincidence.

It was of the utmost importance on Nov. 19, 1858, to preserve order throughout the mainland. Gold had been discovered along the Thompson and Fraser rivers, and prospectors were rushing into areas from the U.S.

If there had been fighting with the Indians, the U.S. would have sent in troops to protect its citizens and British Columbia probably would have been annexed by the U.S. Douglas and Begbie did preserve order in a most remarkable way.

Another man who played an important role was George Pearkes, Crown solicitor of Vancouver Island who presided over the court at Fort Hope. A distinguished descendant, George Pearkes, V.C., recently served as lieutenant governor of British Columbia.

Other Nov. 19 events:

1775—Governor Carleton arrived at Quebec eluding the Americans who were beseiging the ctiy.

1794—Jay's Treaty between Britain and U.S. appointed commission to study Canadian boundary. Lieutenant-Governor Simcoe of Upper Canada opened portage road to Lake Simcoe and named it Yonge Street.

1804—Scottish actor Ormsby opened first threatre in Montreal with plays "The Busy Body" and "The Sultan."

Mission Boat Bids Closing

Bids for the sale of Messenger III—a mission boat operated by the Shantymen's Christian Association—will close Wednesday.

"We have had a number of offers from fishermen, dealers and pleasure boat enthusiastists," Percy Wills, Vancouver Island superintendent of the Shantymen's Association said here today.

For 20 years the 50-foot mission boat has sailed the coasts of Vancouver Island and the mainland, spreading the gospel and performing errands of mercy.

She is being sold because much of this work is now being done by air and road transport. Her successor, Messenger IV, will be a truck and trailer carrying a speed boat.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Michael Cooley, age 12, of Indianapolis, Indiana, for his question:

What exactly are neurons?

Twang a guitar string. The motion triggers pulsing vibrations as your muscle energy is translated into sound energy. This can be compared with certain activities of the nerve cells, alias the neurons, inside the body. A comparison of this sort is an analogy, and like most analogies it takes you only part way toward grasping a new problem. A neuron is a living cell, a guitar string is inanimate. Sound is triggered by vibrating molecules and it travels about 1,100 feet per second. Neurons are powered by electrochemical energy and they carry their impulses at about 350 feet per second. This speed, however, is fast enough to flash a signal from your finger to your brain and back again in 1-100th part of a second.

The nervous system is a miraculous network of some 10 billion assorted neurons. Each is a living cell with a small central nucleus that governs its chemical processes and organizes its specialized duties. Unlike most living cells, the cytoplasm around the nucleus of a nerve cell spreads out into threads and fringes of sensitive fingers. These dendrites or never endings are sensors waiting to be triggered by stimuli coming from outside the body or from other neurons or stimuli inside the body. The neuron network is in touch with every corner of the body. Each of its cells is triggered to respond to certain stimuli and to perform a specialized duty in the well-organized nervous system.

Carry Messages

Sensitive dendrites are on guard in every spot of the skin. They are the ending of a long cable-type sensory nerves that are sheathed in layers of special tissue. They respond to stimuli of heat and cold, wet and dry, rough and smooth. As soon as a stimulus is received, the neurons spring into fast action. In the long cable of a sensory neuron, electrochemical energy sends an impulse on its way to the brain. The cable may be a foot or more long and the impulse is flashed to the next neuron in a relay system.

In less time that it takes to tell, the signal is relayed to the spinal cord and the correct department of the brain. There it is evaluated by teams of other neurons and the proper instructions flashed back to relays of motor neurons. These are the cable-type neurons that carry messages from the brain to the muscles. Before you know it, you are ready for action. The long sensory and motor neurons form the communication system between the brain and all parts of the body. The brain and spinal cord are made of tiny neurons, most of them shaped like cones or traingles.

Fast automatic action is triggered by data already built into the brain and spinal cord. Decisions are made in the higher, cerebrum part of the brain. A man-made computer decides on the basis of the data programmed into it, and so does the brain. A pre-student can strum a note on a guitar — but maybe not the one he wants. After a few lessons, skills are programmed into his brain computer. His neurons learn to respond with the right relays to twang the right notes and chords to sound off the right song.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Judith Engle, age 13, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, for her question:

What are cryonics?

The first part of this strange word is borrowed from an older Greek word meaning icy cold. It so happens that modern science is very interested in colder than normal temperatures and many teams of researchers are working to learn more about it. There are two aspects of this frigid work. One is concerned with non-living substances. The proper scientific term for this study is cryogenics. Experts in cryogenics have developed the liquid and frozen fuels that will make rocket travel to other worlds possible. They also have discovered surprising changes that occur when all heat is removed and ordinary substances are reduced to temperatures near absolute zero. This data may have all sorts of practical uses in industry.

The other aspect of the study of coldness concerns living things. This branch of science is called cryobiology. Laboratory researchers are testing the effects of deep freeze on single-cell creatures and also on higher animals. The science of cryobiology is proving very helpful to the world of medicine, and more may be expected in the future. The trick, of course, is to chill living cells to a state of absolute inactivity without freezing them beyond recall.

University of Victoria Names New President

NEW PRESIDENT of the University of Victoria, Dr. Bruce Partridge, 42, right, looks over bulletin with Chancellor Richard B. Wilson after selection by board of governors Monday. Dr. Partridge, of Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, will take office July 1, replacing acting president Dean Robert Wallace. Choice was culmination of eight-month search.

Takes Post In July

A leading young academic administrator from Johns Hopkins University in Maryland has been appointed president of the University of Victoria.

Dr. Bruce Patridge, 42, of Baltimore, was selected by the university's board of governors Monday night, effective July 1, 1969.

His appointment was announced by Chancellor Richard B. Wilson, chairman of the Uvic board. Dean Robert Wallace, named acting president last March, will continue in the post until the summer.

Dr. Partridge was selected from a number of applicants for the position, vacated by the resignation of Dr. Malcolm Taylor last year.

OUTSTANDING QUALITIES

"His qualifications are so outstanding that the final choice was relatively easy," Chancellor Wilson said. "He has an ideal blend of ability, youth, and wide experience in university governance.

"We are delighted that he has agreed to accept the presidency here."

Dr. Patridge's areas of study include nuclear physics and international and business law. He holds his doctorate in jurisprudence from Blackstone College of Law, in Chicago.

He has had 20 years of experience in university administration and was appointed administrative vice-president of Johns Hopkins in 1964. He has held senior posts at institutions in Ohio, New York state and Delaware.

INTERVIEWED HERE

An advisory committee interviewed Dr. Patridge here and several members travelled to Baltimore for further interviews. The 18-member committee represented all segments of the university, including students, faculty, alumni, the senate and the board of governors.

Chancellor Wilson said he was pleased at the number of "distinguished academics who let their names come forward for the presidency.

"As chairman of the presidential selection advisory committee, I was impressed by the interest that was shown from many parts of the world, and by the committee's approach to its task.

"All of its interviews led to an overwhelming recommendation that Dr. Partridge be appointed."

Here for the board meeting Monday and a news conference this morning, Dr. Partridge said:

"In my judgment, the University of Victoria has an unusual opportunity for creative growth and leadership in Canadian higher education. It can fulfill a unique role in the exciting future of British Columbia.

"Working with the faculty, the students, the senate and the board of governors to help bring these goals to fruition will be

PRESIDENT MISSING

Mali Army Takes Over After Coup

KEITA
. . . brought down

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AFP) — The army ousted President Modibo Keita of Mali today and immediately clamped a night-time curfew on Bamako, the Mali capital.

The whereabouts of the 53-year-old Keita, who has been president of the West African country of 3,600,000 since it became independent from France eight years ago, were not immediately known.

It announced that the "hour of liberation has come, and the regime of Modibo Keita and his valets has fallen."

The army imposed a dusk-to-dawn curfew and banned all meetings of more than three people, the radio said.

There was no indication of whether any fighting had preceded or followed the take over.

The communique said that a military national liberation committee had been set up and had taken power this morning.

This committee had taken over all political and administrative powers.

"Democratic institutions will follow from free elections," the communique said.

It was being broadcast at regular intervals, with Mali a folk music being interspersed.

Keita, 53, a former teacher and deputy of the French National Assembly, became president of Mali on Sept. 22, 1960, the day that Mali became an independent state. The country later took a marxist line, but recently came back into the French sphere after its economy had broken down.

Canada Studies Option To Pull Out of NORAD

Times News Services

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Trudeau said today that possible Canadian withdrawal from North American Air Defence Command is "indirectly" under review by the government.

NORAD is a joint Canada-U.S. command. The present agreement expires in May, 1973, but can be reviewed at any time at the request of either country. The command was formally established in 1958.

"Indirectly, yes," Mr. Trudeau replied.

He said Canada could technically stay in NORAD even though it reduced its commitment. The crucial point was the amount of arms at the disposition of NORAD.

If the weapons commitment was reduced to near zero, the command would be "defunct."

The prime minister was closely questioned on the government's future plans for its roles in NATO and NORAD by Progessive Conservative opposition members. He confirmed that in the foreign policy review Canada's contributiin to NORAD would be re-examined just as this country's role in NATO was under intensive examination.

Mr. Trudeau said that the United States had not been consulted before the foreign policy review including a possible cut-back in Canada's contributions to NORAD was launched. Eldon Wooliams (P.C. — Calgary North) had enquired about the U.S. reaction to Canada's examination of a possible reduction in its participations in NORAD.

S. Viets Shifting Paris Talk Stand

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government appeared today to be moving slowly toward a decision to send a delegation to the Paris peace talks.

Some South Vietnamese sources close to the government indicated that the principle of sending a delegation had been decided. There was a "50-50 chance" it would be led by Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky, the sources said.

Lending support to suggestions there has been a softening in Saigon's boycott of the Paris talks was a statement Monday by Premier Tran Van Huong in the resort city of Vung Tau.

Huong said South Vietnam "does not yet plan to send any delegation to attend peace talks in Paris," the official Vietnam Press said. This was clearly milder than the previous flat refusal to join the talks unless the National Liberation Front attended only as part of North Vietnam's delegation and not as a separate entity.

Some officials said they expect a Saigon delegation to go to Paris after a firm-sounding government statement reiterating non-recognition of the NLF and declaring that any remarks it makes at the Paris talks would be addressed only to Hanoi's bargaining team.

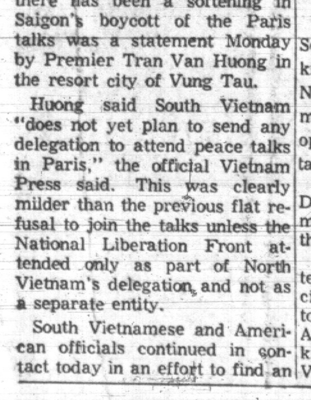
Red Viet Toll High

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese troops have killed 181 more Viet Cong and North Vietnamese and taken more than 200 prisoners in two operations 450 miles apart, military spokesmen reported today.

One battleground was south of Da Nang, the other was 115 miles southwest of Saigon near the Cambodian border.

South Vietnamese headquarters also reported three provincial capitals and six district towns shelled during the night. A spokesman said these attacks killed 29 civilians and 12 South Vietnamese soldiers.

Italian Political Crisis As Minority Gov't Quits



LEONE

ROME (AP) — Premier Giovanni Leone resigned today, ending the five-month life of his Christian Democrat minority government and plunging Italy into a full-scale government crisis in the midst of nation-wide labor unrest.

Leone quit to clear the way for a new attempt to form a center-left majority coalition of his own party with socialists and republicans.

President Giuseppe Saragat accepted the resignation and asked Leone, 60, to remain in a caretaker capacity until a premier-designate is selected.

The resignation signalled the end of a caretaker government that marked time while Italy's bitterly-divided Socialist party sought to unify its ranks to rejoin the centre-left it bolted after suffering a setback in the national election last May.

Leone's decision to quit came in the midst of spreading nationwide labor unrest.

The nation was in the grip of a 24-hour strike of government employees from the Alps to Sicily which paralysed trains and communications and closed government offices and schools.

The strikers demanded better fringe benefits and reform of the government's career advancement system.

Last Thursday, more than 10,000,000 employees in private business and industry went on strike for 24 hours, seeking higher state pensions.

Bank of France Fights Against Devaluation

PARIS (CP) — The French franc was hemmed against its absolute dollar floor again today at the close of the currency market, while the West German mark advanced against the franc to a record high.

Dealers said the Bank of France was the only buyer of francs in the market against the dollar and the mark.

Meanwhile, President Charles de Gaulle conferred today here with Couve de Murville and Finance Minister Francoise-Xavier Ortoli on measures to shore up the ailing French currency.

In a nationwide teleision interview Monday night, Couve de Murville partly blamed France's unbalanced budget for France's economic problems and announced austerity measures including a credit squeeze and cuts in subsidies to railroads and other public utilities.

Couve de Murville said he would urge the National Assembly today to prepare for cuts in public expediture — particularly for nationalized industries — to "display our willingness to re-establish economic equilibrium as quickly as possible."

Observers said France would also have to slash defence and foreign aid spending to unplug the inflated economy.

SPECULATION CONTINUES

FRANKFURT (AP) — The U.S. dollar remained at its lower mandatory intervention point of 3.97 Deutsche marks today as speculation on a revaluation of the mark continued, dealers reported.

The Deutsche Bundesbank, West Germany's central bank, said it would continue buying dollars at the lowest intervention point.

The pound sterling dropped to 9.459 Deutsche marks from Monday's closing at 9.462. This drop was also laid to revaluation speculation.

PM Gets Boot Out of Job

He is practising kicking a football in preparation for the official opening kickoff at the Grey Cup game, Nov. 30.

He has been getting some pointers on how to boot the ball and get distance from Vic Chapman, who is on the prime minister's staff as a press officer.

Vic was an offensive end and punter for the Vancouver Lions. He played for that club from 1954 to 1958 and later joined the Edmonton Eskimos. He was also a member of the Calgary Stampeders during his football career.

He has given the prime minister some pointers on how to get that ball into the air and down the field for long yardage. Mr. Trudeau taking the advice has tried a few practice kicks.

Viscount Alexander, when he was governor-general, got the best yardage when he lofted the ball for 40 yards. The prime minister is out to beat that record.

German Marks Held in Check

BONN (Reuters) — West Germany announced today it will not revalue the West German mark and that legislation is being prepared to introduce tax measures designed to maintain price stability.

Chief government spokesman Guenter Diehl called in correspondents to disclose the decisions reached by Chancellor Kurt George Kiesinger at a meeting of key ministers and the parliamentary leaders of the two government parties—the Christian Democrats and Social Democrats.

His statement said:

"The federal government will not revalue the mark. The government will, through immediate tax measures in the import and export sectors, ensure internal price stability.

"This will at the same time be an effective German contribution to the improvement of international payments balances."

Authoritative sources said the main aim of the planned tax measures is to reduce a massive West German export surplus which they believed could reach as much as 17,000,000,000 marks (about $4,250,000,000).

Diehl said the two government parties would introduce emergency legislation exacting the tax measures as soon as possible.

Government sources said Parliament may meet to vote on the legislation next week.

Diehl said the tax measures were prepared in close consultation with the federal bank, and interested governments have either been informed or were being informed.

AMC Zone Office For Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — American Motors Canada Ltd. will open a Pacific zone office in Vancouver, president Lawrence C. Rice says.

Mr. Rice, here to address a meeting of British Columbia dealers, said the new office will be part of a nation-wide strengthening of the company's marketing and dealership organization.

"We are putting depth and effort into the Pacific area and our dealers are delighted," he said.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Toronto Declines Again

For the fourth day in succession the Toronto stock market slipped today, after reaching record levels last week.

The New York market presented a scrambled picture as profit-taking and reinvestment hit the most active stocks. Trading was active.

Mines suffered a decline in morning trade in Vancouver.

AT TORONTO Nabors Drilling lost 2¼ to 14¼, Shully's Industries 1⅜ to 18½, while White Pass and Yukon 1⅜ to 24, Great Northern Capital ⅝ to 12¼ and CPR ⅜ to 74⅝.

Among the most active stocks, Inco and Seaway Hotels fell ½ each to 38⅞ and 33.

Among rising industrials, Famous Players was up 1½ to 67, Southam 1½ to 58½ and Hudson's Bay Co. ½ to 23½.

Fleet Manufacturing picked up 15 cents to $4.35 on news of an $18,000,000 contract for aircraft components.

Among western oils and mines, Asamera rose 1 to 14, Spooner 35 cents to $4.70 and New Quebec Raglan 35 cents to $9.75. Patino lost 1⅛ to 31⅞ and Consolidated Faraday 35 cents to $3.55.

AT NEW YORK, Lionel, up more than two points, paced the list on volume as it made a 20-per-cent gain in a wave of speculative buying.

20th Century-Fox, Abacus, Gulf and Western, McDowell Douglas and Signal Co. rose more than a point each while Ling-Tenco-Vought sank two and Chrysler and Marcor Inc. lost about a point.

Du Pont gained 2, Control Data 3, Atlantic Richfield 3, Pfizer, Boeing, Goodrich, General Fods, International Paper, M-G-M and Westinghouse Electric a point or more.

Polaroid dropped about 2.

Chrysler and Ford lost more than a point each. General Motors sank about a point.

Levy lost ⅞ to 33¼, CPR ⅝ to 72½, Bell Canada ⅝ to 46 5/8, CAE ⅜ to 11½ and Royal Bank ⅜ to 23½.

Fleetwood dropped ½ to 24 despite a substantial improvement in consolidated net income for the nine month period ended Sept. 30 and 81 cents a share, compared with 23 cents in 1967.

Canadian International Paper climbed 2½ to 41 and Southam 1 to 58.

Among the most active traders, Enamel A added 1 to 7½ and Stelco ⅜ to 27⅜. Bank of Montreal slid ⅛ to 15⅞ and Trizec 10 cents to $2.75.

AT LONDON the stock market was quiet and generally dull today under the influence of unresolved currency uncertainties and fears of further economic restrictions.

Canadian stocks that did well included Trans-Canada Pipeline, Hiram Walker and Noranda. Imperial Oil and International Nickel were among the few dull spots.

Leading British industrials declined in most cases, Glaxo and Unilever NV being prominent losers. Bowater paper eased. Hudson's Bay moved up. Canadian banks made headway.

AT VANCOUVER mining issues had their worst day of the month in pre-noon trade today.

Buttle Lake, a heavy gainer recently, slipped as low as $3.20 before returning to $3.65 for a los of .10. Arlington was down .08 at .70 on 190,800 shares and Coast Silver dipped .15 to $2.55.

One of the few issues to improve was Churchill, up .25 to $6.40.

In the oils, Allied Roxana lost .20 to $1.40 and Stampede was .10 weaker at $6.90.

Sun "A" was $1 better at $30 in the industrials and Scott Paper rose .37 to $27.50.

Corporate Profits Set Mark

WASHINGTON (WP) — The government has announced record corporate profits and industrial production, revised upward the third quarter gross national product and reported a decline in housing starts and the rate of growth in personal income.

Although mixed, the latest batch of statistics indicated the economy still has more bounce than had been commonly predicted. And it served further to dispel fears—for the time being, at least—that the combined tax increase and spending cut enacted last June would result in economic "overkill."

Commerce department figures showed that corporate profits rose $2 billion to an annual rate of $91.2 billion in the July-September quarter after adjustment for seasonal variations and changes in inventory valuation.

The new peak in earnings came in the face of widespread predictions that they would flatten out or even decline because of an expected slackening in market demand and the squeeze of higher costs.

After-tax profits also set a record, rising from an annual rate of $50.7 billion in the second quarter to $51 billion. These figures do not include inventory valuation adjustment.

Brazil Sets Devaluation

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Brazil has announced that it is devaluating its currency for the fifth time in the last 21 months as the result of a continual spiral of inflation. The official radio said that the country's basic monetary unit, would be worth 3.77 to the U.S. dollar instead of 3.70, a devaluation of 1.9 per cent.

Du Pont Declares Year-End Dividend

NEW YORK (AP) — A year-end dividend of $1.75 a share has been declared by du Pont Co.

It is payable Dec. 14 to shareholders of record Nov. 26 and brings the total 1968 dividend to $5.50 a share.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Oats, barley and rye showed little activity to the close of trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. Most grains and oilseeds were on an easier price pattern after a moderate volume of trade.

In flaxseed, fairly liberal selling by locals and commission houses and some hedge offerings forced the December future down more than three cents. May and July features were fairly steady due to moderate absorption by commercial interests.

All rapeseed futures closed fractionally easier with exporters making limited purchases on the scale down. Exporters were also small scale down buyers in rye.

Oats and barley were steady in light trade.

Lakehead prices for Class Two, IWA and domestic wheat all were down ⅛ cent.

Burnaby-Seymour, Who the H...?

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau wondered out loud in the Commons Monday "who the hell" is the MP for Burnaby-Seymour.

The member is Ray Perrault, a Liberal.

Louis Comeau (PC—South Western Nova) had asked whether Solicitor-General George McIlraith would investigate how the report of a consultant to the Company of Young Canadians fell into the hands of the member for Burnaby-Seymour.

In a stage whisper clearly audible over the Commons sound system, Mr. Trudeau said: "Who the hell is the member for Burnaby-Seymour?"

Students, Press Flout Soviets In Freedom Fight

PRAGUE (AP) — Conflict mounted today between Czechoslovakia's Communist rulers and students, journalists and some workers determined to uphold freedom of the press and self-expression.

An estimated 100,000 university students in Bohemia and Moravia occupied classrooms, laboratories and corridors for the second day of a scheduled three-day sit-in strike. It supports a 10-point demand emphasizing freedom of assembly and foreign travel and a six-month limit on press censorship.

Czechoslovak journalists, targets of Soviet attacks before and after the August invasion of their country, adopted resolutions in Prague warning that liquidation of free expression and information would mean the end of the highly popular reform course launched last January.

At a meeting Monday 1,060 Prague reporters said they objected to being made scapegoats in occupied Czechoslovakia, and demanded an early meeting with government representatives to discuss "how to face together the efforts to liquidate socialist freedom of the press."

The journalists were reported ready to go on strike as a last resort.

BAN LEAFLETS

A policy resolution published today from the Nov. 14-17 session of the Communist party central committee announced the issuance of leaflets and sending of mass resolutions will be banned, and said Czechoslovakia will carry out an Ocober agreement with the Soviet Union to put press and radio "at the service of socialism."

The party resolution said Czechoslovak mass media had not been used effectively against "anti-Socialist forces." Press, radio and TV "are primarily an instrument for implementation of party and state policy" and henceforth will be used as such, it said.

The Soviet invasion is not mentioned in the resolution, but it calls on all Communists to implement the post-invasion Moscow agreement of Aug. 26 and the Oct. 18 treaty legalizing the stay of 70,000 Soviet troops.

The resolution came closer, but still fell short, of admitting Soviet charges that "counter-revolutionaries" endangered the Communist system in Czechoslovakia. It placed equal blame on the Stalinists who preceded reformist party chief Alexander Dubcek, and on right-wing, "anti-Socialist" forces it said came into prominence in the last year.

In foreign policy, the central committee proclaimed "the inviolability of our ties" to the Soviet bloc and asserted that "no other alternative ever existed for us than to belong to the Socialist system, the Warsaw treaty and actively participate in Comecon," the East European equivalent of the Common Market.

THE ODD JOB SQUAD may boost the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal over the top. More than 100 students from local high schools, Uvic and the Institute of Adult Studies have volunteered to work at odd jobs and turn their earnings over to the Community Chest. The scheme was originated by members of the Anglican Youth Group, including Ann Waters (left), Peter Mortimer, Wendy Riach, Clive Hall and Christopher Luke. Anyone requiring the services of these willing workers may call 386-2220 between 9 a.m. and 10:30 p.m.

Director Refutes Unwanted Charge

MONTREAL (CP) — Police Director Jean-Paul Gilbert Monday denied published reports that he has asked the police department to prepare a list of persons who should be barred from entering Canada to attend the Hemispheric Conference to End the War in Vietnam.

The Nov. 28-Dec. 1 conference is expected to attract about 2,000 delegates, including representatives from Latin America and the United States.

The director described as "without any foundation whatever" published and broadcast reports that he would appeal to the immigration department to keep at least three of the delegates out of Canada.

In his statement, Mr. Gilbert said no list of persons regarded as undesirable had been prepared.

A published report Monday said the Montreal police anti-subversive squad was preparing a report for Director Gilbert and that three delegates to the conf[illegible] branded as "undesirables."

The three were identified as:

Robert Seale, 31, a co-organizer of the California-based Negro nationalist movement, the Black Panthers; Rev. Blase Bonpane, a priest who is said to have been involved in guerrilla activities in Latin America; and Enrique Arrias, a leader of the National Conference of Students of Mexico, alleged to have been involved in student clashes with Mexican police last month.

DOESN'T OPPOSE IT

Mr. Gilbert said there never had been any question of opposing the holding of the conference or of preventing delegates from entering Canada.

"It is a question, and it remains a question, however, for the police director to meet with the immigration minister without delay so that federal government policy on the matter of the entry into Canada and Montreal of persons judged undesirable may be known."

A spokesman for the police department said accusations by organizers of the conference and others that Mr. Gilbert had attempted to discredit the conference and those taking part were "false."

The spokesman said Mr. Gilbert regretted that organizers who complained about his "attitude" towards the conference had not ascertained whether the remarks attributed to Mr. Gilbert had, in fact, been made by him.

Organizers of the Conference Monday night sent a delegation to protest before Immigration Minister MacEachen what it termed "viciously anti-democratic threats" made by Mr. Gilbert.

RUSSIAN ROCKETS 'CAN'T BE STOPPED'

MOSCOW (UPI)—The commander of the Soviet intercontinental ballistic missile system said today no American anti-aircraft system can stop Russian rockets.

Marshal Nikolai Krylov told the Communist newspaper Pravda that the Soviet missiles "are practically invulnerable" and could not be stopped by "any anti-aircraft defence system that the enemy has".

"The strategic rocket force is the background of the defence potential of our country," Krylov said. He told the interviewer Russian missiles can hit "any point of the globe in the minimal time and with high accuracy".

Youth Comes to Fore To Boost Sagging UA

By W. RALPH THOMAS

A germ of an idea that blossomed into feverish action overnight might give the sagging United Appeal campaign the momentum it needs to hit its $655,000 arget.

It started during the weekend when a few members of the Anglican Youth Group decided if they could find an hour's work a month they would donate their earnings to the Community Chest.

They approached their friends and by Monday more than 100 young people from local high schools, the University of Victoria and the Institute of Adult Studies had combined to put the scheme into action.

Enthusiasm swept the weekly United Appeal report meeting Monday when student representatives outlined the plan. Before the meeting ended, the students not only had the sanction of the United Appeal but $236 worth of pledged work.

B.C. Telephone Co. installed a telephone at the YM-YWCA to handle calls from people who want work done or from young people who wish to volunteer their services. The Community Chest printed special pledge sheets for students to use in keeping tabs on their jobs.

Some of the many odd jobs the students will do are painting, gardening, baby-sitting, car washing, Christmas decorating, house-cleaning, dog-walking, caddying, baking, window-washing and wood cutting.

Anyone wishing the services of these young people may call 386-2220 between 9 a.m. and 10:30 p.m.

Three-Year Term

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Bessie Tomah, 26, was sentenced today to three years for the fatal shooting Aug. 13 of May Egnell, 43. She was convicted of manslaughter Monday by a B.C. Supreme Court jury, after originally having been charged with non-capital murder.

most rewarding, personally and professionally.

There would be a change from his former role at Johns Hopkins and the new post at Uvic, but that difference would not be difficult to adapt to, he said.

"I have made this kind of change before at other colleges. There can be a greater difference between institutions within the U.S.," he said.

"My family and I look forward to our move to Victoria and to joining the university."

Dr. Partridge, a native of Syracuse, N.Y., has two sons and two daughters, ranging in age from 14 to 19. He plans to visit the campus several times before taking office in July.

RESEARCH PROJECTS

He has done extensive travelling abroad in connection with research projects of Johns Hopkins. Assignments have taken him to Thailand, Formosa, Japan and India.

A current project involves consultation on management methods with two universities in Peru. He has also acted in this capacity with several U.S. universities.

WRITES ON LAW

Dr. Partridge has lectured and written on business law and management techniques, physics, communications, investment concepts and university administration and planning.

He took a bachelor of arts with honors in physics from Oberlin College in Ohio in 1946 and spent the following two years at the Case Institute of Technology, Cleveland, doing graduate work in nuclear physics and thermodynamics.

He then left to take an administrative post at Cazanovia College in up-state New York and added the degrees of bachelor of laws and doctor of jurisprudence to his record at Blackstone College.

Dr. Partridge has co-authored a book, College and University Business Administration, published by the American Council on Education this summer.

He has also served as chairman of the council's Commisssion on Administrative Affairs and as a member of the U.S. Commission on Efficiency and Economy in Government.

INVESTMENT DIRECTOR

He is a director of the Mercantile Safety Deposit and Trust Company of Baltimore and of Baltimore Equitable Insurance Society.

He is a past president of the National Association of Educational Buyers and of the Eastern Association of College and University Business Officers (both with Canadian as well as U.S. membership).

Other positions held by Dr. Partridge are: member of the editorial advisory board of College and University Business; regional commissioner of the Episocopal Diocese of Maryland; and member of the National Board of Advisors, National Association for Retarded Children.

His hobbies are theatre, sailing and travel.

Dr. Lincoln Gordon, president of Johns Hopkins, said today from Baltimore:

REGRETS LOSS

"Our deep regret at losing Dr. Patridge's services is tempered by pride in his new appointment as head of one of Canada's most rapidly growing universities.

"Bruce Partridge has made great contributions to the well-being of Hopkins during his four years in Baltimore, not only as a suoerb chief administrative and financial officer, but also as a most throughtful and constructive participant in the development of academic policies and programs."

Church Observer Sees New Arab-Israeli War

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. A. C. Forrest, editor of the United Church Observer, says there is a growing fear in the Middle East that a new Arab-Israeli war is inevitable.

Mr. Forrest, writing from Syria in the December issue of the Observer, said hope is declining that Israel will come to a peaceful settlement with the Arab countries.

The minister, who is on a 10-month leave from the Observer, wrote that there is a growing suspicion that Israel plans to hold all the territory she took during the six-day war in June, 1967.

He said that a year ago after visiting Arab refugee camps and talking with Israeli spokesmen, "I was convinced that Israel would try to do a good job with the refugees she inherited. I was wrong."

"Conditions in occupied territory are worse than I expected and Arab anger is greater and a sense of hopelessness, frustration and fear that war is inevitable is general among all the churchmen and international workers I meet."

Mr. Forrest said that although many separated families in Jordan and Egypt were reunited, none of the 739 Syrians who applied through the Red Cross to return to look for lost children or parents has been permitted to go back.

In the city of Qunaytirah, which had a population of more than 15,000 before the 1967 war only 14 persons remain, he said.

Guilty of Rape

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—David John Dyck, 27, of North Vancouver, was found guilty Monday in New Westminster magistrate's court of the rape of a Burnaby woman May 31. He was remanded to Friday for sentencing.

Biafrans Fighting 'Like Mad'

LAGOS (Reuters) — Federal Nigerian forces are meeting strong opposition from Biafran troops but are not giving any ground, high military sources said here today.

Replying to reporters' questions, the federal sources discounted claims by the secessionist state of successes in the 16-month-old civil war.

"It is true they (the Biafrans) are fighting like mad, but they are not gaining ground as they claimed," he said. "We are not worried at all."

A Biafran war communique, issued in the breakaway state's administrative capital of Umuahia, Monday, said Biafran forces had driven back federal troops in the Awka sector on Sunday. The Biafrans also consolidated their hold on other territory captured recently, the communique said.

The federal army chief of staff, Brig. Hassan Katsina, said here Monday federal troops have intensified their operations against Biafra and were in firm control of areas they had seized.

Pope Makes Plea

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Pope Paul today appealed to the Greek government to show mercy toward Alexander Panagoulis, the Greek army private sentenced to death in Athens for allegedly plotting against the government.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

A strong flow of mild Pacific air has forced all the cold Arctic air northward and eastward to the continental divide. A few isolated pockets of below freezing temperatures remained in the interior but elsewhere the warm air streamed in and kept temperatures well above freezing.

Cloudy mild weather was forecast for most areas today with rain on the outer coast. A Pacific weather system moving inland on Wednesday will be accompanied by rain and followed by partial clearing and slightly colder temperatures.

AMC Zone Office For Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — American Motors Canada Ltd. will open a Pacific zone office in Vancouver, president Lawrence C. Rice says.

Mr. Rice, here to address a meeting of British Columbia dealers, said the new office will be part of a nation-wide strengthening of the company's marketing and dealership organization.

"We are putting depth and effort into the Pacific area and our dealers are delighted," he said.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Toronto Declines Again

For the fourth day in succession the Toronto stock market slipped today, after reaching record levels last week.

The New York market presented a scrambled picture as profit-taking and reinvestment hit the most active stocks. Trading was active.

Mines suffered a decline in morning trade in Vancouver.

AT TORONTO Nabors Drilling lost 2¼ to 14¼, Shully's Industries 1⅜ to 18½, while White Pass and Yukon 1⅜ to 24, Great Northern Capital ⅝ to 12¼ and CPR ⅜ to 74⅝.

Among the most active stocks, Inco and Seaway Hotels fell ½ each to 38⅞ and 33.

Among rising industrials, Famous Players was up 1½ to 67, Southam 1½ to 58½ and Hudson's Bay Co. ½ to 23½.

Fleet Manufacturing picked up 15 cents to $4.35 on news of an $18,000,000 contract for aircraft components.

Among western oils and mines, Asamera rose 1 to 14, Spooner 35 cents to $4.70 and New Quebec Raglan 35 cents to $9.75. Patino lost 1⅛ to 31⅞ and Consolidated Faraday 35 cents to $3.55.

AT NEW YORK, Lionel, up more than two points, paced the list on volume as it made a 20-per-cent gain in a wave of speculative buying.

20th Century-Fox, Abacus, Gulf and Western, McDowell Douglas and Signal Co. rose more than a point each while Ling-Tenco-Vought sank two and Chrysler and Marcor Inc. lost about a point.

Du Pont gained 2, Control Data 3, Atlantic Richfield 3, Pfizer, Boeing, Goodrich, General Fods, International Paper, M-G-M and Westinghouse Electric a point or more.

Polaroid dropped about 2.

Chrysler and Ford lost more than a point each. General Motors sank about a point.

Levy lost ⅞ to 33¼, CPR ⅝ to 72½, Bell Canada ⅝ to 46 5/8, CAE ⅜ to 11½ and Royal Bank ⅜ to 23½.

Fleetwood dropped ½ to 24 despite a substantial improvement in consolidated net income for the nine month period ended Sept. 30 and 81 cents a share, compared with 23 cents in 1967.

Canadian International Paper climbed 2½ to 41 and Southam 1 to 58.

Among the most active traders, Enamel A added 1 to 7½ and Stelco ⅜ to 27⅜. Bank of Montreal slid ⅛ to 15⅞ and Trizec 10 cents to $2.75.

AT LONDON the stock market was quiet and generally dull today under the influence of unresolved currency uncertainties and fears of further economic restrictions.

Canadian stocks that did well included Trans-Canada Pipeline, Hiram Walker and Noranda. Imperial Oil and International Nickel were among the few dull spots.

Leading British industrials declined in most cases, Glaxo and Unilever NV being prominent losers. Bowater paper eased. Hudson's Bay moved up. Canadian banks made headway.

AT VANCOUVER mining issues had their worst day of the month in pre-noon trade today.

Buttle Lake, a heavy gainer recently, slipped as low as $3.20 before returning to $3.65 for a los of .10. Arlington was down .08 at .70 on 190,800 shares and Coast Silver dipped .15 to $2.55.

One of the few issues to improve was Churchill, up .25 to $6.40.

In the oils, Allied Roxana lost .20 to $1.40 and Stampede was .10 weaker at $6.90.

Sun "A" was $1 better at $30 in the industrials and Scott Paper rose .37 to $27.50.

Corporate Profits Set Mark

WASHINGTON (WP) — The government has announced record corporate profits and industrial production, revised upward the third quarter gross national product and reported a decline in housing starts and the rate of growth in personal income.

Although mixed, the latest batch of statistics indicated the economy still has more bounce than had been commonly predicted. And it served further to dispel fears—for the time being, at least—that the combined tax increase and spending cut enacted last June would result in economic "overkill."

Commerce department figures showed that corporate profits rose $2 billion to an annual rate of $91.2 billion in the July-September quarter after adjustment for seasonal variations and changes in inventory valuation.

The new peak in earnings came in the face of widespread predictions that they would flatten out or even decline because of an expected slackening in market demand and the squeeze of higher costs.

After-tax profits also set a record, rising from an annual rate of $50.7 billion in the second quarter to $51 billion. These figures do not include inventory valuation adjustment.

Brazil Sets Devaluation

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Brazil has announced that it is devaluating its currency for the fifth time in the last 21 months as the result of a continual spiral of inflation. The official radio said that the country's basic monetary unit, would be worth 3.77 to the U.S. dollar instead of 3.70, a devaluation of 1.9 per cent.

Du Pont Declares Year-End Dividend

NEW YORK (AP) — A year-end dividend of $1.75 a share has been declared by du Pont Co.

It is payable Dec. 14 to shareholders of record Nov. 26 and brings the total 1968 dividend to $5.50 a share.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Oats, barley and rye showed little activity to the close of trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. Most grains and oilseeds were on an easier price pattern after a moderate volume of trade.

In flaxseed, fairly liberal selling by locals and commission houses and some hedge offerings forced the December future down more than three cents. May and July features were fairly steady due to moderate absorption by commercial interests.

All rapeseed futures closed fractionally easier with exporters making limited purchases on the scale down. Exporters were also small scale down buyers in rye.

Oats and barley were steady in light trade.

Lakehead prices for Class Two, IWA and domestic wheat all were down ⅛ cent.

'Politics Threat on Campus' If Students Rejoin Union

Party politics on campus will result if the University of Victoria students' council votes to rejoin the Canadian Union of Students, a councillor said Monday.

Paul Watson, student activities co-ordinator for the Alma Mater Society, was reacting to a Sunday move to re-enter CUS following a visit by president-elect Martin Loney and other CUS officials.

Groups with opposed political viewpoints will begin facing each other at election time, vying for student support, Mr. Watson said.

He charged council was swayed by Mr. Loney, a "fantastic speaker who mesmerized the whole council."

He also charged CUS has become "overly misrepresentative of the majority of students" and has upset students across the country.

PARTY POLITICS

Any attempt by the AMS to rejoin CUS — only three weeks after withdrawal from the national union — will force "a move to political parties on campus," he said.

"A conservative slate is going to appear. And there will be a Liberal slate and a radical slate who will caucus to decide what their approach in meetings will be.

"I disagree with the over-all trend of CUS. They're becoming socialistic — almost communistic," Mr. Watson said.

"To keep universities in they will have to change their tactics. But if we go back in now, they won't change at all."

"A petition to council (three weeks ago) had 700 signatures to get out of CUS. I haven't seen a petition to stay in," he said.

"I hope the students impeach the council if they go back into CUS."

Mr. Watson was supported in his argument by several other councillors and said he expected seven members of the AMS to vote against re-entry next Sunday.

Indians Want Friendship Centre Here

A public meeting to discuss the establishment of an Indian Friendship Centre here will be held in the Institute of Adult Studies common room on Monday.

It will start at 8 p.m.

Friendship centres have been established in Port Alberni, Nanaimo and Vancouver to help Indian people moving in from reserves to adjust themselves to urban life.

In the past few years there has been a steady influx of Indian families to the city, particularly from isolated reserves on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

In addition there are about 130 Indian students taking courses at the Institute of Adult Studies and another 100 attending high school They come from all parts of the province.

Harry Dick, 422 Dallas, chairman of a steering committee, said 17 tribes on southern Vancouver Island want a centre.

"It will provide a meeting place for Indians arriving in Victoria to work or study and a place where they can work out their problems," he said.

Before Magistrate

Three more charges were placed against Gerald Harvey, 20, of Vancouver, Monday in connection with a disturbance involving weapons at a city night club early Thursday.

The charges are possession of an offensive weapon, possession of a spring knife and possession of a firearm without a permit.

Friday, he was charged with assaulting Tony Else, manager of AJ's, and causing bodily harm and pointing a revolver. He asked for the remand to have more time to consult a lawyer.

Richard Howard, 21, of Victoria, is charged with possession of an offensive weapon, assault, possession of a spring knife and an unregistered firearm. He received a remand for the same reason.

Both were remanded again without plea. Bail has been set at $1,000 for Howard and $1,500 for Harvey.

Albert Degendt, 910 McKenzie, was fined $300 for impaired driving. Court was told he drove the wrong way on Yates Street Oct. 26.

Robert Woods, CFB Esquimalt, was fined $200 for contributing to juvenile delinquency. He was also fined $35 for being a minor in possession of liquor and $35 for careless driving.

David Harvey, 18, of 427 Hillside, was committed for trial by judge for possession of a stolen automobile.

A 17-year-old juvenile told the preliminary hearing he took the car on Oct. 25 and later parked and left it in the city. He said he took Harvey and another juvenile with him for a ride in the car the next day and hit a parked car.

He said he got out of the vehicle and ran away, telling the others to do so also.

Another witness told the court he saw a collision on Mary Street Oct. 26 and then identified the juvenile and Harvey as two of three persons he saw run from the car.

The magistrate said the possession charge was a weak case and depended on the evidence of an accomplice but he committed him for trial.

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

This Special Hemorrhoid Remedy
Contains a Unique Healing Substance
That Relieves Pain As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles". It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief—here's good news. A renowned research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained over a period of months! Among these sufferers were a wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions—even cases of long standing.

This was accomplished by a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a world-renowned research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

CHICAGO SUED BY INJURED THEOLOGIAN

CHICAGO (AP) — A seminary student has sued the city of Chicago and several of its top officials for $1,250,000 in damages, charging he was beaten by police during Democratic national convention week disorders.

The suit was filed Monday by the American Civil Liberties Union in behalf of Roy L. Ries Jr., of Levittown, Pa., a student at McCormich Theological Seminary.

Ries suffered a fractured skull when, he said, unidentified police officers struck him twice on the head with a gun butt in Lincoln Park the night of Aug. 26.

Ceremony Tonight

First Unit In College Grid Opens

Speeches and a burst of folk-singing will officially open Uvic's first college tonight at 8.

Craigdarroch College is opening its doors to the public, and it will be the first opportunity for the college's 300 resident and 700 non-resident members to meet and mix socially.

University building plans call for the completion of a second college, Lansdowne, by September, 1969.

Each college will have the same basic design, and each will operate as a social unit within the university to which students can relate, says Greg Fraser, member of the Craigdarroch College council.

"The purpose of the college system is to cut down on depersonalization," he said.

"When the university has 10,000 people, there will be 10 colleges with 1,000 members each. Everyone will belong to a college."

Featured speaker at the opening festivities tonight will be Keith Johnstone, visiting lecturer in the theatre division, who will discuss some aspects of the upcoming Phoenix Theater production, The Wakefield Crucifixion, which he is directing.

Ronald Jeffels, dean of colleges and student affairs, will give a short talk.

Character Topic Of PTA Lecture

Lt. Col. L. C. Price, commanding officer of Venture division, Fleet School, will discuss discipline and character formation at a meeting of the Willows School Parent-Teacher Association tonight.

The meeting in the school auditorium starts at 8 p.m. and the public is welcome.

Col. Price will discuss how character can be formed, moulded and changed through the observance of set patterns of behavior.

Hovercraft Rejection Still Plagues Council

Ald. Scott Wallace Monday night told Oak Bay council it had become "the laughing stock of local politics" and called for reconsideration of a hovercraft terminal bid.

Both suggestions were immediately rejected by council.

A motion by Ald. Wallace to reopen negotiations with Pacific Hovercraft Ltd. of Vancouver for landing rights in Oak Bay failed to find a seconder and was turned down.

The alderman was angered by council's decision two weeks ago to refuse permission for the craft to land at the Oak Bay Marina. Two weeks before that, council had tacitly agreed to hear if the machine was noisey before making a decision.

"The council of Oak Bay is the laughing stock of local government and of the people," Ald. Wallace said.

PEOPLE UPSET

"Our conduct as a council was regrettable, unfortunate . . . Many people are very upset at the way it was handled," he said of council's surprise refusal last meeting.

His remarks responded to a three-page statement read by Ald. Frances Elford in defence of her motion turning down the hovercraft bid.

She quoted council minutes dating from July, 1967, to show that council had long ago decided against any proposal from the company.

Meetings were arranged with Pacific Hovercraft officials, she said, but they failed to turn up. The only approach from the company asking for consideration by Oak Bay came Oct. 15 of this year—asking for a decision within two days, Ald. Elford said.

"I object to remarks that Oak Bay council was pressured into a decision by lynch-mob tactics," she said, referring to a statement by Ald. Wallace last week.

WARNING GIVEN

"I suggest that Pacific Hovercraft was given ample warning—a warning which it continued to ignore."

Ald. Wallace replied that he was not "the least bit interested" in a decision made by a previous council and was not held to any decision made by them.

"Neither am I impressed by a long recital of facts," he said.

Council had not had an opportunity to listen to the hovercraft—which was said by the company to be quieter than previous models—or to assess any effects the new service would have on traffic flow in the marina area, he said.

There must have been a great deal of opposition to the first aircraft to be flown, he said. Such opposition choked off any chance to learn about a new craft.

When she was chairman at a previous meeting which discussed the hovercraft "Ald. Elford dismissed it with a wave of the hand . . . with one brief sentence that 'I heard it at Expo, and that's it'," Ald. Wallace said.

Mayor Fred Hawes said that he had been on council for many years and when he lost an argument in council he "didn't cry about it."

Ald. Wallace replied to the mayor he had a different concept of democracy and did not think "an alderman has the obligation to keep his mouth shut."

OSLO TEAM ADVANCES

NORRKEOPING, Sweden (AP) — Lyn of Oslo, Norwegian league and cup soccer champions, swept through to the European cup winners quarter-finals on 4-3 aggregate Sunday. Lyn lost 3-2 against IFK of Norrkoeping, but won the first leg at home 2-0.

High Rise Fate Rests With Secret Session

A zoning bylaw introduced several months ago to allow the building on a site of 1120 Beach Drive went into the committee-of-the-whole meeting along with 16 letters to council concerning the building, dating back to July 8.

Ald. Douglas Watts suggested the study by committee-of-the-whole, rather than a vote on the bylaw during the meeting.

Mayor Fred Hawes said the municipal planning committee had been reviewing the proposal for an 11-storey building with penthouse, but that developer Gordon Lovitt had not contacted council since a Sept. 4 public hearing.

DECISION DELAYED

The zoning bylaw has been given only first reading by council.

Mayor Fred Hawes has delayed any decision on the bylaw untill full council was present. Several councillors have taken holidays during the past two months.

All of council was present Monday, but preferred to go into committee-of-the-whole to consider the matter.

The vote has been put off since ratepayers put up a solid front of opposition at the hearing. The demanded that the present height limit of seven floors be maintained in Oak Bay.

Mayor Hawes, with his eye on rising costs and the levelling income from municipal assessments, has said the only way Oak Bay can continue improving is by allowing apartment buildings such as the one proposed.

If apartment buildings are not permitted, assessments of single-family home owners in the municipality will have to go up, he said.

Arthur Mayse

You may find this a cheerless reflection, but in some distant future, the anthropologists are going to knock themselves out trying to reconstruct our civilization from what we have left behind. And that, by the way we're going, may not be much.

By an act of projection, let us look in on an inter-galactic dig which has struck paydirt.

The site is on the southern tip of what was Vancouver Island before solar bombing tumbled the coast range into the sea. Its top layers have been peeled off, and there is exciting evidence that humanoids once inhabited the area.

The leader of the expedition, a Venusian whom we may as well call Dr. Kronk, is listening with what patience he can muster to Prof. Twizzle, an archeologist from Proximia Centauri.

Twizzle was in on the big dig at Rome, and he can't get over it.

"Whoever they were," he says, "it's obvious that here is another of those cultures that flash and are gone. Their habitations were of the most temporary sort. Look at this."

He crumbles a fragment of stucco. "Ticky-tacky. Is this the work of a people who built for the ages? Why in Rome, at a depth of a mere 30 metres —"

"Quite so," Kronk interrupts. Let Twizzle get going on that subject, and they could lose half of this dead planet's all-too-short day. "But come along. I've something to show you."

★

Both have large heads in which are set enormous, browless eyes. Their hands are also big, but their legs are no more than stumpy appendages. Their de-gravitation packs waft them along a broad cut from the walls of which protrude minor artifacts.

There are bottle-tops, shards of shattered records, flattened cans, here and there a bleach jug.

Twizzle eyes these relics of dwellers long gone contemptuously.

"You see? No stonework, no statuary, no temples. And this, I suppose, passed for a street. Take the Romans now. Imperishible records, and roads built for eternity."

Kronk sighs. He has taken a liking to these distant ancestors who were overcome by a cataclysm frightful beyond imagination.

"You're too hard on them," he says. "Admittedly, they were barbarians, and if there's truth in our folk-tales, their race destroyed itself." Inwardly, he curses headquarters for sending Twizzle to inspect this new dig.

"But given time, they might have sorted themselves out. They'd achieved a primitive sewerage system and one quite creditable public bath, apparently roofed with glass. I wonder why they were dismantling it?"

★

"We'll soon be there," Kronk replies. They levitate down other cuts. Where each joins its neighbor, metal hexagons have been exhumed and set aside.

"They baffle us," Kronk observes. "Our language people believe they convey an order to the populace. Perhaps 'Stop'."

"Undoubtedly a negative society," his companion observes. "But I do recall that we came upon something of the sort in our earlier exploratory work at Rome."

"Take care, Doc," one of them calls. "This place could have a curse on it."

A fluke of earth pressure has preserved the showroom as a cave. In it crouch dim-seen cars, longer and lower than today's models, though not very much.

"Perhaps." Dr. Kronk advances toward a sporty job that sits alone on a central dias. "The language team is convinced that they are. But that's the hell of our profession, Twizzle—we may never learn the answer!"

About 97,000 copies will go to subscribers in the Greater Victoria area, Central Saanich, Sidney, Sooke, Jordan River, Port Renfrew and the Gulf Islands over the next 10 days. B.C. Telephone employee Sandra Christie admires cover photo of Hudson Bay Mountain near Smithers. New issue will contain 80,000 listings, up 5,000 from last year. Transferring of 6,000 subscribers from the Blanshard Street exchange to a new exchange on Foul Bay Road means more than usual new numbers. New directory is effective December 1. Service Corridors Sought by Farmers

Routing of all public services — power lines, gas lines, railways and highways through specially designated corridors is proposed by Vancouver Island and mainland farmers.

This would reduce the wastage of arable lands and protect the aesthetic qualities of public lands and residential districts, they claim.

The subject is expected to be one of the main items discussed at the three-day annual convention of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture opening at the Empress Hotel on Nov. 27.

The proposal will be closely watched by recreation groups and town planners concerned over the frequent practice of running public services through parklands.

RAPID EXPANSION

Federation secretary Jack Wessel said the rapid expansion of industry in B.C. is entailing considerable use of farm land for services such as power and gas pipe lines.

"There doesn't appear to be enough planning or control of the location of rights-of-way to minimize the wastage of agricultural land for such services," he said.

He said an example is the decision to run the rail route to the Robert's Bank superport through Delta municipality. Thirty-five farms will be broken up when the railway is constructed, he said.

Farmers feel it should be feasible to "corridor" such rights-of-way.

REGIONAL ZONING

Mr. Wessel said the only practical way this could be accomplished would be for regional districts to take over the planning and zoning of the corridors.

Thus it would ensure that a corridor in one district would join up with another in an adjoining district.

Tony Roberts, director of the Capital Region Planning Board, agreed that as many utilities as possible should use one route or corridor.

STUDY FIRST

"But a wide-range study should be made first before a route is chosen," he said. "The study should be related to the technical needs of other utilities."

Mr. Roberts said the present practice of running utilities through different routes interferes with the environment of certain areas.

He cited the Gulf Islands as an example where a swath is being cut through for a transmission power line — only a half-mile from an existing power line right-of-way.

SPEAKING at the Bank Street School auditorium Thursday at 8 p.m. is Ross Smith, president of the World Federalists of Canada. He will discuss "World Federalism, The Best Hope for World Peace." He is an Air Canada official in Montreal.

Study Set On Merger Of Schools

The Greater Victoria school board named an architect's firm Monday night to study the feasibility of merging James Bay elementary school facilities.

Wade Stockdill Armour and Blewett will examine problems involved in adding about 10 classrooms and an activity room to James Bay elementary school alongside Macdonald Park.

The school board has opened talks with the city on the proposed expansion because it would like to see joint school-community use of Macdonald Park as part of the deal.

THIS SANTA NEEDS TOYS

Nelly Pelkey is collecting toys so children on the East Saanich Indian Reserve will have a happy Christmas.

She's looking for old toys, new toys, clothing, used or new, candy—anything that can be distributed to the 200 children on the reserve this Christmas.

"We are a poor organization," said Mrs. Pelkey. "We have no mosey, but we want these children to have a good Christmas.

"Last year when we had our first Christmas party, it was the first time some of the children had ever seen a Santa Claus," she said.

BIG FAMILIES

She hopes this year Santa will have some toys to distribute.

"Many of the families on the reserve have 12 to 16 children," she said. "Naturally all of them don't get presents at Christmas."

This year Mrs. Pelkey hopes they are starting soon enough to have a party ready by Dec. 15.

Ask The Times

A. The Canadian Wildlife Service is a separate branch of the federal government, created in 1966. It administers migratory bird sanctuary regulations, discharges federal responsibilities in regard to wildlife and co-operates with the provinces on wildlife research and management. The minister reports to Parliament on behalf of the Historic Sites and Monuments Board, the Northern Canada Power Commission and the Northern Transportation Co. Ltd.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Two Saanich Aldermen Plan To Run Again

Two incumbent aldermen, one a 27-year veteran, the other the youngest member of Saanich council, have filed nomination papers for re-election Dec. 7.

Ald. Leslie Passmore, 2873 Austin, said today he will "continue to work for the people of Saanich" as he has for the last 27 years.

Now retired, Ald. Passmore said: "I am most pleased with the recreation program which has developed" in the municipality. "My prime interest will be to continue to expand" the program.

Ald. Newberry, 31, said "I feel that being a young person I can offer stable involvement in local government for this region."

Supervisor of intermediate instruction for Sooke school district, Mr. Newberry said "I still feel that the young people of the community should become concerned in a responsible way."

He continues "to be alarmed by the irresponsible involvement of some of our young people, not only in our city, but across the country."

Third nomination filed to date for the four vacancies on the eight-member council was by Frank Waring, a member of the Saanich planning commission and an unsuccessful aldermanic contestant in 1967.

Shirras Funeral Thursday Morning

Funeral services will be held at McCall Brothers funeral home at 10:15 a.m. Thursday for former B.C. provincial police commissioner John Shirras who died Friday at the age of 85.

Mr. Shirras, 890 Heywood, became head of the provincial police in 1947 after serving as a policeman in Scotland and in Canada since 1912.

He retired as commissioner in 1950 when the RCMP took over the B.C. police force and has lived in Victoria since.

CHARGE DUE AGAINST INJURED YOUTH

A 17-year-old found bleeding from deep cuts to the neck, scalp and face at Cook and Oscar streets late Friday will be charged with wilful damage, city police said today.

The juvenile was found on the boulevard on Oscar in an apparently intoxicated condition and taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Police said he suffered a one and one-half inch cut to the neck requiring eight stitches and two smaller cuts taking four stitches.

Shortly after police found him two other juveniles, a male and female, were questioned. All appeared to be intoxicated.

Investigation revealed the woulds had been self-inflicted with a piece of glass, police said.

Saanich Group Ready to Fight Overpass Link

A citizens' committee is mounting a battle against Saanich's present plans to reconstruct its trunk road system to accommodate the widened Patricia Bay Highway.

They were unhappy because their street will be the new overpass link between Royal Oak Avenue and West Saanich Road when the present Royal Oak-Pat Bay intersection is eliminated.

Association president Bill Stewart said in an interview their presence was a gesture "to show what action we are prepared to take to oppose the plan."

Mr. Stewart, 891 Falaise, named at least three properties he believed will be displaced by the change.

1970 COMPLETION

It deals with the first-contract section of the highway from Rogers Avenue to the entrance to Beaver Lake Park. Tenders will be called next month, council was told, and the section completed in early 1970.

The Falaise Crescent group will meet Friday night to decide on a course of attack.

It was outlined in a letter to council from municipal engineer Neville Life.

New details include an overpass linking Quadra Street and Glanford Avenue and a connection between Glanford and Royal Oak to serve the present shopping centre.

FRONTAGE ROAD

Quadra will continue to intersect the highway as it now does and a frontage road will be built to link Quadra and Royal Oak on the east side.

Further north, a frontage road will be constructed to link Falaise and Royal Oak cemetery.

Mayor Hugh Curtis told a representative of the Glanford Home and School Association he would speak directly with Highways Minister Wesley Black to urge a pedestrain overpass on the Pat Bay Highway opposite Chesterlea subdivision.

Mrs. Fraser McAlpine told council the association had received a letter from Mr. Black saying he would discuss a possible overpass with the Greater Victoria school board.

They had received similar assurance from Saanich and The Islands MLA John Tisdalle and "we feel we have gone as far as we can, now," she said.

GAS FIRE LEAVES 11 HOMELESS

No one was injured in the blaze which caused $8,000 damage to the home of Oliver Thibault, 82 San Jose.

The fire started in the basement of the three-storey 60-year old structure which is insured.

A fire department official said Thomas Thibault, 19, was cleaning engine parts in an open pan of gasoline at about 8 p.m. Some of the gas had spilled on the floor and fumes were ignited by the open flame of a nearby gas hot water heater.

The fire badly charred the basement and blistered paint upstairs. A number of personal possessions were destroyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Thibault and two sons lived in the upstairs portion of the house.

'No One Seems to Care' As Tattered Club Closes

By SUSAN RILEY

The death knell sounded over the weekend for the Broad Street Youth Centre at a teach-in held by hard-core supporters.

About 50 young people huddled in the chilly, unheated centre on Broad Street and discussed reasons it had failed.

●

But in the dimly-lit upper floor of the centre they talked about the more subtle reasons and the alternatives.

"People just got bored," said one long-haired youth. "There weren't any activities."

On the other hand some said that dances, introduced recently to raise money, were the final nail in the coffin.

"Bands were a drag," said one 17-year-old girl. "No one could talk any more or hear what was being said."

A boy with shoulder-length blond hair said the centre "strangled itself" because "nobody was interested in anything."

●

He pointed to broken chairs, the dirty floor and paint-smeared walls.

"How do you give people that pride?" he asked.

The young people expressed concern that no one seemed to care any more about the centre which has been opened since May.

Mr. Barber said the destruction which had occurred or the apathy of the habituees shouldn't be blamed on parents or outsiders.

"Haven't we been doing everything we think is reprehensible (by blaming others)" he asked.

"Haven't we been guilty of the same intolerance we criticize others for?"

Half-way through the hour-long teach-in many of the young people drifted out of the room.

●

Suggestions of charging for membership or asking the city for a subsidy were made, as means of financing the next youth centre.

"No matter what happens though we will open a new centre," said Mr. Barber.

Although no location has yet been decided upon, the youth council hopes to have a place ready for occupancy by Feb. 2, he said.

DUNCAN LORIMER
... seeks approval

First United to Hear Rebellious Clergyman

A controversial ex-clergyman who conducted psychedelic services in a Vancouver church a year ago will speak at the First United Church Sunday night at 8:30.

Jim McKibbon, 37, is now a producer of the CBC's Hourglass Show in Vancouver and a free-lance broadcaster. He left the Anglican church in May after being a minister for 17 years.

★ ★ ★

He was criticized by his superiors for his conduct as minister of St. Anselm's Church near the UBC campus. He spoke out against U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war, stringent marijuana laws and the "Victorian" attitude.

He will speak with Rev. Walter Donald of Christ Church Cathedral and some University of Victoria personalities on Freedom in the University.

Mr. McKibbon is co-chairman of the UBC alumni commission on student unrest.

School Libraries May Open to Public

Two senior secondary school libraries in Greater Victoria may open to the public in the evenings.

Victoria high school principal Duncan Lorimer said today he has asked for school board approval to broaden evening library service initiated for students a year ago.

John Wallace, principal at Oak Bay Senior Secondary, said library evening hours for students were started two weeks ago. If experience by Christmas suggests students wouldn't be crowded out, he favors inviting the public in too.

NO LENDING

Both envisage the libraries being available to anyone of high school age, not for the loan of books but for reading and use of reference works.

"We don't have enough books for the students themselves so we couldn't operate as a lending library," said Mr. Wallace.

For the past year, the Vic High library has been open for students from 7 to 9 p.m. Mondays to Thursdays under the supervision of a school board part-time employee. The Oak Bay senior school library is operating on the same basis.

Mr. Lorimer said the policy has worked out well for student study and researching.

ONLY HANDFUL

Esquimalt Junior Secondary School also tried evening hours for students for about three months this spring but only a handful made use of the library.

Principal Donald Smith said today that school board has not approached him on re-instituting evening hours again this fall.

School board chairman Peter Bunn said this morning any move which "gives the schools back to the people" will get a favorable hearing from trustees.

Trustees are on record as for community use of school facilities where practical. A new low rental fee schedule had led to heavy public use of school gyms and activity rooms during evenings.

8 CARD OF THANKS

We are more grateful than mere words can express to all who did so much to help us through this time of sorrow on the loss of our beloved son, Robert Edward, who died accidentally Nov. 12, 1968. We are deeply grateful to Rev. Dr. Smiley for her loving message, the members of the band, pallbearers, members of the swim club, school classmates, members of the Shop Easy staff, and all our loving friends. These are memories that will last forever in our hearts.

The pearly gates were opened,
a gentle voice said "come,"
And with farewells unspoken,
he gently entered home.

—Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Aubrey and Ronald.

We desire to thank our friends for their kindness, words of sympathy, cards and floral offerings in the loss of a dear husband and father.—Mrs. Molly Cameron and family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

COWARD — In loving memory of Robert Coward, passed away Nov. 19, 1964.

"Nothing but memories as we journey on,
Longing for a smile from a loved one gone;
None knows the depth of our deep regret;
But we remember when others forget.

—Loving wife, Helen, and son, Rod.

COWARD — In loving memory of father, Robert Coward, passed away Nov. 19, 1964.

"The depths of sorrow we cannot tell,
Of the loss of one we loved so well.
And while he sleeps a peaceful sleep

—Eleanor, Ken and family.

His thoughts unknown
And his mysteries one day to unfold
But left me memories I am proud to own.
To love and to be parted is the greatest sorrow to one's heart.
Your name is whispered in all my prayers.
A smile and tears though sincere.
How often I have wished you were here.

BRIDGE LESSON

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

South's 22 high card point game contract is not a good one. He might well have dropped the bidding at two diamonds and North really should have bid three diamonds instead of three no-trump but South finds himself at three no-trump and it is up to him to try to make it.

Opening lead—♥ 3

He starts by playing dummy's jack of hearts at trick one. This does no good since East produces the queen. He lets the queen hold. Sometimes an opponent is nice enough to try a second suit. As a matter of fact, East does lead his king of spades but this doesn't help South one bit because East's next play is a heart.

South is in with the ace of hearts and if he goes after the diamonds right away, South will wind up with only eight tricks since the best he can do will be to make six diamonds and two aces.

South must take the club finesse before attacking diamonds. He leads the queen of clubs. If West covers, South comes back to his hand with the jack; if West ducks, south is still in his hand. Now he can try the diamond finesse and, since that works also, he will have his nine tricks.

South's play was a desperate one. He needed two successful finesses and if either went wrong he would be down several tricks at three no-trump but it is mighty good policy to take almost any risk at all in order to make an undoubled contract. Certainly a one-in-four chance is worth taking, and the chance that two finesses will work is one in four.

Corporate Profits Set Mark

WASHINGTON (WP) — The government has announced record corporate profits and industrial production, revised upward the third quarter gross national product and reported a decline in housing starts and the rate of growth in personal income.

Although mixed, the latest batch of statistics indicated the economy still has more bounce than had been commonly predicted. And it served further to dispel fears—for the time being, at least—that the combined tax increase and spending cut enacted last June would result in economic "overkill."

Commerce department figures showed that corporate profits rose $2 billion to an annual rate of $91.2 billion in the July-September quarter after adjustment for seasonal variations and changes in inventory valuation.

The new peak in earnings came in the face of widespread predictions that they would flatten out or even decline because of an expected slackening in market demand and the squeeze of higher costs.

After-tax profits also set a record, rising from an annual rate of $50.7 billion in the second quarter to $51 billion. These figures do not include inventory valuation adjustment.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Toronto Declines Again

For the fourth day in succession the Toronto stock market slipped today, after reaching record levels last week.

The New York market presented a scrambled picture as profit-taking and reinvestment hit the most active stocks. Trading was active.

Mines suffered a decline in morning trade in Vancouver.

AT TORONTO, in industrials, CPR fell 2¼ to 72¾, White Pass and Yukon 1⅞ to 23½, Nabors Drilling 1⅝ to 14⅞ and Dylex Diversified 1½ to 66½. Great West Life was up 5¼ to 69 and Canadian Goldale 2 to 24.

Asamera was up ¾ to 13¾ and Canadian Superior Oil ⅜ to 52½. Charter Oil fell ½ to 16.

AT NEW YORK, Lionel, up more than two points, paced the list on volume as it made a 20-per-cent gain in a wave of speculative buying.

20th Century-Fox, Abacus, Gulf and Western, McDowell Douglas and Signal Co. rose more than a point each while Ling-Tenco-Vought sank two and Chrysler and Marcor Inc. lost about a point.

Du Pont gained 2, Control Data 3, Atlantic Richfield 3, Pfizer, Boeing, Goodrich, General Foods, International Paper, M-G-M and Westinghouse Electric a point or more.

Polaroid dropped about 2.

Chrysler and Ford lost more than a point each. General Motors sank about a point.

Levy lost ⅞ to 33¼, CPR ⅝ to 74½, Bell Canada ⅝ to 46⅝, CAE ⅜ to 11½ and Royal Bank ⅜ to 23½.

Fleetwood dropped ½ to 24 despite a substantial improvement in consolidated net income for the nine month period ended Sept. 30 and 81 cents a share, compared with 24 cents in 1967.

Canadian International Paper climbed 2½ to 41 and Southam 1 to 58.

Among the most active traders, Enamel A added 1 to 7½ and Stelco ⅜ to 27⅜. Bank of Montreal slid ⅛ to 15⅞ and Trizec 10 cents to $2.75.

AT LONDON the stock market was quiet and generally dull today under the influence of unresolved currency uncertainties and fears of further economic restrictions.

Canadian stocks that did well included Trans-Canada Pipeline, Hiram Walker and Noranda. Imperial Oil and International Nickel were among the few dull spots.

Leading British industrials declined in most cases, Glaxo and Unilever NV being prominent losers. Bowater paper eased. Hudson's Bay moved up. Canadian banks made headway.

AT VANCOUVER mining issues had their worst day of the month in pre-noon trade today.

Buttle Lake, a heavy gainer recently, slipped as low as $3.20 before returning to $3.65 for a los of .10. Arlington was down .08 at .70 on 190,800 shares and Coast Silver dipped .15 to $2.55.

One of the few issues to improve was Churchill, up .25 to $6.40.

In the oils, Allied Roxana lost .20 to $1.40 and Stampede was .10 weaker at $6.90.

Sun "A" was $1 better at $30 in the industrials and Scott Paper rose .37 to $27.50.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Oats, barley and rye showed little activity to the close of trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. Most grains and oilseeds were on an easier price pattern after a moderate volume of trade.

In flaxseed, fairly liberal selling by locals and commission houses and some hedge offerings forced the December future down more than three cents. May and July features were fairly steady due to moderate absorption by commercial interests.

Lakehead prices for Class Two, IWA and domestic wheat all were down ⅛ cent.

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures declined more than 1½ cents a bushel in active dealings on the board of trade today but closed with a rally that trimmed losses to a fraction.

Other gains and soybeans also were mostly lower. Trade moved at a moderate pace and involved all facets on both sides.

Arthur Mayse

You may find this a cheerless reflection, but in some distant future, the anthropologists are going to knock themselves out trying to reconstruct our civilization from what we have left behind. And that, by the way we're going, may not be much.

By an act of projection, let us look in on an inter-galactic dig which has struck paydirt.

The site is on the southern tip of what was Vancouver Island before solar bombing tumbled the coast range into the sea. Its top layers have been peeled off, and there is exciting evidence that humanoids once inhabited the area.

The leader of the expedition, a Venusian whom we may as well call Dr. Kronk, is listening with what patience he can muster to Prof. Twizzle, an archeologist from Proxima Centauri.

Twizzle was in on the big dig at Rome, and he can't get over it.

"Whoever they were," he says, "it's obvious that here is another of those cultures that flash and are gone. Their habitations were of the most temporary sort. Look at this."

He crumbles a fragment of stucco. "Ticky-tacky. Is this the work of a people who built for the ages? Why in Rome, at a depth of a mere 30 metres —"

"Quite so," Kronk interrupts. Let Twizzle get going on that subject, and they could lose half of this dead planet's all-too-short day. "But come along. I've something to show you."

★

Both have large heads in which are set enormous, browless eyes. Their hands are also big, but their legs are no more than stumpy appendages. Their de-gravitation packs waft them along a broad cut from the walls of which protrude minor artifacts.

There are bottle-tops, shards of shattered records, flattened cans, here and there a bleach jug.

Twizzle eyes these relics of dwellers long gone contemptuously.

"You see? No stonework, no statuary, no temples. And this, I suppose, passed for a street. Take the Romans now, Imperishible records, and roads built for eternity."

Kronk sighs. He has taken a liking to these distant ancestors who were overcome by a cataclysm frightful beyond imagination.

"You're too hard on them," he says. "Admittedly, they were barbarians, and if there's truth in our folk-tales, their race destroyed itself." Inwardly, he curses headquarters for sending Twizzle to inspect this new dig.

"But given time, they might have sorted themselves out. They'd achieved a primitive sewerage system and one quite creditable public bath, apparently roofed with glass. I wonder why they were dismantling it?"

★

"We'll soon be there," Kronk replies. They levitate down other cuts. Where each joins its neighbor, metal hexagons have been exhumed and set aside.

"They baffle us," Kronk observes. "Our language people believe they convey an order to the populace. Perhaps 'Stop'."

"Undoubtedly a negative society," his companion observes. "But I do recall that we came upon something of the sort in our earlier exploratory work at Rome."

"Wayside shrines, perhaps," says Kronk absently. He is gazing ahead where workmen stand by the mouth of a cavern, their earth-vacuums idle in their hands.

"Take care, Doc," one of them calls. "This place could have a curse on it."

A fluke of earth pressure has preserved the showroom as a cave. In it crouch dim-seen cars, longer and lower than today's models, though not very much.

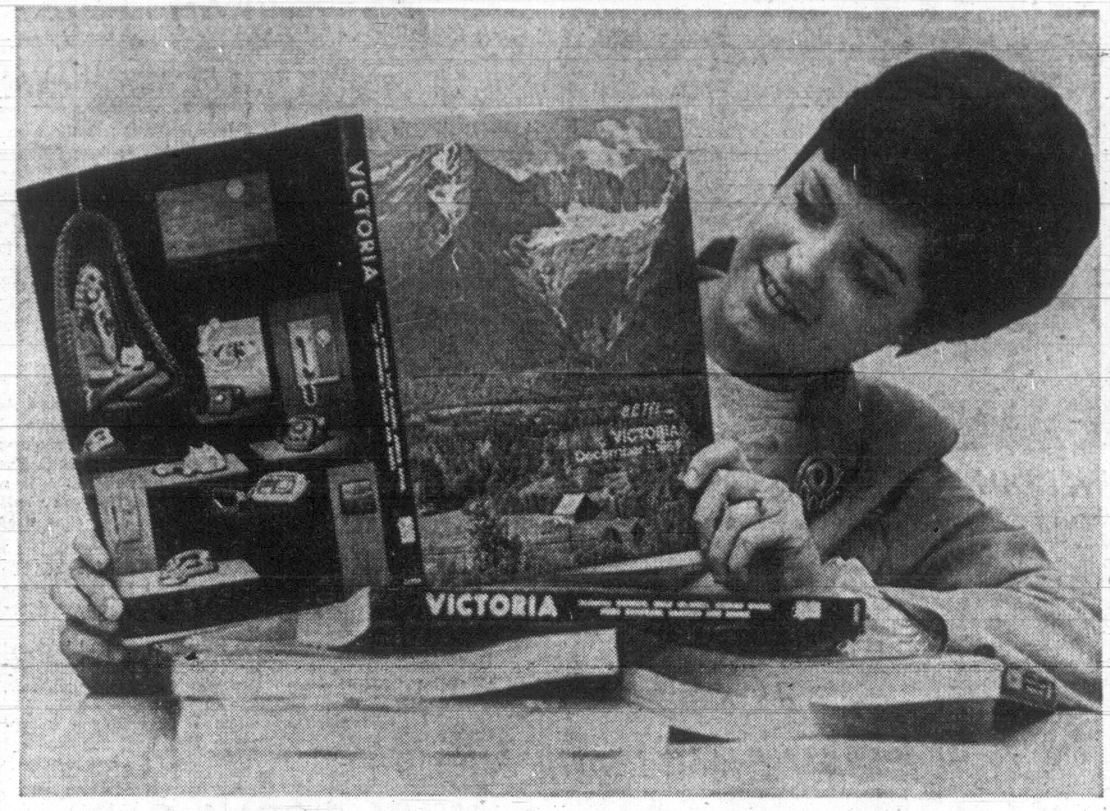
"Perhaps." Dr. Kronk advances toward a sporty job that sits alone on a central dias. "The language team is convinced that they are. But that's the hell of our profession, Twizzle—we may never learn the answer!"



EVERYBODY'S LIBRARY gets a boost as delivery of the new Victoria district telephone directory starts today. About 97,000 copies will go to subscribers in the Greater Victoria area, Central Saanich, Sidney, Sooke, Jordan River, Port Renfrew and the Gulf Islands over the next 10 days. B.C. Telephone employee Sandra Christie admires cover photo of Hudson Bay Mountain near Smithers. New issue will contain 80,000 listings, up 5,000 from last year. Transferring of 6,000 subscribers from the Blanshard Street exchange to a new exchange on Foul Bay Road means more than usual new numbers. New directory is effective December 1. Saanich Group Ready to Fight Overpass Link

A citizens' committee is mounting a battle against Saanich's present plans to reconstruct its trunk road system to accommodate the widened Patricia Bay Highway.

They were unhappy because their street will be the new overpass link between Royal Oak Avenue and West Saanich Road when the present Royal Oak-Pat Bay intersection is eliminated.

Association president Bill Stewart said in an interview their presence was a gesture "to show what action we are prepared to take to oppose the plan."

Mr. Stewart, 891 Falaise, named at least three properties he believed will be displaced by the change.

The road system plan was officially unveiled at the meeting which approved the Falaise Road proposal in principle.

1970 COMPLETION

It deals with the first-contract section of the highway from Rogers Avenue to the entrance to Beaver Lake Park. Tenders will be called next month, council was told, and the section completed in early 1970.

The Falaise Crescent group will meet Friday night to decide on a course of attack.

It was outlined in a letter to council from municipal engineer Neville Life.

New details include an overpass linking Quadra Street and Glanford Avenue and a connection between Glanford and Royal Oak to serve the present shopping centre.

FRONTAGE ROAD

Quadra will continue to intersect the highway as it now does and a frontage road will be built to link Quadra and Royal Oak on the east side.

Further north, a frontage road will be constructed to link Falaise and Royal Oak cemetery.

This road will be extended south to Broadmead Farms when a proposed shopping centre is constructed in the subdivision.

Mayor Hugh Curtis told a representative of the Glanford Home and School Association he would speak directly with Highways Minister Wesley Black to urge a pedestrain overpass on the Pat Bay Highway opposite Chesterlea subdivision.

Mrs. Fraser McAlpine told council the association had received a letter from Mr. Black saying he would discuss a possible overpass with the Greater Victoria school board.

They had received similar assurance from Saanich and The Islands MLA John Tisdalle and "we feel we have gone as far as we can, now," he said.

GAS FIRE LEAVES 11 HOMELESS

No one was injured in the blaze which caused $8,000 damage to the home of Oliver Thibault, 82 San Jose.

The fire started in the basement of the three-storey 60-year old structure which is insured.

A fire department official said Thomas Thibault, 19, was cleaning engine parts in an open pan of gasoline at about 8 p.m. Some of the gas had spilled on the floor and fumes were ignited by the open flame of a nearby gas hot water heater.

The fire badly charred the basement and blistered paint upstairs. A number of personal possessions were destroyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Thibault and two sons lived in the upstairs portion of the house.

Service Corridors Sought by Farmers

Routing of all public services — power lines, gas lines, railways and highways through specially designated corridors is proposed by Vancouver Island and mainland farmers.

This would reduce the wastage of arable lands and protect the aesthetic qualities of public lands and residential districts, they claim.

The subject is expected to be one of the main items discussed at the three-day annual convention of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture opening at the Empress Hotel on Nov. 27.

The proposal will be closely watched by recreation groups and town planners concerned over the frequent practice of running public services through parklands.

RAPID EXPANSION

Federation secretary Jack Wessel said the rapid expansion of industry in B.C. is entailing considerable use of farm land for services such as power and gas pipe lines.

"There doesn't appear to be enough planning or control of the location of rights-of-way to minimize the wastage of agricultural land for such services," he said.

He said an example is the decision to run the rail route to the Robert's Bank superport through Delta municipality. Thirty-five farms will be broken up when the railway is constructed, he said.

Farmers feel it should be feasible to "corridor" such rights-of-way.

REGIONAL ZONING

Mr. Wessel said the only practical way this could be accomplished would be for regional districts to take over the planning and zoning of the corridors.

Thus it would ensure that a corridor in one district would join up with another in an adjoining district.

Tony Roberts, director of the Capital Region Planning Board, agreed that as many utilities as possible should use one route or corridor.

STUDY FIRST

"But a wide-range study should be made first before a route is chosen," he said. "The study should be related to the technical needs of other utilities."

Mr. Roberts said the present practice of running utilities through different routes interferes with the environment of certain areas.

He cited the Gulf Islands as an example where a swath is being cut through for a transmission power line — only a half-mile from an existing power line right-of-way.

Study Set On Merger Of Schools

The Greater Victoria school board named an architect's firm Monday night to study the feasibility of merging James Bay elementary school facilities.

Wade, Stockdill, Armour & Blewett will examine problems involved in adding about 10 classrooms and an activity room to James Bay elementary school alongside Macdonald Park.

The school board has opened talks with the city on the proposed expansion because it would like to see joint school-community use of Macdonald Park as part of the deal.

SPEAKING at the Bank Street School auditorium Thursday at 8 p.m. is Ross Smith, president of the World Federalists of Canada. He will discuss "World Federalism, The Best Hope for World Peace." He is an Air Canada official in Montreal.

Two Saanich Aldermen Plan To Run Again

Two incumbent aldermen, one a 27-year veteran, the other the youngest member of Saanich council, have filed nomination papers for re-election Dec. 7.

Ald. Leslie Passmore, 2873 Austin, said today he will "continue to work for the people of Saanich" as he has for the last 27 years.

Now retired, Ald. Passmore said: "I am most pleased with the recreation program which has developed" in the municipality. "My prime interest will be to continue to expand" the program.

Ald. Alan Newberry, 4274 Parkside, is making his second re-election bid.

Ald. Newberry, 31, said "I feel that being a young person I can offer stable involvement in local government for this region."

Supervisor of intermediate instruction for Sooke school district, Mr. Newberry said "I still feel that the young people of the community should become concerned in a responsible way."

He continues "to be alarmed by the irresponsible involvement of some of our young people, not only in our city, but across the country."

Third nomination filed to date for the four vacancies on the eight-member council was by Frank Waring, a member of the Saanich planning commission and an unsuccessful aldermanic contestant in 1967.

CHARGE DUE AGAINST INJURED YOUTH

A 17-year-old found bleeding from deep cuts to the neck, scalp and face at Cook and Oscar streets late Friday will be charged with wilful damage, city police said today.

The juvenile was found on the boulevard on Oscar in an apparently intoxicated condition and taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Police said he suffered a one and one-half inch cut to the neck requiring eight stitches and two smaller cuts taking four stitches.

Shortly after police found him two other juveniles, a male and female, were questioned. All appeared to be intoxicated.

Investigation revealed the wounds had been self-inflicted with a piece of glass, police said.

THIS SANTA NEEDS TOYS

Nelly Pelkey is collecting toys so children on the East Saanich Indian Reserve will have a happy Christmas.

She's looking for old toys, new toys, clothing, used or new, candy—anything that can be distributed to the 200 children on the reserve this Christmas.

"We are a poor organization," said Mrs. Pelkey. "We have no money, but we want these children to have a good Christmas.

"Last year when we had our first Christmas party, it was the first time some of the children had ever seen a Santa Claus," she said.

BIG FAMILIES

She hopes this year Santa will have some toys to distribute.

"Many of the families on the reserve have 12 to 16 children," she said. "Naturally all of them don't get presents at Christmas."

Last-minute problems almost caused cancellation of the party but it did finally take place.

This year Mrs. Pelkey hopes they are starting soon enough to have a party ready by Dec. 15.

Ask The Times

A. The Canadian Wildlife Service is a separate branch of the federal government, created in 1966. It administers migratory bird sanctuary regulations, discharges federal responsibilities in regard to wildlife and co-operates with the provinces on wildlife research and management. The minister reports to Parliament on behalf of the Historic Sites and Monuments Board, the Northern Canada Power Commission and the Northern Transportation Co. Ltd.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Shirras Funeral Thursday Morning

Funeral services will be held at McCall Brothers funeral home at 10:15 a.m. Thursday for former B.C. provincial police commissioner John Shirras who died Friday at the age of 85.

Mr. Shirras, 890 Heywood, became head of the provincial police in 1947 after serving as a policeman in Scotland and in Canada since 1912.

He retired as commissioner in 1950 when the RCMP took over the B.C. police force and has lived in Victoria since.

'No One Seems to Care' As Tattered Club Closes

By SUSAN RILEY

The death knell sounded over the weekend for the Broad Street Youth Centre at a teach-in held by hard-core supporters.

About 50 young people huddled in the chilly, unheated centre on Broad Street and discussed reasons it had failed.

●

But in the dimly-lit upper floor of the centre they talked about the more subtle reasons and the alternatives.

"People just got bored," said one long-haired youth. "There weren't any activities."

On the other hand some said that dances, introduced recently to raise money, were the final nail in the coffin.

"Bands were a drag," said one 17-year-old girl. "No one could talk any more or hear what was being said."

A boy with shoulder-length blond hair said the centre "strangled itself" because "nobody was interested in anything."

●

He pointed to broken chairs, the dirty floor and paint-smeared walls.

"How do you give people that pride?" he asked.

The young people expressed concern that no one seemed to care any more about the centre which has been opened since May.

Mr. Barber said the destruction which had occurred or the apathy of the habituees shouldn't be blamed on parents or outsiders.

"Haven't we been doing everything we think is reprehensible (by blaming others)" he asked.

"Haven't we been guilty of the same intolerance we criticize others for?"

Half-way through the hour-long teach-in many of the young people drifted out of the room.

●

Suggestions of charging for membership or asking the city for a subsidy were made, as means of financing the next youth centre.

"No matter what happens though we will open a new centre," said Mr. Barber.

Although no location has yet been decided upon, the youth council hopes to have a place ready for occupancy by Feb. 2, he said.

DUNCAN LORIMER

First United to Hear Rebellious Clergyman

A controversial ex-clergyman who conducted psychedelic services in a Vancouver church a year ago will speak at the First United Church Sunday night at 8:30.

Jim McKibbon, 37, is now a producer of the CBC's Hourglass Show in Vancouver and a free-lance broadcaster. He left the Anglican church in May after being a minister for 17 years.

★ ★ ★

He was criticized by his superiors for his conduct as minister of St. Anselm's Church near the UBC campus. He spoke out against U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war, stringent marijuana laws and the "Victorian" attitude.

He will speak with Rev. Walter Donald of Christ Church Cathedral and some University of Victoria personalities on Freedom in the University.

School Libraries May Open to Public

Two senior secondary school libraries in Greater Victoria may open to the public in the evenings.

Victoria high school principal Duncan Lorimer said today he has asked for school board approval to broaden evening library service initiated for students a year ago.

John Wallace, principal at Oak Bay Senior Secondary, said library evening hours for students were started two weeks ago. If experience by Christmas suggests students wouldn't be crowded out, he favors inviting the public in too.

NO LENDING

Both envisage the libraries being available to anyone of high school age, not for the loan of books but for reading and use of reference works.

"We don't have enough books for the students themselves so we couldn't operate as a lending library," said Mr. Wallace.

For the past year, the Vic High library has been open for students from 7 to 9 p.m. Mondays to Thursdays under the supervision of a school board part-time employee. The Oak Bay senior school library is operating on the same basis.

Mr. Lorimer said the policy has worked out well for student study and researching.

ONLY HANDFUL

Esquimalt Junior Secondary School also tried evening hours for students for about three months this spring but only a handful made use of the library.

Principal Donald Smith said today that school board has not approached him on re-instituting evening hours again this fall.

School board chairman Peter Bunn said this morning any move which "gives the schools back to the people" will get a favorable hearing from trustees.

Trustees are on record as for community use of school facilities where practical. A new low rental fee schedule had led to heavy public use of school gyms and activity rooms during evenings.
